NEW DEAL UPSET BY LOSS OF RULE OVER CONGRESS

Leaders Call Parley to Regain Control.

BY WILLARD EDWARDS.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Fearful of the consequences to their party of open warfare between President Roosevelt and both houses of congress, Democratic leaders today considered ways to bring rebellious followers back into the fold and to curb a growing Republican influence in the national legislature.

House Majority Leader Sam Rayburn and Representative John W. McCormack of Massachusetts, chairman of the Democratic caucus, called a meeting of all house Democrats for next Tuesday morning to discuss "organization of the party."

Absentees Upset Majority.

The many upsets suffered by the administration in the first six weeks of the session have been due to coalitions of Democrats and Republicans. These coalitions have succeeded—particularly in the house—because the 169 Republicans have attended the daily sessions while fifty or more Democrats have been absent.

The Democratic majority of 261, already reduced by several deaths, has been cut to approximately 200 votes by these absences. The defection of a large group of Democrats, mostly from southern states, has made it possible for them to control the legislative program with Republican help.

The problem of house leaders is to effect a steadier attendance on the floor by administration followers.

Strategy in Senate.

In the senate Majority Leader Alben W. Barkley has sought to let the storm of anti-Roosevelt sentiment subside by calling for three day recesses, the maximum possible under the constitution.

Last week, for example, he succeeded in recessing the senate from Monday to Thursday, after a short session, and again from Thursday to next Monday, although not until after Senator Elbert D. Thomas [D., Utah], a consistent New Dealer, had amazed his colleagues by charging the President with usurpation of the senate's prerogatives.

Today Mr. Roosevelt prepared to depart from the capital and its troubles with the hope that the political weather may be calmer when he returns after two weeks on the Caribbean. He will watch the fleet maneuvers and indulge in his favorite sport of fishing.

Will Ride on Cruiser.

The President will leave by special train Thursday night for a southern Florida port, where he will embark on his favorite vacation ship, the Cruiser Houston.

The President, who has been confined to his private quarters in the White House with a mild attack of grippe for the last two days, was reported to be improved today by the White House physician, Dr. Ross T. McIntyre. However, Dr. McIntyre, as a precaution, ordered the President to remain in bed again today.

House Democratic leaders are much perturbed by activities of the Republican minority. Minority Leader Joseph Martin has kept his members on the floor through almost every session, while half the Democrats frequently are absent.

New Members on Job.

Eighty of the minority party are new members, eager to work, while the vast proportion of Democrats are veterans who spend much of their time in extra-legislative activities.

Because of this situation the Republicans last Wednesday were able to curtail the Tennessee Valley authority's dam construction program by knocking out an $18,000,000 appropriation for work on a dam at Gilbertsville, Ky., which had been attacked as a wasteful experiment, and for starting another dam at Watts Bar on the Tennessee river. This was accomplished by a vote of 159 to 122. Fifty-five administration Democrats were out of town at the time.

GOLD OFFERED FRANCO TO OUST DUCE AND NAZIS

May Soon Recognize Rule of Rebels.

LONDON, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Recognition of Gen. Francisco Franco's rebel régime as the legal government of Spain apparently is the next move of the British and French democracies to sway the Spanish rebels from Fascist and Nazi influence. Informed quarters expressed the belief tonight that such recognition might be granted next week.

Britain and France, seeming now to accept Franco as the inevitable victor in Spain's long civil war, want to outbid Italy and Germany for his favor. They want a Spain free of Rome-Berlin influence because Spain lies athwart vital channels of commerce and empire for both.

London and Paris see signs already that Franco wants to deal with them despite the military aid he has received from Germany and Italy.

Gold Is Lure to Franco.

British and French capital for reconstruction in Spain would be the chief inducement to Franco to prevent Italy and Germany from gaining a permanent foothold on the Spanish peninsula. The British market, long a vital one for Spain's exports, would be another.

Financial circles in London voiced the belief that Franco must get foreign money from London because the economic situations and closed economy systems in the authoritarian states make the possibility of floating loans in Berlin or Rome highly problematical. Thus British "pound diplomacy" was counted on to turn the scales against the dictators in Spain.

See Swing from Hitler.

Two developments were considered in London to be indications that Franco desires British-French friendship despite his obligations to Reichsfuehrer Hitler and Premier Mussolini.

FIRST—He accepted use of the British cruiser Devonshire this week for sending his emissary to strategic Minorca, one of the Balearic Islands, to negotiate its surrender by the government to exclusively Spanish forces. Britain and France had feared Franco might send his Italian legionnaires to seize Minorca, thus giving Italians a foothold there.

SECOND—Franco agreed to keep Italian troops away from Catalonia's frontier with France when his armies routed the last government forces from northeast Spain, and took up positions on the French-Spanish border.

Blame Bombing on Italians.

The bombing of Port Mahon, on Minorca, by planes reported to have been Italian while negotiations were in progress for the island's surrender also assumed significance in the bidding for Franco's favor. Franco had promised not to bombard the island during the negotiations aboard the Devonshire.

Informed diplomats in London said the planes definitly were identified as Italian. These informants expressed the belief—echoed by London newspaper writers on foreign affairs—that the Italians may have staged the bombardment without Franco's approval to show dislike of the British-aided negotiations.

Rebels Bomb Valencia.

PERPIGNAN, France [Near the Spanish Frontier], Feb. 11.—(AP)—The Spanish insurgents, conquerors of Catalonia, turned their military might today against Valencia as peace efforts in the Spanish civil war marked time and the government stuck to its refusal to surrender.

Seven ministers flew from France to join government Premier Juan Negrin, who was reported from Alicante, Spain, to have quarreled with his military commanders.

Negrin, who presided over a cabinet meeting in Valencia today, scarcely had time to reorganize his administration in the central Spanish zone before the rebels resumed air raids on that city, the government's key port. At least twenty persons were killed and forty injured in five air raids believed to have been made from the Italian-controled air base on the island of Mallorca, off Spain's Mediterranean coast.

COURT HOLDS TAVERN CAN'T PUT YOU OUT JUST TO CLOSE EARLY

New York, Feb. 11.—[Special.]—If you are not making a disturbance, no New York barroom owner can put you out before the legal closing hour of 4 a. m., according to a ruling today by Magistrate Burke, sitting in Jefferson Market court.

Seven defendants were before the court, charged with disorderly conduct on complaint by Benjamin Schnall, owner of the Yorkville Casino. At 2:30 a. m., Schnall decided to close the place.

"No you don't," said the defendants. "The legal closing hour is 4. We stay right here till then."

Schnall called a policeman and filed a complaint. The charges were dismissed after Magistrate Burke heard their story.

Fan Phones to Locate Fire; Told He's Already There

Oakland, Neb., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The fire whistle blew and Kenneth Erickson, a guest at the C. H. Krelle home, picked up the telephone to ask the operator the location of the blaze. "It's at the C. H. Krelle home," she informed him. Firemen knocking at the back door confirmed the statement. A neighbor had turned in the alarm.

An Arctic Climb in the Big City Lands Explorers in Hot Spot

Ralph Newman and Edward Roper now understand something of the terrible hardships arctic explorers must face. They learned yesterday by trying to mush out of the 33 North La Salle street building.

Mr. Newman is a budding cartoonist, 24 years old. He is a graduate of Albion college in Michigan and lives at 666 Rush street. Mr. Roper aspires to be an advertising man and is taking a course in that specialty at Northwestern university. He lives at 162 East Pearson street.

Mr. Newman had a notion he might get some cartooning ideas by looking at a snow covered, wind ripped Chicago from some high building. Mr. Roper had a desire to count the electric signs over the loop.

Wind Exceeds Expectations.

So they went to 33 North La Salle street in midafternoon, boarded an elevator, and rode to the thirty-seventh floor. They walked down a corridor, pushed open two doors, and stepped out onto a platform. The view was fine. But the high wind whipping around the skyscraper exceeded expectations and in a short time the explorers were chilled. The mercury stood at 16 above zero.

They started back. The first door opened. The second didn't. Perversely, the architects had fixed it so door No. 2 couldn't be operated from the outside.

"Fortunately," said Mr. Newman, "there is an inside stairway here that we can follow down. It must be some sort of fire escape."

It was. But it ended at the twenty-fifth floor. Further descent was possible only on the outside iron fire escape. There was nothing else to do, and the young men tackled it. The cold winds zipped about them. Their fingers became numb.

"The way it was blowing," said Mr. Newman later, "I thought I must have forgotten my pants."

Automobile "Last Straw."

With much suffering they reached the second floor level some time later. But they couldn't let down the last length of fire escape. An automobile was under it and the ladder would have punched right through the automobile top. Too tired to climb back, the explorers would have been stranded if a policeman hadn't seen them.

He summoned a squad and the building force was notified. Messrs. Newman and Roper were dragged into the building and surrounded by police, who said they would hold the pair over night. That way, it was explained, they could be thawed out and their story that they were not burglars could be verified.

Lieut. Kelsey. [A. P. Wirephoto.]

The pilot, Lieut. Ben S. Kelsey, army test flyer, was saved from serious injury by the plane's all steel cabin and incurred only a few cuts and bruises. The ship, a twin motor monoplane of secret design, was wrecked.

Lieut. Kelsey flew the plane here from March field, Riverside, Cal., on an unannounced trip. His average speed was approximately 342 miles an hour for the 2,400 mile flight, and he was in the air seven hours and four minutes. The National Aeronautic association said that, eliminating stops, he had made the fastest flying time on record for a cross-country flight.

Top Exceeds 400 M. P. H.

The plane, described as probably exceeding in performance any military ship in the world, was said to have a speed of more than 400 miles an hour. Because the ship was new, however, it was assumed Kelsey did not put it to its maximum speed.

Kelsey arrived over Mitchel field at 3:57 p. m. [Chicago time] and circled for a landing at a speed of about 150 miles an hour. Witnesses said he overshot the field and then zoomed.

The right motor appeared to choke, and the plane went into a steep right turn and, slipping down, sheared off the tops of trees bordering the flying field. The undercarriage caught in a 35 foot tree and the plane plunged into a sand pit on the Cold Stream golf course.

Engine Cylinders Cracked.

Bystanders pulled Kelsey from the wreckage and he was taken to the field post hospital. The plane's fuselage was twisted, both wings were crumpled, rudders torn away, propellers bent, and motors cracked.

A board of inquiry was called into session immediately by Col. Chaney, with Lieut. Kelsey present. The findings were expected to be kept secret and sent to Washington. Kelsey departed for Washington soon afterward aboard an army plane.

The plane, which cost $80,000 and was designated as XP-38, has been shrouded in secrecy. It was designed by the army air corps and nearly a year and a half was required for its construction. Built by the Lockheed Aircraft company in Burbank, Cal., it was flown to March field two weeks ago and turned over to Lieut. Kelsey for tests.

Clocks Up 400 Mile Hour Speed.

Kelsey clocked up speeds of 400 miles an hour in the test flights and it was said that the ship had even greater reserve.

The ship, an all-metal single seater, was equipped with devices for operating at extremely high altitudes and with a tricycle undercarriage. The nose contained apertures for machine guns. The ship was powered with Allison engines.

Kelsey left March field at 8:12 a. m. [Chicago time], today and stopped 21 minutes in Amarillo, Tex., and 20 minutes in Dayton, O. His total elapsed time was 7 hours and 45 minutes. This was sixteen minutes longer than the 1937 non-stop record flight of Howard Hughes from Burbank to Newark, N. J. Although Hughes holds the speed record for transcontinental flying, Kelsey's actual time in the air was less than that of Hughes. This is because Hughes flew nonstop. Kelsey was on the ground forty-one minutes.

So an Oyster Doesn't Get Around, Eh? What's This!

Beaufort, N. C., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Dr. Herbert F. Prytherem, director of the United States Fisheries station here, found a six month old oyster attached to a pump propeller which made 1,750 revolutions a minute. He said the oyster grew there from a seedling.

9 DAY FUNERAL RITES FOR POPE TO START TODAY

Body Is Transferred to St. Peter's.

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Pope Pius XI., a tiny figure in the vast still basilica of St. Peter's cathedral, lay in death tonight in the chapel of the Holy Sacrament, lighted by twenty-four candles and watched by four noble guards.

His body had been borne from the Sistine chapel to St. Peter's with rich, medieval ceremony on the very day he had expected to address the Italian bishops on the 10th anniversary of the Lateran accord—the pact between the church and Italian state which gave him the name of "the pope of the conciliation."

The removal of his bier from the Sistine chapel on the shoulders of eight attendants was made in a reverent and picturesque procession within the walls of the Vatican.

31 of 62 Cardinals Present.

It followed the first general congregation of the cardinals, the princes of the church, in preparation for the conclave which will elect the next pontiff.

Thirty-one of the sixty-two cardinals attended the session, which was held while prince and peasant were passing by the pontiff's body in the Sistine chapel. They swore to observe the constitution which governs the period until a new pope shall have been elected.

The conclave probably will be convened Feb. 28, the last day by Pope Pius' own order on which it may be held, to give American and other foreign cardinals the greatest possible time to reach the Vatican.

Fisherman's Ring Broken.

In today's first general congregation, the late pontiff's fisherman's ring, symbol of papal power, was broken. A new one will be given his successor soon after the election.

As the cardinals met, the Italian bishops who had been summoned by the pope to hear him speak on the anniversary of the Lateran accord were given the contents of his intended address.

Thousands of persons, some of whom at best caught only glimpses of the ceremony in which the pope's body was borne from the Sistine chapel, tomorrow will have a chance to pay their homage to the pontiff in the basilica and to kiss his slippered foot.

The first of nine funeral services also will be held tomorrow in St. Peter's, where burial will take place Wednesday. The funeral services, one each day, will continue five days after the burial.

Chapel Open Five Hours.

Several thousand persons visited the bier this morning in the Sistine chapel. The chapel was open to the public for five hours except for a brief period when Crown Prince Umberto and other Italian dignitaries went to pray beside the body.

Soon after the crown prince had left Juan, prince of the Asturias, the third son of former King Alfonso of Spain, visited the chapel to pay his tribute.

Thousands of persons began collecting in the great St. Peter's square at midday in advance of the removal of the pope's body to St. Peter's.

By the time the bells of the basilica began tolling at 3 p. m. as a sign that the procession had started an estimated 50,000 persons were crowded outside the grilled portico gate.

Few Get Glimpse of Ceremony.

Only a few hundred were able to glimpse the ceremony through gates and later through the basilica's doorway.

Red robed cardinals, purple robed bishops, members of the papal court in ecclesiastical robes or rich uniforms, and diplomats and other dignitaries in formal dress marched in the procession.

So, too, did a simple priest as a symbol of humility and so did servants who had waited on the pope. Among them was his thin and old valet, Chevalier Giovanni Malvestiti.

Vatican Choir Chants.

The stately procession was preceded by Palatine guards, by mace bearers with maces reversed in mourning, and by the Vatican choir chanting "Il Miserere."

Then followed the nobles of the antechamber, headed by the major-

Next came the diplomatic corps, bishops, and prelates with Swiss guards.

Entering St. Peter's through the portico, the cortégé passed before the altar of confession, where a prelate gave absolution.

Place Body on Funeral Couch.

The procession then moved along the right aile of the basilica, passing through the Chapel of the Trinity to the Chapel of the Holy Sacrament. The choir sang, "The Resurrection and the Life."

The eight bearers of the bier lowered it on the funeral couch so that the body rested inside the wrought iron gates of the chapel but the feet outside so the faithful later could approach and kiss the pope's slipper.

Four noble guards were left to watch the bier, surrounded by twenty-four tall candles in great gold candelabra.

Most of the colorfully clad churchmen and be-medalled laity who marched in the procession had planned to come to St. Peter's tomorrow to join with the pope in celebrating the seventeenth anniversary of his coronation.

Final Message Kept Secret.

Hundreds of persons who thronged St. Peter's square today, hoping to see the pope in death, had expected to receive his blessing tomorrow from an outside balcony of the edifice.

The anniversary of the Lateran accord passed without the world learning the contents of the important message Pius XI. was to have delivered to the Italian bishops. The bishops were informed of what the pontiff intended to tell them, but kept the information secret. Vatican authorities believed it unlikely that the communication would be made public unless the next pope ordered it.

It was explained that the congregation of cardinals normally would not sanction publication, lest it embarrass the policy of the new pontiff.

Ecclesiastical circles, however, expressed the belief that the message dealt with the effect of the new Fascist racial laws on the church's rights in matrimony under the concordat. Before his death, Pope Pius criticized the laws as "wounding" the concordat.

Follow "Nothing New" Policy.

Although the cardinals as a college will rule the affairs of the church until the selection of a new pope, prelates said they were following the customary policy of "nihil novandum" ["nothing new"].

They said the cardinals would wish to avoid doing anything that later might be changed or criticized by the successor to the papal throne.

Everywhere one heard it was too early to speculate as to who might be the next pope. Often repeated was the old Roman adage: "Who enters the conclave a pope leaves it a cardinal" [meaning that a strong candidate before the conclave usually fails to be elected].

The cardinals' congregation today named three princes of the church to begin preparations for the conclave. They are Cardinals Camillo Caccia-Dominioni, Nicola Canali, and Domencio Mariani. Msgr. Arborio Mella di Sant' Elia, papal majordomo, was designated governor of the conclave.

Seek New "Peace" Pope.

Spokesmen of the hierarchy today twice expressed the hope a pope would be chosen who could guide the church and the world to peaceful relations in a time of trouble.

Archbishop Nicola Monterisi of Salerno, who addressed the cardinals in the name of the Italian bishops, expressed the hope that "the Lord, as always, will provide for the church according to the needs of the times and especially that peace which is his divine desire."

The dean of the sacred college, Cardinal Januarius Granito Pignatelli di Belmonte, asked the bishops to pray "that the Lord would give the church a man who would know how to guide with a wise hand the mystic ship of Peter, especially in these grave times."

Prospects in Election of Pope

Cardinal Elia Dalla Costa (left), Cardinal Luigi Lavitrano (center), and Cardinal Pietro Boetto, other possibilities mentioned in Vatican City dispatches.

Figures on the map show the numbers of popes which have been elected from various countries. The one from Galilee, now included in Palestine, was St. Peter. In addition to the 259 pontiffs whose native countries are shown, one was a Goth whose home vicinity is not known, and the nationality of another is not recorded.

SEVERAL NAMES MENTIONED AS PIUS' SUCCESSOR

VATICAN CITY, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The names of several cardinals came to the forefront today in speculation as to who would be the next pope. They are:

Cardinal Adeolato Piazza, patriarch of Venice. A vigorous administrator and accomplished student. He is 54 years old, the youngest of any on the list of prominent prospects.

Cardinal Alfred Ildefonso Schuster, archbishop of Milan. He is 58 years old.

Cardinal Maurilio Fossati, archbishop of Turin, 62 years old.

There was speculation, too, on the possibility of some one of those least expected to be chosen being elevated to the papacy, for that has happened many times. Rumors ran through Rome that foreign cardinals had decided to unite behind Cardinal Roderique Villeneuve of Quebec and were trying to win some Italians over. Sources familiar with the Vatican, however, placed little credence in such reports. Unless precedents are broken by the college of cardinals, the one chosen will be an Italian and an archbishop of one of the larger Italian dioceses.

MUNDELEIN SAILS FOR ITALY; MAY NEVER RETURN

Possibility Seen of His Being Elected Pope.

BY ARCH WARD.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

ABOARD S. S. REX., Feb. 11.—Cardinal George Mundelein of Chicago sailed for Italy today on a voyage from which he may never return.

Accompanied by Cardinal Dennis Dougherty of Philadelphia, the archbishop of Chicago left New York at 2 o'clock this afternoon to join other members of the Sacred College of Cardinals in the election of a successor to Pope Pius XI.

While it is considered improbable by church dignitaries that a man other than an Italian will be chosen for the office, still it is not impossible. The political situation in Europe is certain to have a pronounced influence on the selection of a new pontiff.

U. S. to Have Three Votes.

Cardinal William O'Connell of Boston, who will sail for Rome next week to attend the conclave, was en route to New York today from a vacation in the Bahamas. This will be the first time that the United States ever has had three votes in a papal election.

If the cardinals of the world should look to America for a successor to Pius XI., it is predicted they will center their interest in Cardinal Mundelein. He is 66 years old. Cardinal O'Connell is 79, and Cardinal Dougherty is 73.

Cardinal Mundelein, the first cardinal of the western United States, was met at the Pennsylvania station at 1:35 p. m. today by the most Rev. Bernard J. Sheil, auxiliary bishop of Chicago. The cardinal, who appears to be in the best of health, was accompanied from Florida to New York by the Rt. Rev. George Casey.

Goes Immediately to Ship.

Cardinal Mundelein went immediately to his cabin on the Italian liner Rex, the sailing of which was delayed more than two hours awaiting his arrival. The Very Rev. Patrick Hayes and Dr. L. D. Moorhead of Chicago are making the voyage with the Chicago prelate.

Cardinal Dougherty, accompanied by the Rev. Salvatore M. Burgio, motored to New York from Philadelphia this morning and was among the first to greet Cardinal Mundelein at the ship.

The Rex is flying the Vatican state flag while the Italian flag at the stern is kept at half mast. The liner is scheduled to arrive in Naples next Saturday. Cardinal Mundelein and his party will motor from Naples to Rome.

Cardinals of the Americas form a small minority in the sacred college, whose membership at the moment is 62. Thirty-five of these are Italians. Besides the three in the United States, where there were four until the death of Cardinal Patrick Hayes of New York, the American members are Rodrigue Villeneuve, archbishop of Quebec, who already is in Rome; Sebastian Leme da Silviera Cintra, archbishop of Rio Janeiro, and James Copello, archbishop of Beunos Aires.

The cardinals from the United States are the heads of a hierarchy which includes sixteen additional archbishops, 112 bishops and 32,668 priests, who govern the spiritual welfare of more than 21,000,000 Catholics. It is said that the United States now contributes more revenue to the papal see than any other nation in the world.

Neither Cardinal Mundelein nor Cardinal Dougherty has received definite information on the starting time of the conclave. It will not be earlier than Feb. 25 or later than March 1.

HOUSE AND SENATE ADJOURN TOMORROW AS TRIBUTE TO POPE

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Leaders of congress today arranged to have both house and senate adjourn Monday after a brief session, as a tribute of respect to the late Pope Pius XI.

Catholic university here announced that as a memorial to the pope it was instituting a "national crusade for God in government." The Rt. Rev. Joseph Corrigan, rector, said American Catholics had been invited to pledge themselves to "defend the republic against atheistic propaganda" and to "maintain respect for rightly constituted authority."

City's Catholic Churches to Honor Pope Pius Today

Sermons in all Catholic churches of the city this morning will deal with the life of Pope Pius XI., and requiem masses will be offered throughout the formal period of mourning which ends on Wednesday when the dead pontiff is buried in Rome.

WILLIS CRABB, OUSTED HEAD OF BANK, INDICTED

Delavan Live Stock Dealer Accused with Him.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Willis W. Crabb, ousted president of the Tazewell County National bank of Delavan, Ill., was indicted by a federal grand jury here today on charges of misapplying bank funds and making false entries. He will be arraigned before Federal Judge Charles G. Briggle next Wednesday. He will remain at liberty under $10,000 bond.

Willis W. Crabb.

One of the two indictments against Crabb charges James G. Bailey, Delavan live stock dealer, with having aided Crabb in misapplication of $1,700 and making false entries of mortgage notes for more than $8,000. The other indictment against Crabb charges misapplication of bank funds by writing personal checks for from $5,000 to $7,000 and three instances of false entries totaling $11,000. Sums listed in the two indictments totaled $32,800, of which $26,500 allegedly was in false notes and entries.

Assigns Property to Trustee.

A few days after removal of Crabb from the presidency of the bank he assigned his personal fortune to a trustee for the benefit of the bank. He estimated his stock holdings and real estate to be worth $75,000. Bank officials said depositors would lose nothing.

According to one indictment against Crabb, misapplication of the bank's funds was started last March 19. This was nineteen days after Betty Collison Crabb, wife of Crabb's son, James, 22 years old, was shot to death in his Delavan home.

James Crabb said his wife shot herself after they had returned home from a gay party. Both were intoxicated. Later he changed his story and said she was shot accidentally.

Pays Son's Attorneys $3,000.

Young Crabb was tried on a charge of manslaughter and the jury disagreed. Then he was convicted of perjury and this case is on appeal before the Supreme court of Illinois.

J. M. Powers and W. J. Reardon defended young Crabb in the manslaughter and perjury trials. Two of the personal checks mentioned in the misapplication counts against the elder Crabb are for $1,750 and $1,250 and made payable to Powers and Reardon respectively. One false entry charge is that, although the discount register of the bank listed a promissory note for $7,500 against Mrs. Harriet B. Wayne, a cousin of Crabb, no such note was held.

Accusations against Bailey are that an overdraft of $1,167 was covered with a note for $3,962 signed W. E. Kreitzer, a fictitious name. On the same day Crabb is accused of having misapplied $1,302, $287, and $121 by drawing checks for the benefit of Bailey and himself. Crabb also is accused of having made a false entry last Dec. 30 by depositing Bailey's note for $4,150 with the bank when he knew Bailey was insolvent.

METHODISTS RAP ARMAMENT PLAN OF ROOSEVELT

President Roosevelt's armament program and his plan to fortify the island of Guam, were condemned yesterday in a telegram to the President from the Methodist peace commission, meeting at 740 Rush street. The telegram made public by the Rev. Charles F. Boss, head of the commission, complained that American foreign policy needs explanation.

"Respectfully but emphatically we express our opposition to the fortification of Guam, proposed increased appropriations for the army and navy and militarization of the Civilians' Conservation corps," the telegram stated. "We believe such opposition is growing in strength especially in the absence of a clearly defined foreign policy since the generalized statements now before American citizens do not clarify but confuse the issues."

Throng Sees Pope's Body Moved Into St. Peter's

[Associated Press Wirephoto.]

A dense crowd of mourners stood before St. Peter's cathedral, in Vatican City, yesterday as the body of Pope Pius XI. was taken there for the first of nine funeral services, to be held today. Many of those who gathered to see the pontiff in death had expected to receive his blessing today from an outside balcony of the cathedral. This picture was sent from Rome to London by wire and to New York by radio.

HERE ARE DEFINITIONS OF TERMS APPEARING IN VATICAN CITY NEWS

Terms used in connection with the death of Pope Pius XI. also will appear frequently in the news concerning selection of his successor. Definitions of some of these terms follow:

POPE. The head of the Roman Catholic church, referred to as the holy father. Derived from the Latin word papa, meaning father.

PONTIFF. High priest. Derived from the Latin "pontifex maximum." In early Roman times it referred to the priest who read omens from the entrails of sacrificial beasts.

CARDINAL. Designation of a prince of the church. The word comes from the color of the hat bestowed by the pope when the dignitary is created a cardinal. The college of cardinals elects the pope. It is limited to seventy—six cardinal bishops, fifty cardinal priests, and fourteen cardinal deacons. The three cardinals in the United States are cardinal priests.

ST. PETER'S cathedral. The word cathedral is from the Greek, meaning seat or throne of a religious dignitary. St. Peter's is the largest Christian church in the world. The dome rises 448 feet above Rome.

VATICAN. The name of one of the seven hills of Rome, on the west bank of the Tiber. The pope's private residence, St. Peter's cathedral, museums, art galleries, library, and Sistine chapel are on Vatican hill. They comprise Vatican City, temporal domain of the Catholic church. Vatican is probably derived from Latin "vates," meaning priest or prophet.

SISTINE CHAPEL. The pope's private chapel in the Vatican. It takes its name from Pope Sixtus IV. [1471-1484], who built it.

THE SWISS GUARD. The pope's personal bodyguard. It was established in 1510 A. D. by Pope Julius II. The guard of ninety is chosen from unmarried Swiss Catholics from the cantons of Lucerne and Zurich.

TRIES TO HANG SELF IN JAIL.

Frank Bridegh, 54 years old, a cattle buyer of Marengo, McHenry county, tried to hang himself yesterday in the Waukegan jail. He had been arrested at the request of Rockford authorities as a bad check suspect. He was revived and turned over to Rockford police.

BOMB BLASTS ON IRISH SHIP PERIL 1,000 RUGBY FANS

Seize 9 in Search for Terrorists.

Three bombs were set off in the third class saloon, but caused only trifling damage.

Seize Seven.

On arrival of the boat train at Paddington station Scotland Yard men took six men and a woman to a police station for questioning as part of the campaign to curb bombing terrorism laid to the outlawed Irish republican army.

At Twickenham, London suburb, detectives searched the stands for bombs before the game and required all persons carrying bags or parcels to submit to inspection. [Ireland won the game, 5 to 0.]

Plot to Blast London Bridge.

In London, river police arrested two men after receiving a report that terrorists were plotting to dynamite London bridge over the Thames.

Skegness police investigated the third fire in three weeks at a seaside vacation camp, where damage was estimated at $200,000.

HOT VALENTINES? MAYBE! ANYWAY, MAIL BOX BURNS

Oak Park's dashing fire department puffed last night to Pleasant street and Oak Park avenue and found smoke pouring out of a mail box. Problem: How to put out the flames without ruining a lot of letters with water. Solution: A postoffice employé was summoned to open the box. Loss: About six valentines. Theory on origin: Either a mischiefmaker did it or the ardent sentiments on the valentines caused spontaneous combustion.

30-30 JACK SEES CIVILIZATION AND STAKES NO CLAIM

Thirty-Thirty Jack Pratt is in town. He likes Chicago. He likes the tall buildings and the beautiful girls. But he's heading north as soon as he can get away. And when he hits Wrangell again there'll be the biggest party you ever saw, with free beer in every saloon in town.

Jack Pratt.

Thirty-Thirty went to Alaska in 1898 and is a real sourdough. This is his first trip to "civilization" in thirty-eight years [and you can have it, he says]. He's still a pioneer at heart, despite his 66 years. His name comes from the fact that he carries a 30-30 rifle, where most men use six-shooters.

Jack has been a deep-sea diver, prospector, game hunter, "mountie," fisherman, trapper, saloon-keeper, and government agent. He and Tex Rickard were partners in a Nome saloon, and he knew Rex Beach, Robert W. Service, "Tex" Guinan, and Jack London. He now lives in a cabin on Anan creek, about forty miles from Wrangell.

Two things he finds very funny in Chicago: The lack of horses and men wearing derby hats. He thinks derbies are old fashioned.

RETURN SUICIDE VERDICT.

A coroner's jury held yesterday that Frank Pietsch, 71 years old, who shot and killed himself Friday at 2349 Cleveland avenue, committed suicide while despondent over unemployment.

U. S. WAR PLANES RANKED AS BEST BY AIR EXPERTS

Nation, Sixth in Strength, Moves to Expand.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—United States military aircraft are considered by experts to be the best in the world, although the nation is behind other powers in actual air strength.

America ranks sixth in air strength today, according to the most authoritative information available. However, America will step forward under the expansion program which will give the army 5,500 planes and the navy 3,000 planes.

At present the army is short of its authorization of 2,320 planes and the navy is not up to its authorization of 2,000. It is expected that these authorizations will be passed by June 30.

Russia Believed in Lead.

Today the United States is led in air strength by Russia, Germany, Italy, France, and England. While nothing of absolute accuracy is known about the strength of Russia and Germany, it is believed that the soviets have more than 7,550 planes and Germany has 6,000 planes and will have 7,000 by the end of the year.

Italy has about 5,000 planes. France has about 4,500 and Great Britain is building up from 4,000 planes. Expansion is proceeding in these countries at a fast clip.

In each of these nations the design and performance of the planes are closely guarded secrets. The United States has recently clamped down secrecy about its air operations.

Various reports have come from abroad of superships having been developed by this or that power. Experts consider these to be exaggerated, and are convinced that the American planes are as good as, if not better than, anything in the air in Europe. Germany is considered the only rival of America in design and performance of aircraft.

The Germans are stressing speed and armament, and are employing various plastics to this end. All German planes are being designed for an air life of 40 hours. To this end strength has been weakened and life shortened.

Europe Buys U. S. Planes.

American planes are being built for a life of four years. American designers do not believe the plastics will carry the strain necessary for fighting. Experts feel, however, American planes will measure up to anything the German air force has.

The fact that the British and the French are buying planes in this country is seen as acknowledging the superiority of American planes, particularly in view of the fact that these powers have more accurate knowledge of what is going on in Germany, as they maintain extensive intelligence departments.

The United States has six new types of planes, experts believe, that outrate any of their class in the world. These are the B-15 bomber, the YB-17 bomber, the FM-1 fighter, the P-36 pursuit, the A-18 attack, and the O-47 observation planes.

Airplanes, like other military weapons, are designed for specific jobs. There are three general classes of planes universally recognized. They are the fighter, or pursuit plane; the bomber, and the observation or reconnaissance plane. Each type is designed and constructed to give the best service in its own field.

The fighter, or pursuit plane, is generally regarded as strictly a defensive machine. Fighters are designed for great speed, maneuverability, and the carrying of heavy guns. Usually one man flies the airplane and fires the guns, whether they be quick firing small cannon, or heavy machine guns.

Reconnaissance Plane New.

Bombardment planes must be capable of relatively high speeds, able to carry large loads of bombs and fuel for long distance flights and sufficient crew to defend the machine from attacking pursuit planes. Modern bombers are almost as speedy as fighters, some having speeds of more than 250 miles an hour, but they are not highly maneuverable. They carry projectiles to an objective and drop them upon it.

A recent development in the United States army is the reconnaissance plane. This is a very long range observation plane assigned to scout for the very heavy long range bombardment squadrons. At present, in the United States, bombardment planes carrying extra fuel instead of bombs are used for this purpose.

During the world war all the combating forces used planes to attack troops on the ground. This was called "ground strafing." After the war the United States began the development of a new air arm, now called attack, the duty of which is to assault with small bombs and machine gun fire ground forces, strong points, moving columns of troops or supply trains, and similar targets.

American attack planes have special low altitude motors and carry four machine guns, aimed so that they rake the ground while the plane flies level. No other nation today has such special ground attacking planes.

The B-15 bomber is the largest fighting airship in the world. It has a wing span of 140 feet, and, ready for action, will weigh 75,000 pounds. The craft is powered with four 1,400 horse power Pratt & Whitney Twin Wasp Senior engines capable of a top speed of about 300 miles an hour and a cruising radius of 6,000 miles. The ceiling is above 30,000 feet.

The plane will carry small quick firing cannon and bombs in a military load of about four tons. It will be operated by a crew of nine.

The YB-17 and the YB-17A, a slightly improved model, are the "flying fortress" planes. These are powered with four 1,000 horse power Wright Cyclone engines capable of a top speed of 300 miles. The planes have a wing spread of 105 feet, carry a crew of from six to nine and five machine guns, as well as bombs. This type has a ceiling of more than 30,000 feet.

No other nation is known to have bombers of equal performance, although several nations possess secret models of which experts have no data.

Performance Held Secret.

The Curtiss P-36 pursuit plane is powered by a 1,200 horse power Pratt & Whitney 14 cylinder engine. Its performance is a secret, but it is known that it can do better than 300 miles an hour.

Other nations, notably Germany, are said to have 400 mile an hour pursuit planes. Whether this is so or not, experts consider the P-36 the best of its class. America is also developing planes capable of greater speeds.

The Bell FM-1 fighter was designed for fighting aircraft which might be developed to fight the "flying fortress" class. The plane is powered by two Allison 12 cylinder Vee supercharged 1,000 horse power motors, and can overhaul any air target, according to the experts. It strikes with six guns, more powerful air armament than any other fighter, and carries small bombs. Details of performance are secret.

The Curtiss A-18 attack plane is a twin engine plane, powered with two 930 horse power Wright Cyclone engines, which is believed to be the largest and fastest attack plane yet developed. Details on performance are secret.

The North American O-47 observation plane is powered by 850 horse power Wright Cyclone engines. It is a three seater plane with a long range, two way radios, camera equipment, and armament. Details of performance are secret. There is an A and an improved B model.

Other First Line Fighters.

Other American planes, not so new as those listed above, but still considered first line fighting craft, are:

Seversky P-35 single seat fighter, Pratt & Whitney Twin Wasp engine, 950 h. p., 300 m. p. h., span 35 feet, ceiling 28,000 feet.

NOVACHORD

ANOTHER milestone of musical history has been set by the Novachord. By means of a series of vacuum tubes and a conventional keyboard, it produces the most beautiful tones you ever have heard . . . Tones closely akin to the Piano, the Organ, Violin and Cello, the Flute, Guitar, Cornet and Harpsichord, as well as a variety of new tones and tone combinations. The transition from one to the other is easily controlled by a series of knobs. A pianist of average ability can immediately create Novachord music that far exceeds his most ardent hopes. The Novachord is ready to play when attached to an electric outlet.

KELLY PROMISES AID TO MAKE CITY AIR BUILDING HUB

Tells Natural Advantages to Manufacturers.

Mayor Kelly yesterday promised his aid and coöperation to the Chicago Association of Commerce in the movement to make Chicago a center of the aviation manufacturing industry. In a letter to Oscar G. Mayer, association president, the mayor listed the city's advantages as a site for aircraft manufacture, and said:

"The government is planning to increase the size of its air force. This will bring new activity in the aviation industry. Now is the time to emphasize Chicago's advantages in this field."

Cites Many Advantages.

Among these advantages he listed: Illinois stands fourth among the states in the number of aircraft [approximately 663 certified, 25 uncertified, and 10 gliders]; the state has 56 airports and landing fields; the United States army maintains fields at Rantoul and Belleville; the navy has one at Great Lakes training station; Chicago has an aeronautic school and two others which give instruction in mechanics, the University of Illinois, Northwestern university, Armour institute, and other institutions provide young men skilled in various phases of the aircraft field.

"Still another advantage is Chicago's low taxes," Mayor Kelly said. "They are lower in proportion to population than in any other city of 500,000 or more inhabitants in the nation, with one exception. It costs less in taxes, fees, and licenses to do business in Chicago."

Chicago Lags Behind.

Statistics on aircraft manufacturing show that Chicago does not have its proper share of this industry, the mayor said. Only one plant, located in Clearing, just outside of Chicago, is doing business in Illinois today. It occupies only one acre, compared with 440 acres occupied by the factories of the other thirty-eight leading airplane producers throughout the rest of the country.

A delegation from the Association of Commerce recently went to Washington to seek the war department's consideration of Chicago as a logical site for building army airplanes. It was pointed out that Chicago is the commercial air capital, being served by eight major airlines. Chicago is also ideal because of its central location, they said.

Chicago will observe aeronautical day March 1, at which time Assistant Secretary of War Louis Johnson will address representatives of Chicago industry and meet representatives of aircraft manufacturing corporations who have been invited to be here.

Police Asked to Look Out for Wisconsin "Bad Man"

Chicago police were asked last night to be on the lookout for Leo Kurowski, 43 years old, of Green Bay, Wis., who is believed heading here armed with a shotgun and two revolvers. The message from the sherif at Green Bay said Kurowski is accompanied by a woman not his wife. He might be dangerous, the sherif warned. Kurowski left Green Bay after a quarrel with neighbors, who called the authorities.

Mystery Pursuit Plane Crashes After Setting Record

After a transcontinental flight that probably exceeded the performance of any other military ship in the world, this plane crashed at Mitchel field, New York, yesterday. Lieut. Ben S. Kelsey flew the 2,400 miles from March field, Riverside, Cal., at a speed of approximately 340 miles an hour. He was slightly injured in the accident. The plane, which cost $80,000, was demolished. This picture was made in Dayton, O., as the plane paused there.

ARYANS WHO BUY JEWS' PROPERTY MUST SPLIT GAIN

Nazis Ask 70% of Profit on Any Bargains.

BY SIGRID SCHULTZ.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

BERLIN, Feb. 11.—Detailed regulations for the sale of Jewish businesses were issued today by Nazi officials. They stipulated that "there is no reason to pay a Jewish owner a price higher than the present value of his business."

Aryan purchasers seeking get-rich-quick possibilities, however, were dismayed to learn that they must hand over to the treasury a sum equivalent to 70 per cent of the difference between a bargain purchase price paid for a Jewish business and the actual value of the business under normal conditions.

The new regulations stated that there is no desire "for an enrichment of private persons or the complete devastation of Jewish property." Jews must be left a certain amount of cash to finance their emigration, to meet their obligations and to cover their living expenses, Nazis pointed out.

Shopkeepers Must Sell.

The only Jews at present compelled to dispose of their businesses are shopkeepers, tradesmen and market dealers. When all these have sold their holdings, Jewish wholesale dealers and industrial owners likewise will be ordered to sell.

For the present Jewish land owners are not compelled to dispose of their land provided it is not used for agricultural purposes or forestry. Jewish welfare organizations and organizations "which help on emigration" also are to be left alone.

The new regulations termed it important that titles to patents and copyrights be transferred from Jews to Aryans—by compulsion if necessary.

Order Jews to List Wealth.

ROME, Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—The Fascist government tonight ordered all Italian Jews to register the exact amount of property they own and to report details of their industrial and commercial activities.

The order reminiscent of action by Germany early in the Nazi anti-Semitic campaign — was published in the official gazette and is effective immediately.

The decree consisted of eighty articles signed on Feb. 9 by King Victor Emmanuel. Italian Jews living abroad were instructed to turn over the information required to the nearest Italian consulate. Jews failing to comply with the government orders will be liable to fines ranging from 500 lire [$25] to 10,000 lire [$500].

JAP TROOPS KILL "THOUSANDS" IN GUERRILLA WAR

SHANGHAI, Feb. 11.—(AP)—A Japanese army spokesman tonight asserted "several thousand" Chinese guerrilla fighters were killed during the last week in operations on a wide front in Central China.

Battles with the Chinese irregulars, who are resisting attempts of the Japanese to consolidate their hold on conquered areas, included clashes in the environs of Nanking, former capital of China which the Japanese hold. Other clashes took place midway between Shanghai and Nanking.

Efforts to establish contact with sixty-five foreigners, including twelve Americans, stranded in Kuling, still were fruitless. Kuling is a mountain resort in the line of a projected Japanese attack.

Japanese naval officers have been assigned to fly to Kiukiang, Yangtze river port near Kuling, to plan the removal of the foreigners.

Ministers May Seek to Save Life of Condemned Slayer

REGINA, Sask., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The Regina Ministerial association was understood today to be considering advisability of asking for commutation of the death sentence imposed on Harry Heipel for the slaying of J. A. Kaeser, Moosomin farmer. Heipel is scheduled to be hanged April 26. He was arrested in Oregon, Ill., last November.

4 Die as British Air Force Plane Hits Building in Fog

BRIGHTON, England, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Four persons were killed today when a royal air force plane, caught in a fog, crashed against an apartment house and set it afire. The pilot was killed, as were a woman and two children who were playing in a nursery in the house. Several onlookers were injured.

NAZIS SEEK TO TAKE OVER LIECHTENSTEIN; CONFER WITH PRINCE

LONDON, Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—The Exchange Telegraph agency reported from Zurich, Switzerland, today that negotiations between German authorities and Prince Franz Joseph II. of Liechtenstein are in progress with the view of bringing the principality under the domination of Germany.

Liechtenstein [black area], which Nazis seek to dominate. Vaduz is the capital.

The agency asserted that Germany threatened to expropriate the prince's large estates in Austria and Czecho-Slovakia in order to bring about the "anschluss." Liechtenstein covers an area of about sixty-five square miles between Switzerland and Austria. It has a population of 12,000, and is a member of the Swiss postal union. It uses Swiss francs as money.

The house of Liechtenstein acquired the principality from the remnants of the holy Roman empire in 1699 and 1712. It obtained political independence in 1866 after being attached first to the French empire and later to the German federation.

Envoy Probes Paris Ouster of 26 Nazis and Arrest of 3

PARIS, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The arrest of three German newspaper correspondents by French authorities, and expulsion of twenty-six German residents of Paris today caused Count Johannes von Welczeck, German ambassador, to ask Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet about the charges against them. It was learned the three persons arrested included the correspondent of the Boersenzeitung, a Berlin newspaper, and his wife. Police said the three were arrested for "activities in no way related to their professional duties." Officers also disclosed a raid on the Paris office of another Berlin newspaper, the Deutsche Allgemeine Zeitung.

RUMANIA SEIZES YOUNG FASCISTS IN ASSASSIN PLOT

Charges Conspiracy to Kill Vice Premier.

BUCHAREST, Rumania, Feb. 11.—(AP)—A police staement late tonight disclosed that several young Fascist Iron Guardists had been arrested for participation in an unsuccessful conspiracy to assassinate King Carol's new vice premier, Armand Calinescu.

It was said they had plotted to avenge the death of their leader, Corneliu Zelea Codreanu, who was shot last Nov. 30 in what was described as an attempt to escape prison.

A dispatch from Budapest, Hungary, based on private advices filtering through Rumanian censorship, said the Rumanian government appeared to have embarked on a finish fight with the terroristic, Fascist inclined Iron Guard, long outlawed in Rumania. Private reports said police, uncovering and crushing an anti-government plot, had arrested sixty army officers, including several generals. This particular report lacked official confirmation from Bucharest.]

Seized After Battle.

Some of the prisoners, aged 20 to 26, were captured after a pistol battle last Wednesday in which police surrounded a Bucharest house serving as Iron Guard headquarters.

The police statement said a policeman, shot in the head and chest, was in a serious condition following the gun fight, and that several others were slightly wounded.

The prisoners, described as confessed iron guard conspirators, plotted to kill Calinescu on Jan. 6, the statement said. That was the day King Carol traditionally participates in the picturesque ceremony known as "The Blessing of the Waters."

In "The Blessing of the Waters" the king and his ministers march to the Dimbovita river. The king tosses a wooden cross into the water and the citizens scramble for it. The retriever returns it to the monarch.

Heavy Guard Foils Plot.

The confessions were said to have disclosed that elaborate police measures to protect Carol on that day outwitted bombers and sharpshooters who hoped to launch an assault along the line of march.

Undaunted by that failure, it was said, several of the conspirators planned another attempt against Calinescu. In the house where they were seized the police found more than 1,000 rifle and pistol cartridges, several hand grenades and seventeen pounds of dynamite.

Most of the youths arrested in the plot were provincial students who were said to have come to the capital after the inner council of the Iron Guard decided to avenge Codreanu's death.

Calinescu, who was minister of interior at the time Codreanu was slain, was generally held responsible for orders leading to the shooting of the Fascist leader and 13 others as they were being transferred from prison to Bucharest for questioning. Since then he has become known as the "strong man" of the cabinet. He was made vice premier on Feb. 1. Miron Cristea, patriarch of the Rumanian church, remained in the premiership. Cristea is 71 years old.

Attacks Radio Station.

The latest manifestation of terrorism was an attack on the Bucharest radio station last night. The Rumanian government said one of the attacking group was killed and 15 were arrested after on exchange of fire between the terrorists and soldiers.

There was nothing in the government's statement on this incident to indicate whether the attackers were Iron Guardists, but police asknowledged the possibility that there were political motives in the attack.

DR. BENES FEARS APPEASEMENT IS CERTAIN TO FAIL

New York, Feb. 11.—[Special.]—The appeasement policy of the dynamic states serves to postpone war, but there is no decrease in the number of those who believe such a policy ultimately will fail, Dr. Eduard Benes, former president of Czecho-Slovakia, said in an address tonight at a dinner of the University of Chicago clubs.

Dr. Benes arrived from England on Thursday and will go to Chicago on March 14 to deliver a series of lectures at the University of Chicago.

In his address tonight Dr. Benes indicated he does not believe war will break out in Europe in the near future. He warned, however, that it would be a mistake to underestimate the present chaos in Europe and the probable effect of this chaos on world peace. He said Czecho-Slovakia was not the first—nor will it be the last—to suffer dismemberment.

GERMANS INVITE FRENCH TO HOLD PARLEY IN BERLIN

Seek to Discuss Europe's Problems.

(Turn to today's Graphic section for another instalment of "I Married a Nazi," by Margaret Porter Reinke.)

PARIS, Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—The German government today invited Foreign Minister Georges Bonnet of France to go to Berlin to talk over general European peace problems with Joachim von Ribbentrop, German foreign minister, the foreign office announced.

Central Europe, Spain and Italy's aspirations were mentioned as chief problems suggested for discussion.

It was said that Robert Coulondre, new French ambassador to Berlin, came to Paris especially several days ago with a report of talks he had had with Von Ribbentrop. The latter then emphasized that a conference with Bonnet logically would follow the recent signature of a French-German good neighbor treaty, which Von Ribbentrop came to Paris to sign.

Count Renews Invitation.

Count Johannes von Welczeck, the German ambassador, went to the foreign office this morning and renewed this invitation, it was said.

France was understood to be consulting the British government on the proposed talks because of the desire to keep all French-British continental policies coördinated.

France has asked Japan to explain the object, duration, and nature of its occupation yesterday of Hainan island, off the south coast of China and opposite French Indo-China, the foreign office asserted.

The representations were made through the French ambassador in Tokio to the Japanese foreign office, it was said.

French Accused by Tokio.

France has consulted the British government regarding the occupation, considered of great importance to powers with interests in the far east. The French and British decided to adopt a common policy of protest if inquiry shows that the occupation is likely to be permanent, it was understood.

The French government was reported to believe that the occupation was effected to aid Japan in controling ship movements and preventing China from receiving arms. Japan persistently accused the French government of tolerating a clandestine trafic in arms to China despite denials as persistent—the last one today. It was asserted in Paris that no arms were reaching China across the Indo-Chinese frontier.

Miss Barker assumed control Nov. 22 of a fortune left in trust by her father, the late Jesse Barker, twenty-one years ago. Barker, a banker and scion of one of the oldest and wealthiest families of Peoria, Ill., died Oct. 7, 1917. When Miss Barker becomes 25 she is to receive another $1,500,000.

A MAN FOR THE AGES

By CALEB

NOTHING that anyone today can write, say, or think upon the subject of Abraham Lincoln would in any way affect his historic stature. Perhaps there are but two other names in the whole world — one identified with religion, the other with literature—about which there has grown up a greater body of comment and interpretation . . . and Lincoln, in comparison, is still almost a contemporary!

Yet there is always justification for even so transient a tribute as this, in the fact that on the anniversary of his birth we need not so much to talk or write about him again, as to feel again, and feel deeply, the few, fixed principles for which he stood. Principles which, in final essence, can be condensed almost actually into two: one a basic ideal for government, and one a lifetime law for personal relations.

Can you say what those two principles were? After a little reflection, it is reasonably certain that you can. For the governmental one was of the simplest. Unity! And the other, as to personal relations—Humanity! Critical study of his speeches and acts as lawyer, candidate for office, office-holder . . . ultimately as President . . . show that he held in his mind and heart but one picture of his country through every waking moment: that of a Union. Many misinterpreted his Civil War issues, thinking his primary interest was to abolish slavery. That, however, was secondary, always, to preservation of the Union.

Equally ran, like a golden thread through all his individual relations, his second principle—of humanity. "Human," with Lincoln, was always spelled with an "e" at the end. It is doubtful if ever any ruler brooded over the sufferings of a nation, or made their collective sorrows his own, as did the Great Emancipator. Whether it was the pardoning of a young sentry asleep at his post, the timely word of cheer to a harassed general, the moving lines over a mother's loss of her sons, the healing sympathy in a few immortal sentences delivered at a battlefield—compassionate gentleness was a principle as definitely Lincolnian as national solidarity; and he would venture everything in the vindication of either. . . .

As Stanton, standing by Lincoln's deathbed in the little house across from Ford's Theater, realized that the end had come, he exclaimed: "There lies a man for the ages!" And the prophetic utterance has become a worthy summation of a superb career. Wherever noble men and women cherish those qualities which make great peoples, governed by great rulers, the life and works of Abraham Lincoln can no more perish from the earth than the forces that hold it in leash to the sun, or the laws by which its tides obey the moon.

Cops and Victims Arm to Make Hash of Him.

Hamburger Henry had $10 to spend last night and police had his 14th robbery to plague them. There was talk at the detective bureau of outfitting a special hamburger squad to hunt for Henry, with mustard, piccalilly, and a slice of raw onion as lures.

Hamburgers with Onions.

The police were certain they couldn't tempt the bandit with coffee. Henry had to drink six cups of java yesterday morning while he waited for the customers to leave a hamburger palace at 1408 Madison street. After 2 hours and 45 minutes the coast was clear. Henry drew a creased and worn brown paper sack from his pants pocket. He unfolded it and held it out in his left hand to the manager, William Reid.

Gets "Tired of the Joint."

"Put the dough in there and hurry up. I'm tired of this joint," said the robber. With his right hand he pulled a small black automatic pistol from inside his shirt. Reid gave up the ten dollars. Henry walked out, neglecting to pay for the six coffees.

Since Dec. 13 the paper bag bandit has visited ten hamburger stands, paying two calls at two places to raise his total to twelve. For variety he twice robbed a candy shop, giving him a 14 count.

To date Henry has collected $187.95 in his bag. This would buy 1,879½ triple jumbo super de luxe hamburgers, with or without onion and encased in rolls. And Henry has merely scratched the surface of the field. There are an estimated 200 hamburgeries in Chicago.

Henry used to be known as Hamburger Harry until he called up the detective bureau one night and requested a correction. He later thanked them for setting newspapers right.

Here's What He Looks Like.

He's between 28 and 30 years old, stands about 5 feet 8 inches and weighs 150 to 160 pounds. He has reddish sandy hair and a florid face. His voice is harsh, especially when he wants his bag filled. At most places he was wearing a brown zipper jacket and battered light fedora.

"That's a mean little black automatic he packs, too," said Lee Gossage of 4712 Madison street.

"He switched from a fedora to a cap in our place," said Bert Mieure, 3157 North Cicero avenue, a two-time loser, "But it was Henry, all right."

"I was on my knees reaching inside the icebox when he pulled his gun, told me to get up and put the money in his bag damn quick," recalled Ted Taylor, 17 South Western avenue. This stand also was robbed twice by the bag bandit.

In No Hurry to Rob.

Henry usually enjoys a few hamburgers and some coffee before he turns to business. He gets around, too. He has also dropped in at 3346 Lawrence avenue, 3150 Lawrence avenue, 4804 North avenue, 3218 North Clark street, and 4045 Milwaukee avenue. The candy shop he robbed twice in a week is at 176 North State street.

The other place on Henry's list is 4054 North avenue. He got $20 there on Jan. 28. He would be wiser not to return, for Manager Tony Strukley is waiting for him with a squirrel gun he once used out in Oklahoma.

"Hamburger Henry, eh?" muttered Mr. Strukley last night. "I'll make hash out of him!"

ARMY SERGEANT CASHIERED OVER NAZI SPY PLOT

Accused of Helping Nazis Photograph Guns.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—An American army sergeant who was a wartime aviation companion of Field Marshal Hermann Wilhelm Goering, No. 2 Nazi, was discharged Feb. 1 without honor for giving evidence of undesirable habits, and traits of character, it was learned today.

He is Max Mueller, formerly of the 44th air corps reconnaisance squadron. He was brought from the Canal Zone, where the squadron was stationed, to stand before a trial board last month. Mueller was accused of helping two young Germans, who have since been convicted of spying, to take pictures of canal fortifications. He also was accused of voicing Nazi sympathies.

Quizzed by G-Men.

Since his discharge Mueller has been in the custody here of department of justice agents, who have been seeking to connect him with a spy ring believed to be operating in this country.

Mueller insisted he merely was helping two friends and was not betraying his country. He is reported to have acknowledged an interest in Naziism, but said it was only academic and came from following the career of Goering, his former fellow flyer. Mueller denied that he was a Nazi agent.

Mueller, who is 41 years old, came to America after the war and enlisted in the United States army in 1923. He was transferred later to the air corps and sent to Albrook field, Canal Zone.

Aircraft Guns Photographed.

Mueller fell under suspicion when it was learned that he had guided two Germans—Ernst Kuhrig, 29 years old, and Hans Schackow, 26—into the reservation at Fort Randolph, Canal Zone.

The two were permitted to enter on Mueller's word that they carried no cameras. Later it was learned that they took pictures of anti-aircraft batteries and coast defense guns. They were convicted in Cristobal of espionage and sentenced to serve two years at hard labor.

Mueller was brought before an army board at Governor's Island, N. Y. He was given what is known in the army as a "blue ticket" discharge, which is a step less reprehensible than a dishonorable discharge.

INDIANA DOCTORS OFFER PLAN TO CUT RELIEF COSTS

Act Following Disclosure of Medical Scandal.

Swift action to reduce the cost of medical care for reliefers in the three principal townships of Lake county, Indiana, was proposed yesterday at a meeting of the Lake County Medical society. A charge that nineteen physicians in the townships have drawn an average annual income of $10,000 each was made Wednesday by a governor's investigating commission.

Township supervisors of North [Hammond], Calumet [Gary], and Hobart townships will be asked to place control of the relief medical care program in the hands of the Lake County Medical society.

Two Methods Proposed.

1. Reduced fees for relief clients. [A flat percentage deduction would be made from the lowest average fees now charged for paying patients.]

2. An annual lump sum payment of relief funds to the society, which would guarantee adequate medical care for reliefers. [In the case of each township, the sum would be less than has been spent for this purpose.]

The society would assure a free choice of physician to the reliefers. One of the goals cited at the meeting yesterday is the return of these patients to their own family physicians. It has been charged that certain physicians are favored under the present setup.

Would Enforce Highest Ethics.

"Most of the reduction in cost would be made by halting abuses," said Rollen W. Waterson, executive secretary of the society. "A physician may make one call or a dozen in any case, he may decide that one X-ray or five are needed. The society would see to it that the highest ethics govern the practice under its program."

On Thursday, after completing a survey of its members, the society will begin to contact township trustees to ask acceptance of the program.

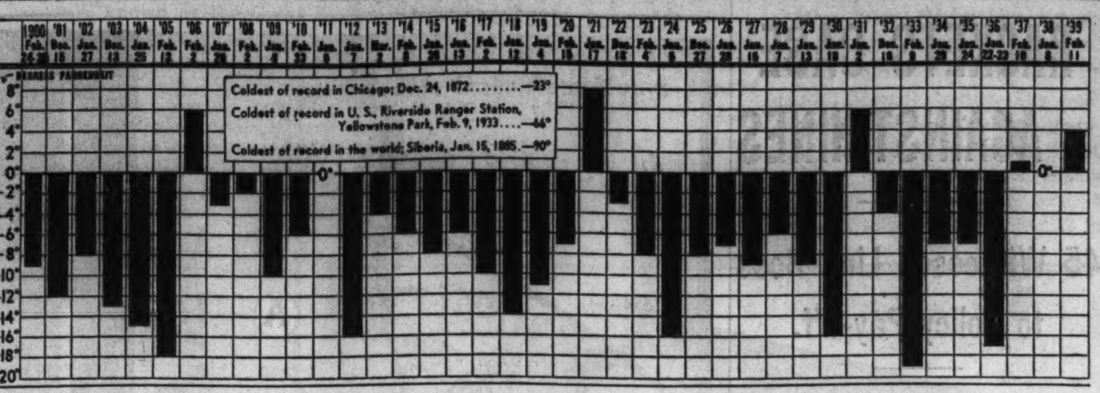
Yesterday's meeting, held in Hammond, was attended by representatives of organized physicians in Whiting, East Chicago, Hammond, Gary, Hobart, and Crown Point.

The report of the governor's commission, which attacks many other phases of relief administration besides that of medical care, will be placed before the grand jury at Crown Point. County Prosecutor Felix A. Kaul said the grand jury may then decide whether to make its own inquiry.

ILL, CARPENTER HANGS SELF.

Apparently despondent over ill health, Harry McCastland, 58 years old, a retired carpenter, hanged himself yesterday in the basement of his home at 7914 Champlain avenue.

Record of Forty Years' Coldest Days



So far 1939 is one of the five years among the last forty in which the temperature has not dropped to zero in Chicago. The lowest temperature in each twelvemonth since 1899 is shown.

Goes to 4° Above

Chicagoans shivered in the early hours yesterday when the temperature dropped to 4 degrees above zero at 7:30 a. m.—the coldest it has been in the city this year. By 9 p. m. the temperature had risen to 20 degrees, and H. A. Downs, government forecaster, said today would be fair and warmer. The city's cold wave, he said, has shifted to the north and east. A study of weather bureau records showed that the coldest day Chicago has experienced was Dec. 24, 1872, when the temperature dropped to 23 degrees below zero. Since 1900 the coldest day in the city was Feb. 9, 1933, when the temperature reached 19 degrees below zero.

PHYSICIAN DROPS DEAD IN DEBATE ON MERCY KILLING

The debate at the weekly meeting of the Anthro-Cosmo society in a lodge hall in the Capitol building last night was on the question of legalizing mercy deaths in the United States. The society is the successor of the old Anthropological society, organized in 1893, and the Cosmopolitan society, about as old.

Dr. Laird T. Hites, 5753 Dorchester avenue, a teacher at the Central Y. M. C. A. college, presented both sides of the question and then Chairman Louis Kolodkin, 4323 Lake Park avenue, invited comment from among the audience of fifty to sixty persons.

Dr. Alexander W. Marmor, 63 years old, 4407 North Kedzie avenue, a physician and heart electrologist, arose. He was against mercy deaths, he said. He cited two cases in which doctors had given up hope and which he had helped cure.

"There was a third case," he said, "a woman given up as hopeless because of heart disease. I cured her——"

Suddenly Dr. Marmor collapsed in the midst of his speech. Fellow doctors hurried over. They pronounced him dead of a heart attack.

DESPONDENT WOMAN CUTS WRISTS.

Despondent over separation from her husband and loneliness, Mrs. Patricia Miller, 25 years old, slashed her wrists five times last night in her basement flat at 2134 Cleveland avenue. It was said at Augustana hospital she would recover.

DEATH HAS A 9TH INNING LEAD, BUT BAT BOY IS BRAVE

Fights a Rare Disease That Dooms Him.

Death is creeping slowly through his bones. Surgeons hold that he has only a week, or perhaps ten days, to live. But Frank Mizia, 12 years old, victim of a rare bone disease, is not looking forward to the grave. He is looking backward to the sunny summer days, when he was mascot and batboy for a semi-pro baseball team.

Frank lies on a bed in County hospital. He has been there since Nov. 1. All that medical science can encompass has been done for him. Gen. Manus McCloskey, the hospital superintendent, has seen to it that he has every comfort.

Everybody Is Kind

The boy is appreciative. His body is failing, but his mental condition is good. Everybody, he murmured yesterday, is kind. But his real interest is in the dark sweater with the brave emblem of the coal company that sponsored the baseball team. That must be always on his bed when it is not around his shoulders.

A few days ago Frank wrote his mother, Mrs. Veronica Mizia of 8221 Escanaba avenue, a letter. "No matter what happens to me," he told her, "don't worry. I was a good batboy and your nicest son."

Mrs. Mizia wept when she got the message. She is at Frank's bedside almost constantly.

Mother Tells Her Grief.

"If you could only have seen him as he was in the summer," she said. "A big, strong boy, and so good. And so crazy about the baseball team. I can hardly bear the thought that he must die."

The disease which is slowly killing Frank was described by Dr. George Kraft, resident bone specialist, at the hospital.

"All his bone tissue is being replaced by tumor tissue," the doctor said. "It is hard, but not as hard as bone. The condition is known as osteogenic sarcoma. It has now attacked the legs, thighs, pelvis, arms, jaws, and skull. The metabolism of the body has been disrupted and death is almost certain.

Disease's Cause Uncertain.

"The disease is rare, but not unprecedented; we have seen other cases, but never one in which the progress was so extensive or so rapid. Frank was injured playing football in October, but we are not certain this was the cause of the trouble.

"We are doing what we can to keep him happy. He is conscious and in good spirits, and I think he still believes he will get well."

X-ray pictures, examined yesterday, convinced Dr. Kraft and his consultants that no miracle will happen in the case, they said.

INFLUENZA CASES RISING; 61 MORE REPORTED IN CITY

A continued rise in the number of influenza cases in Chicago was reported yesterday by Dr. Robert A. Black, acting president of the board of health. In the 24 hours ending at 9 a. m. 61 new cases were reported, bringing the total for February to 181.

Fifty-two new cases of pneumonia were reported, putting this total for the month at 353. This was below the figure for the same period last year. while the influenza figure was higher.

No action toward closing the schools was contemplated by Supt. William H. Johnson. Tomorrow will be a school holiday, and it is planned to resume classes as scheduled on Tuesday. Twenty boys were reported ill of influenza at the Bishop Quarter Parochial Military school, 605 Lake street, Oak Park.

It Seems Love's Hottest at 10 Degrees Below Zero

Omaha, Neb., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Below zero weather may be an antidote for divorce. Yesterday only one couple applied to district court for divorce. On Fridays, default hearing days, 15 to 20 decrees are sought ordinarily.

[The United States weather bureau reported Omaha's nondivorce temperature on Friday was 10 degrees below zero.]

POLICE FIRE ON MANDALAY MOB; 11 ARE KILLED

MANDALAY, Burma, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Eleven persons were killed and nineteen injured yesterday when military police fired into a riotous mob, an official statement disclosed today.

A crowd of 20,000 conducted a demonstration in defiance of a government ban on public assemblies and disrupted the tranquility of this city of 134,950 population, known the world over through Kipling's "Road to Mandalay."

The demonstrators wrecked numerous shops and refused to disperse until the police fired upon them.

DEWEY CLOSES RACKETS CASE AGAINST HINES

45 Witnesses Link Boss to Policy Pay-off.

BY WILLIAM FULTON.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

New York, Feb. 11.—[Special.]—District Attorney Thomas E. Dewey today rested the state's case against Tammany Leader James J. Hines after tightening the last links of evidence to show that the Democratic chieftain associated with the late notorious gangster, Dutch Schultz.

The state has presented 45 witnesses—policemen, politicians, underworld characters, bookmakers, former pals of the defendant—to support charges that Hines furnished political protection for the policy racket. The Tammany boss is being tried for violation of the state lottery law.

As the state rested, Lloyd Paul Stryker, chief of defense counsel, arose to announce he will move to dismiss the indictment on the ground no case had been made out under the law. Judge Charles C. Nott Jr. set aside an hour on Monday to hear the defense arguments.

Similar Move Halted.

In the first Hines trial last fall a similar move was denied by Tammany Judge Ferdinand Pecora, who later declared a mistrial on a technicality. If the motion is denied, Stryker will start presentation of the defense case.

Stryker is the son of the late Melancthon Woolsey Stryker, pastor of the Fourth Presbyterian church in Chicago for seven years. He left the pastorate to become president of Hamilton college in 1892. Lloyd Paul Stryker was born in Chicago.

The Chicago minister's son was graduated from Hamilton college and then obtained his legal education at New York law school. He was admitted to the bar in 1908. Although one of New York's best known trial lawyers, his name does not often appear in print. He served as an assistant district attorney under Charles Whitman from 1910 to 1912. Since entering private practice he has become unique in legal circles in that he has no partner. As counsel for the aldermanic committee investigating the New York relief situation, Stryker made the word "boondoggling" a national byword.

Hines' Testimony in Doubt.

So far the defense has given no hint whether Hines will take the stand and face cross examination. William C. Dodge, former district attorney, and Judge Hulon Capshaw, whom the state contends were influenced by Hines to protect the policy game racketeers, will be witnesses for the defendant.

It was learned from a reliable source that if the defense takes the same course it did during the first trial, Dewey will press his question whether Hines ever was "connected with the poultry racket." Judge Pecora declared a mistrial on the ground this question was prejudicial.

The defense had laid the groundwork for the question by asking a witness on direct examination to tell "all" that had occurred before a grand jury during the Dodge régime. On crors examination Dewey inquired whether the grand jury had not looked into Hines' connection with the poultry racket.

Since the last trial articles in leading legal journals, such as the Harvard Law Review, and the sentiment cf bar associations has held in most cases that Dewey had not asked an improper question and that Pecora was wrong in throwing out the case.

TWO SENTENCED TO 18 MONTHS IN WILL FORGERY

Goodsel F. Henke, an attorney, and Adolph Bydalek, a tavern owner, both of Grant Park, Kankakee county, were each sentenced to 18 months in the Cook county jail yesterday for contempt of court in a plot to forge the will of Casimir C. Krzysko and obtain his $19,000 estate. The sentences were imposed by Probate Judge John F. O'Connell.

Joseph Kelly, 1800 Monroe street, and James Russell, 2316 Monroe street, who signed the will as witnesses, were also found guilty of contempt but were sentenced only to the time they have already spent in jail since the fraudulent will was discovered a month ago.

Krzysko, who lived in Chicago Heights, died last June 22. Investigation disclosed that the will had been drawn up several days later. Bydalek was named the chief beneficiary. Henke confessed to forging the will, but charged Bydalek with originating the idea.

A Pants Lifter for Uncle Bill

CAHILL TAKES NOONAN'S POST IN MANTON QUIZ

Promises to Conduct Vigorous Inquiry.

New York, Feb. 11.—[Special.]—John T. Cahill, recently designated by President Roosevelt to be United States attorney for the southern district of New York, today took over the official investigation of the conduct of former Judge Martin T. Manton of the Federal Circuit Court of Appeals.

Manton is charged with having accepted about $450,000 from litigants before his court and a grand jury is investigating.

Cahill Plans Vigorous Inquiry.

Pending confirmation by the United States senate, Cahill was designated special assistant to the United States attorney general to succeed acting United States Attorney Gregory F. Noonan, who disqualified himself last night. He promised a vigorous investigation and made it plain that Noonan himself had disclosed the information that led him to quit the investigation.

Noonan asked to be relieved of connection with the case when he found that records which Judge Manton had surrendered to the grand jury showed that once, years ago, he was a shareholder in the Almanac-Esplanade corporation. This is one of the companies in which former Judge Manton holds an interest.

In a statement Noonan said the Alamanac-Esplanade stock had been held in his name without his knowledge but that he was withdrawing from the Manton investigation to avoid possible misunderstanding.

Explaining the stock holding, Noonan said that when he was 17 years old he worked for the law firm of Hardy & Hardy, one of whose members was Lamar Hardy, who recently resigned as United States attorney here.

Another partner was Toni Hardy, a brother of Lamar. Toni Hardy was counsel for the now defunct Chelsea Bank and Trust company. Noonan said that unknown to himself he was "nominated" to hold the stock, 2,000 shares of common, and 1,000 shares of preferred, for the bank.

Saves Bending Over

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Auburn Taylor, a newspaper press foreman, invented a color ink fountain for presses, but that didn't excite much curiosity in the mind of Uncle Bill Dyer, 92 years old, his wife's stepfather. Uncle Bill told Auburn to invent something practical—something to pull on his pants, because Uncle Bill's arthritis makes it painful for him to bend over.

Taylor pondered a while and then started to tinker. The result is what he calls a valet cabinet, or pants lifter. The device consists of a platform that may be lifted waist high and an arm to which chains are attached to hold the sides of the pants. The platform and arm are operated by ropes and pulleys and are counterweighted to make operation virtually effortless.

To operate, the user, standing beside the cabinet, lifts the treads to a comfortable height, arranges his pants on a pair of treads on the platform, and attaches lifting chains to the pants band. Then the platform is lowered to the floor and the wearer steps into the pants on the treads. An arm then raises the chains and up come the pants. Another gadget, attached to the treads, pulls on the socks.

WHO WILL BE THE NEW POPE?

Read Arch Ward's Dispatches and Those of Other Tribune Writers Every Day in the Chicago Tribune

BOWED in common bereavement by the death of Pope Pius XI., the world awaits the election of his successor.

Chicago Tribune readers will be kept informed of the deliberations of the College of Cardinals by full reports sent by Tribune foreign correspondents and by Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune sports editor and prominent Catholic layman, who sailed for Rome, Saturday, February 11.

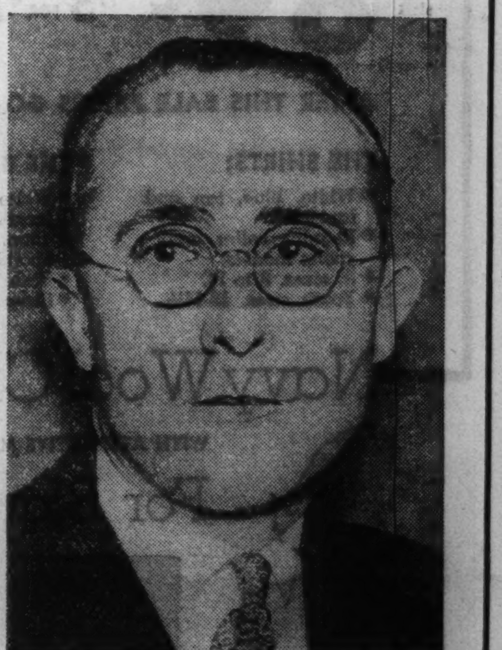
For the first time in history three American Cardinals as a group will take part in the election of the new head of the Roman Catholic Church. Until the results of the solemn conclave are made known—two weeks or more—the eyes and thoughts of the world will be on Rome.

The pronouncements of ecclesiastical committees in the government of church affairs during the interregnum, the celebrations and memorials which attend the passing of one Pontiff and the elevation of the new, the pomp and majesty of Vatican affairs—these all will be happenings of far reaching importance.

For news of these historic events, for first hand reports of the activities of the American Cardinals who will participate in the solemn and majestic rites, read the dispatches of Arch Ward and other Tribune writers in the Chicago Tribune.



Arch Ward, Chicago Tribune sports editor and prominent Catholic layman, now en route to Rome to cover the election of the successor to Pope Pius XI. While reporting in full detail the deliberations of the College of Cardinals and the elevation of its selection as the new Pope, his special attention will be given to the American Cardinals whose parties he is now accompanying.

LAW TO RESTRICT UNION PICKETING REDUCES STRIKES

Labor Leaders Appeal to Courts in Oregon.

Portland, Ore., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—A notable decrease in strikes and other labor disturbances has been apparent in Oregon since the adoption three months ago of an initiative measure severely restricting the activities of organized labor.

The bill was approved last November by citizens weary of four years of labor strife and racketeering. The law drastically restricts strike picketing, forbids jurisdictional strikes, outlaws boycotts, and curtails labor unions in political campaigns and in various fund raising activities.

The new measure has brought a revolutionary influence to union ranks. Notable in this respect is the fact that spokesmen for labor, both in the state and the nation, now look to the courts as a last means of undoing what the voters have done.

Agree to Return to Work.

Both the American Federation of Labor and the Congress of Industrial Organizations in the state have asked the courts to nullify the legislation on the ground it violates both federal and state constitutions, as well as the Norris-La Guardia act and the Wagner act.

However, not long after the initiative was passed, striking furniture workers agreed to accept a pay cut and return to their jobs. Restaurant employés acquiesced in a wage slash without striking. Pickets at a Portland meat market were withdrawn when the proprietors threatened to invoke the anti-picketing measure.

Although the new act already appears to be effective, its full operation is being retarded by a barrage of court attacks on its constitutionality.

But in the meantime a victory has been scored for the sponsors, who foresaw the end of jurisdictional warfare and of boycotting Oregon products because they were deemed unfair to one labor faction or another.

The state unemployment compensation act has been approved finally by the federal social security board, thus assuring continued job insurance for Oregon workmen. This was done despite widespread efforts of organized labor to paralyze the compensation legislation as a means of crippling the picketing law.

Law Instills New Caution.

The new measure conflicted with the social security provisions regarding the definition of labor disputes. The initiative recognizes no dispute that does not involve a majority of an employer's workmen, whereas the social security board will not force the jobless to go to work under conditions in which they are regarded as strikebreakers.

The Oregon legislature has now exempted the state job insurance law from provisions of the state labor act to receive approval and continued recognition of the compensation statute by the federal social security board.

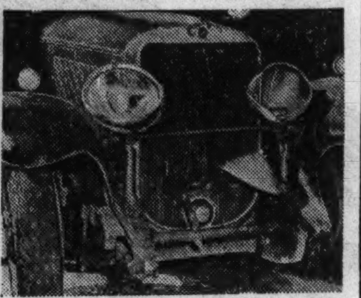
The new caution which the law appears to have instilled in labor leaders generally is considered a point that could work only to the benefit of the state.

Although the A. F. of L. and the C. I. O. in Oregon still are as far apart as ever, the old bitterness and pitched battles of the lumber war have not been in evidence since the adoption of the referendum measure.

It was this long jurisdictional battle between the two labor organizations for control of the northwest lumber workers—a war that cost thousands of man hours of work and millions of dollars in pay roll and commercial losses—that was one of the factors in the Oregon electorate sweeping the measure into law last November.

In Difficulties

Roy W. Chilcote leaving Oak Park jail on bond yesterday.



The front of Chilcote's car after it had smacked into eight others on the doctor's way home Friday night.

Roy W. Chilcote, an optometrist with offices at 1118 Lake street, Oak Park, was in an unhappy frame of mind yesterday despite a nice long sleep in the Oak Park jail. He had been there twenty-one hours before a professional bondsman supplied $500 bail for his release on a charge of driving while intoxicated.

Chilcote faces only one charge, although seven other motorists will be on hand Tuesday at his arraignment, according to the police. They will tell of Chilcote's troubles in getting home Friday night. His automobile, the policemen state, smacked eight others on his erratic course to 724 Pine avenue.

AUTO WORKERS MEET; 100 FIST FIGHTS QUELLED

Flint, Mich., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Police were called today to quell fighting in a meeting of the faction torn United Automobile Workers' union.

A crowd of 4,500 attended a meeting called by the C. I. O. supported faction of the UWA. Police said there were about 100 fist fights after Burt Harris, an organizer and supporter of Homer Martin, head of a faction of the union opposing the C. I. O., led a third of the crowd out of the hall.

Bean said William Kupres, 20 years old, an auto worker, charged Frankensteen menaced him with a gun.

Police said Frankensteen, whose position as international vice president of the U. A. W. has been challenged by Martin, had a permit to carry a gun.

Jury Holds Gun-in-Trunk Death Was an Accident

The death of Hugh Currie, a baggage man who was killed Thursday when a pistol went off as he handled a trunk in the Union station, yesterday was called accidental by a coroner's jury. Daniel C. Power of La Fayette, Stark county, owner of the trunk and pistol, testified that he had thought the .22 caliber weapon was not loaded when he packed it. Currie was 53 years old and lived at 3545 Ogden avenue.

In the western sky tomorrow night there will be faintly visible the first of a series of six comets expected to make 1939 interesting to astronomers. The first comet is the Cosik-Peltier, so named for its recent discoverers, the Russian, Cosik, and the American, Peltier.

According to Dr. Roy K. Marshall, fellow of the Royal Astronomical society, now in Chicago, the Cosik-Peltier for the last week has been crossing the southeast corner of the group of stars known as the Great Square of Pegasus. This square may be seen standing at an angle in the west as darkness falls. Tomorrow night, Cosik-Peltier, passing between the southeast corner of the square and Saturn, will be at its closest point to earth—50 million miles.

The comet may be visible through small telescopes and even good binoculars, but not the ordinary opera glasses, Dr. Marshall said. The most interesting of the comets this year, he said, should be Pons-Winnecke, last seen in 1933, and now expected June 23.

Indiana Brothers 73 and 72, Die Only Few Hours Apart

Shelbyville, Ind., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—The death here last night of Elmer Bassett, 72 years old, attorney and county Republican leader, was followed in a few hours today by the death of a brother, George Bassett, 73 years old, a farmer.

Son, 12, Finds Mother Hanged in Their Home

Mrs. Anna Nowak, 43 years old, was found hanged yesterday in the locked bathroom of her apartment at 6707 Merrill avenue. She was the estranged wife of Dr. Stanislaus Nowak, a physician at 11803 Michigan avenue. They had been separated for about a month, police said. Mrs. Nowak's son, Stanislaus Jr., 12 years old, discovered her body.

An Old Cartridge Foils Woman's Suicide Attempt

Mrs. Isabelle Boland, 40 years old, shot herself yesterday as she lay on a davenport in her apartment at 6414 Bosworth avenue. She was taken to Edgewater hospital where it was said her life had been spared because the cartridge in her gun was old, and the powder had deteriorated. Mrs. Boland's husband, Andrew, 72 years old, a cleaner and dyer, was in the kitchen.

DOUBLE PROVES INNOCENT MAN WENT TO PRISON

'Forger,' Free, Runs Down Another Almost Twin.

Waupun, Wis., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Confession by a forger here today cleared the record of a man who served eighteen months in a New Jersey prison for a crime he never committed.

The confession also absolved the innocent man in a second forgery case that a New Jersey grand jury has been investigating.

The convict and the innocent victim, both middle aged, are strikingly similar in appearance, a fact that caused the miscarriage of justice.

Eugene Sullivan, 53 years old, who is serving seven years for thirteen forgeries in Milwaukee in 1935, is the convict who admitted today it was not Clifford Shephard, 52, of Newark, N. J., who forged three checks for which Shephard went to prison in 1935.

One Man's Faith Won.

Shephard, who insisted during his trial that he was a victim of mistaken identity and a double really was guilty, could not convince the jury, but he did convince the Rev. Harry G. Chaurette of Newark that he was telling the truth.

When Shephard, who has served his term and gone free, was arrested recently on a second forgery charge the Rev. Mr. Chaurette posted bond for him and they started a search for the double, who cashed checks in Plainfield, N. J., last year. Hunting through stacks of rogues' gallery pictures, they found one of Sullivan, who looked like a twin of Shephard.

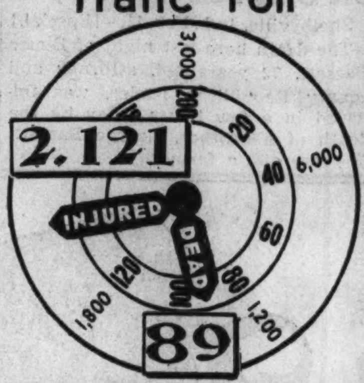
Investigation showed Sullivan was arrested in Elmira, N. Y., last year for forgery and taken to Wisconsin. Milwaukee police reported he was serving seven years in Waupun. The pastor and Shephard decided to talk with him.

Face to Face, Sleuth Is Amazed.

En route to Waupun they stopped in Milwaukee and found Detective Arthur Grundeman, who had brought Sullivan from Elmira. Grundeman was amazed by the striking likeness between Shephard and Sullivan.

Sullivan at once admitted the New Jersey forgeries, and John Burke, acting warden, will send a copy of the confession to New Jersey officials. A request was filed at the prison today to notify New Jersey officials when Sullivan is about to be released so that he may be taken to New Jersey for trial.

THE MASSACRE Chicago's 1939 Trafic Toll



More than 98% of the city's automobile fatalities are of a nature physically impossible on an elevated highway.

1 DEAD, ANOTHER INJURED AS CAR HITS DITCH, TREE

Talma Johnson, 34 years old, was killed and another man was critically injured early yesterday when their automobile plunged into a ditch, struck a tree, and overturned on Green Bay road, two miles west of Zion. James K. Bisland, the injured man, was driving. Johnson lived on McAree road, north of Waukegan, and Bisland on Oakland avenue, in Waukegan. Police charged Bisland with manslaughter.

Three policemen were injured when their squad car overturned after colliding with an automobile driven by Harry Tiech, 1918 South Highland avenue, Berwyn, at Ashland avenue and Garfield boulevard. The policemen are Le Roy Hallen, 34; Samuel Hatfield, 30, and John Nash, 34, of the Chicago Lawn station.

At 2 p. m. yesterday Chicago and Cook county had been without an automobile fatality since 11 p. m. on Thursday. The trafic toll since Jan. 1 remained at 110 persons for the county. Of these 89 were killed in Chicago, where 2,121 were injured in the same period.

DIES OF AUTO INJURIES.

WOMEN ROLL UP BIG BACKING FOR DWIGHT GREEN

10,000 Pledge Support in Last Week.

BY MARCIA WINN.

More than 10,000 women have signed cards during the last week pledging their support for Dwight H. Green in the mayoralty campaign. This was disclosed yesterday by Mrs. Walter B. Wolf, chairman of the Green volunteer women's committee.

All the signatures have been received since the women's committee opened its headquarters last Monday at 332 South Michigan avenue. Mrs. Wolf said the total actually represents far more than 10,000 as each signer pledged herself to induce five or ten friends to vote for Mr. Green. Many wrote in the words "all my friends."

All Walks Pledge Aid.

A former Maine woman, now on relief, came in to pledge her assistance personally. A poverty stricken woman in Winnetka sent in $1. A woman of 80 gave an impromptu party at which 100 pledge cards were signed.

"Our list is growing like a prairie fire," Mrs. Wolf said. "Many write in, asking how they can help."

Much of the Green support, she said, seems to be underground. She cited several instances of women whose husbands are on WPA, showing letters for each case. One wrote:

"We are all working among friends, quietly, to help you."

Another: "We do hope that this [Green's] nomination will make some of the independent Republicans take notice that the clean element is coming back into its place."

Organization among the foreign and community groups is proceeding rapidly, Mrs. Wolf said. From various sections of the city women are asking if headquarters will be established in their territories. Mrs. Mary Clark, long active politically among the colored groups, is organizing the colored women.

Two More Give Indorsements.

Two voluntary endorsements for Mr. Green from prominent Chicago women were received yesterday. One was from Mrs. Joseph T. Bowen, 1430 Astor street, who will observe her eightieth birthday Feb. 28. The other was from Mrs. Leonard A. Brundage, 3321 North Bell avenue, chairman of the women's division of the Carl Schurz round table and active in club circles.

Mrs. Bowen, lifelong friend of the late Jane Addams, is president and secretary of Hull house. She has held the latter position since its foundation. She is also vice president of the United Charities, honorary president of the Juvenile Protective association of Hull house, a past president of the Woman's City club, and was first woman representative to the pan-American conference.

"Mr. Green," she said, "has made a forward looking and admirable program for Chicago. He is an honorable man and has a fine public record.

"We have confidence that he will carry out his campaign pledges. The women must go to the polls and vote for him."

Political Notes

The Chicago Woman's Civic Service Group of Illinois will meet at noon tomorrow in the Morrison hotel to indorse Mayor Kelly's candidacy, Mrs. Annie Heilman, president, announced yesterday.

"Kelly can't point to a single constructive achievement during his administration," State's Attorney Courtney told a group of young Democrats in the Hotel Sherman. "His slogan should be 'Keep Ahead of Chicago' instead of 'Keep Chicago Ahead.'"

Leonard C. Reid, prominent in the wing of the Republican party led by former Senator Charles F. Deneen, yesterday indorsed Dwight H. Green. "All Republicans interested in making their party a fighting force in the mayoral election and in 1940 should support Green," Reid said. He is a former committeeman of the 15th ward and has been practicing law in Chicago for thirty years.

Mayor Kelly has been invited to address the laborers' branch of the Civil Service Boosters' association at 3 p. m. today in the Corinthian room of the Capitol building, 159 North State street. The mayor has indorsed legislation to increase the security of unskilled labor in municipal service.

"I think there is a resemblance between Courtney and Lincoln," said Robert L. Huttner in announcing the organization of Lawyers' League for Courtney. "Courtney is a man of destiny such as is brought forward every now and then to represent the people in their quest for good government."

Forty-five physicians, surgeons, and dentists met in the La Salle hotel yesterday to acclaim Dwight H. Green as the type of candidate the country is turning to for leadership. Green, the regular G. O. P. organization choice, replied that if elected mayor he will see to it that the city health department is stafed with the aid of the civil service commission or the Chicago Medical society.

The Cook County Young Democrats will give another "Kelly for Mayor" dance in the Trianon ballroom Tuesday evening. A similar affair was held in the Aragon ballroom last week.

Mrs. Kellogg Fairbank, novelist and former Democratic national committeewoman when the late George E. Brennan was committeeman, spoke for State's Attorney Courtney on the radio. She said, "Before the righteous determination of an aroused electorate politicians are no more than dust blowing before the whirlwind."

Alumni of Wabash college, Crawfordsville, Ind., which Dwight H. Green attended until he become a world war aviator, had a dinner in his honor in the Midland club last night. They gave him a gold honor key for "exemplary citizenship." About 400 members and their wives attended.

3 WOMEN TO USE HOME ECONOMY ON STATE BUDGET

G. O. P. Legislators Hunt for Hidden Plums.

BY GEORGE TAGGE.

Family budgets have given three Republican women legislators the experience they will use in the G. O. P. economy drive at Springfield, they said yesterday. Strenuous efforts to trim the state budget of $456,586,771 will be made in the legislature Tuesday.

The women compose one of the stanchest sections of the Republican economy bloc. They are Mrs. Lottie Holman O'Neill of Downers Grove, Mrs. Bernice Van Der Vries of Winnetka, and Mrs. Maud N. Peffers of Aurora.

Calls Careless Spending Waste.

"Careless spending by the state government is as distasteful as waste in the home," Mrs. O'Neill said. "Watching family budgets has given us principles to use in passing on state appropriations."

The three women representatives will vote for the Republican resolution calling for an investigation of the entire state government to cut spending. The resolution, introduced Wednesday by R. J. Branson of Centralia, floor leader of the new G. O. P. majority, will be voted on next Tuesday.

Mrs. O'Neill said she will also carry on her fight for complete information regarding lump sums sought by state officers when these are considered in the appropriation committee.

"Lump sums conceal political plums," she said. "We want to know details so we can decide what is really necessary."

Items Under Scrutiny.

She pointed out some of the items in appropriation bills which will be debated next week. Among those she cited were these:

Department of conservation—
Extra help, $9,400 a year.
Contingencies, $25,000.
Public relations, $48,000.
Predatory control, $12,000.
Game farms and refuges, $250,000.
Department of Public Works—
Salaries and wages, $17,843,793.
Operations, $12,843,766.
Repairs and equipment, $2,677,585.
Contingencies, $250,000.
Preventing juvenile delinquency, $25,000.
Financing paroled boys, $3,000.
Investigate and prevent rural crime $20,000.

Also in the public works department, headed by F. Lynden Smith, campaign manager for Gov. Horner, are such items as $4,350,000 for permanent improvements and repairs "constructed by the labor of inmates and paid labor or by contract or both." This would give wide leeway in spending the money.

Women in State Economy Bloc

Gets Home with Bullet in Leg; It's 'Mystery' to Him

Chicago Lawn police are investigating the mysterious shooting of Earl Schuman, 25 years old, a freight handler. He staggered into his home at 1953 West 63d street last night, suffering from a wound that started at the right hip and coursed downward through the leg. He told Lieut. Richard Lawler he did not know how he had incurred the wound. Lieut. Lawler ordered Schuman taken to the Bridewell hospital.

WPA Worker, Father of 8, Kills Estranged Wife, Self

Charleston, W. Va., Feb. 11.—(AP)—James H. Hendricks, 55 years old, WPA worker, shot his estranged wife, 37 years old, to death before guests at a birthday party tonight and killed himself. Mrs. Hendricks was attending a party for Hendricks' landlady when he walked in unexpectedly. The shooting, which followed a quarrel, orphaned the couple's eight children ranging in age from 3 months to 18 years.

AIKEN URGES NEW DEAL BE HALTED BEFORE TOO LATE

Warns War Scare May Be Way to Dictatorship.

Pittsburgh, Pa., Feb. 11.—(AP)—George D. Aiken, Republican governor of Vermont, tonight assailed what he termed "totalitarian ambition emanating from Washington," and declared the states "must stand shoulder to shoulder" to halt "those who would apply to America the policies on which some European governments are run today."

The governor in his address declared:

"It is not inconceivable that those who seek to control all persons and all things in this nation would not hesitate to create a national emergency or even a war to perpetuate and strengthen their control."

Assails Fear as Weapon.

He charged the federal administration with attempting to "break down the structure of the states under the cloak of flood control and of cheap power development," adding:

"They call it flood control because they would capitalize on the fear of those who live in the valleys—their fear of loss of life and property.

"They call it cheap power development because in so doing they can capitalize on the animosity of a very large percentage of the people toward the public utility companies for unwaranted inflation of values and unjust collection of exorbitant rates."

Gov Aiken, relating that the Vermont legislature had authorized funds to fight against federal seizure of state land for flood control purposes, said the other five New England states joined in such action. He spoke at the annual meeting of the Amen Corner, a nonpartisan organization of business and political leaders.

Seizure without Consent.

The governor criticized the Barkley amendment to the flood control bill which he declared directed the secretary of war "to take natural resources of the state without their consent and without compensation for loss of taxes."

"If the provisions . . . were carried out to the fullest," he said, "it would break down the principles of statehood and deprive the people of the various states of their livelihood."

He declared provisions of the Mansfield bill, which he said was enacted a year ago, "go far beyond those of the alien and sedition acts of 1797 in making criticism of government a felony."

"I tell you," he added, "that if the people of America do not stop this subtle, indirect, ruthless, and totalitarian ambition emanating from Washington— and stop it now—we will be too late."

"Purge" Target Speaks.

Senator Ellison D. [Cotton Ed] Smith [D., S. C.], a veteran of thirty years in the senate whose reëlection last year was opposed by President Roosevelt, also spoke on states' rights, declaring the constitution "is not to exert sovereignty over the states, but it is an instrument for the preservation inviolate of the sovereignty of each state."

OLD FASHIONED DOVES COO AGAIN: TO MY VALENTINE

Dan Cupids and Flowers Also Make Comeback.

The day after tomorrow is the day when the postmen will deliver brightly ornamented and romantic messages "To My Valentine" all over the city. The day after tomorrow is St. Valentine's day.

Well filled mail boxes showed yesterday that Chicagoans, elders and youngsters alike, were mailing early. But the rush is not over. Card counters everywhere were swamped with buyers to closing time.

Preferences for valentines this year run to the Victorian mood. This does not mean, however, that the valentines are too sugary or too old-fashioned. They're rather a delicate blending of the traditional with the new, with the printed sentiments being, if anything, somewhat more romantic than usual.

Dan Cupid Returns.

The 1939 cards have borrowed such favorite old-fashioned pictorial themes from great-grandmother's day as little Dan Cupid with his bow and arrow, cooing doves, and garden vistas. Yet their treatment is distinctly modern.

Floral pastels, too, have returned. The one noticeable absentee is the comic valentine, which has almost completely disappeared. The comics were great favorites of jokesters until a few years ago, but the humor in them was generally barbed and not humorously accepted by the recipients. So, by common consent, they have faded year by year.

Just why the world should address sweet sentiments on St. Valentine's day is somewhat obscure. The origin of the day still puzzles scholars. Popular belief ascribes it to a certain St. Valentine. The difficulty about that theory is that there are several St. Valentines. More confusing is the fact that the festivals of two of them fall on Feb. 14.

Traced Back to 1415.

Scholars know this much—that valentine verses have been written for hundreds of years. Charles, duke of Orleans, wrote them while a prisoner in 1415. Valentine messages became really popular in the 18th century and continued so through the 19th. The valentines generally were made by hand, pompous, and heavy with decoration.

America's first fancy valentines date from 1850. From then on valentines became more and more elaborate, with prices ranging up to $50 each. The reputed originator of the American fancy valentine was Esther Rowland of Worcester, Mass.

O, yes, she was the daughter of a stationer.

Nation-Wide Police Radio System

Zone stations for nation-wide police radio system, by which police bulletins may be disseminated with speed throughout the country. The stations shown are situated in the following cities: Olympia, Wash.; Portland, Ore.; Santa Ana, Cal.; Denver, Colo.; Clovis, N. M.; Houston, Tex.; New Orleans, La.; Oklahoma City, Okla.; Fort Smith, Ark.; Topeka, Kas.; Memphis, Tenn.; Louisville, Ky.; Kansas City, Mo.; St. Louis, Mo.; Des Moines, Ia.; Minneapolis, Minn.; Milwaukee, Wis.; Springfield, Ill.; Indianapolis, Ind.; Detroit, Mich.; Lansing, Mich.; Columbus, O.; Buffalo, N. Y., and Atlanta, Ga.

Covers 22 States

The radio net that police throw out for escaping criminals has been woven more tightly through the development of an interzone code system, it is disclosed by the International Association of Chiefs of Police.

Since the system was introduced a year ago, 22 states comprising 67 state and municipal police departments have been linked into a radio hookup.

The broadcasts are made in wireless code on a higher frequency than local and police radios. Thus there is no interference with local police broadcasts which are vocal. One station in each state is usually assigned to relay code messages between zones or states.

Local police messages of interzone interest are radioed to the zone station in that area. The zone station codes the message and relays it to all other zone stations. The zone stations then decode the message and broadcast it vocally to the local police departments in their areas.

The police association said that the interzone system had speeded up capture of criminals fleeing from state to state.

This was substantiated by Fred. H. Schnell, radio engineer of the Chicago police department, which sends its interzone messages to the state branch station here. The message is then relayed to the Springfield station, which transmits the code message.

DR. CLENDENING AND LITTLE AX GOING TO TRIAL

Kansas City, Mo., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The blows Dr. Logan Clendening rained with an ax yesterday on a noisy air compression drill and the drill's own "damned rat-a-tat-tat" may echo Monday in Kansas City Police court.

[AP Wirephoto.]
Dr. Logan Clendening.

Offers of attorneys for the nationally known health columnist and author to pay the WPA for damage to its compressor brought police indication today that charges against the doctor might be forgotten. Police Director Otto P. Higgins reconsidered, however, and announced a date for trial.

Charges of disorderly conduct and destruction of public property were filed last night when the doctor spent four hours in jail for his single handed sortie on the noisy contraption that had shattered the peace of his fashionable neighborhood for four months.

MISSOURI GAMING WAR TO CONTINUE, SAYS GOV. STARK

Gov. Lloyd C. Stark of Missouri said in Chicago last night that his war on gambling in Kansas City will continue as long as he is in office. Grand juries of the federal and Circuit courts are investigating gambling and gamblers' incomes there.

"Collusion between politicians and the criminal syndicate has wrecked law enforcement generally, as it did in Chicago when the Capone gang was riding high," Gov. Stark said. "I know business men are with me, but many are kept silent by fear of racketeers."

He said he still considers himself a Democrat, although many Republicans have aided him since his break with Thomas J. Pendergast, for years the Democratic political boss of Kansas City.

POLICE COOLER SAVES A DRIVE FOR FRESH FOOD

Housewives on the northwest side who have found food spoiled in their refrigerators because the refrigerators went out of order might be interested in knowing that Preston Feinberg and Morris Moscovitz are under arrest.

The pair were seized yesterday by George Schupolsky and John O'Hara of the Albany Park police after they had attempted to steal the motor from the central refrigerating plant in the apartment building at 4814 North Drake avenue. Feinberg is 27 years old and lives at 2419 North Kedzie avenue. Moskovitz is 23 and lives at 1254 North Western avenue. Both are junk men.

Feinberg and Moskovitz, according to police, have confessed stealing four ice plant motors and selling them for $12.50 each.

Yes, an exterior that shows its age can go farther than that—it can make your home nearly valueless.. "worth only the price of the land"! And when you and your neighbors persist in allowing your homes to become run-down, your neighborhood soon takes on the aspect and the shrunken values of a "blighted area."

Hines remodeling can build back into your home what time has taken out of it. By well-planned exterior and interior changes your old house can be made into a new one—a house that's worth real money—a house that can be sold or rented at a good figure. Phone or send the coupon.

Let Hines show you the way to a new home this spring. Build or remodel—Hines will give you complete information.

CHICAGO REPUBLICANS.

The November elections answered any skepticism or doubt regarding the future of the Republican party. The opinion that Roosevelt successes in three previous elections had virtually destroyed opposition as organized in the Republican party was shown to be poor snap judgment which failed to take into account the many swings of the pendulum in this country. And a good thing it was for the nation that the disintegration of a party doesn't necessarily follow two or three defeats which might seem to be final.

By looking abroad the people can see what follows such volatility, fickleness, and instability. If people are easily scared into many irreconcilable diversities of opinion and action they are stretching their necks out for the strong man to seize. The Republican party took its licking and had to take it partly because of its mistakes and partly because a deciding element among the voters had quite naturally begun chasing some fantom benefits all dressed up to beguile them. The November elections proved that these enthusiasms and deceptions wear pretty thin when experience has exposed them and the people begin to see what has come home to roost.

The Republican party is now restored as a strong party of opposition in possession of many of the key states which had suffered most from New Deal frauds, hypocrisies, tyrannies, and corruption. They were sufficiently penalized by these pious frauds to shake the rider off their shoulders. New Republican state governments have been established and the people feel relieved. Illinois did not join its neighboring Republican states because, for one thing, it hadn't seen as much of the breakdown of law and order or experienced as many of the excesses of revolution as its neighbors. Its Democratic public officials, although they have gone along with the New Deal as its man servants, drew the line at some of the preposterous and destructive things in the White House program.

Therefore, although Republican gains were made, such as the recovery of the state house of representatives, Illinois Republicans are not now as firmly on their feet as they are in Minnesota, Michigan, Wisconsin, Ohio, and Pennsylvania. The Illinois stake in national recovery is as great as that of any of its neighbors. In many respects it is even greater. But until Illinois goes Republican it of necessity will be an aid and comfort to the New Deal designs with which no Republican can have any sympathy.

It is of consequence to these Republicans that they should do their part in strengthening the state and Cook county Republican organizations, particularly with a view to seeing that the Republican national convention in 1940 is in the hands of new men who know what the country should have, so that the Republican nomination for President shall be one essentially meeting the obvious requirements.

Change in the election laws has made it possible for Republicans who were tempted out of their party last spring to return and support Dwight Green for the nomination for mayor. Mr. Green is a candidate Republicans can support, knowing that they have an admirably qualified man, sincere, honest, and capable. He is high grade and Republican voters can be proud to nominate him. By doing so they will promote the general good of the party, strengthen its lines, and put Illinois in the position to have the influence it should have in the convention next year.

That's a duty which Republicans ought to see as one of great consequence to the entire country.

CALLING NAMES OVER THE BACK FENCE.

Who told William Phillips, the American ambassador to Rome, to send a note to Count Ciano, the Italian foreign minister, asking for an explanation of newspaper comments on Mr. Roosevelt and objecting to them as vicious? Did he do this on his own or did the state department instruct him? Mr. Roosevelt, Mr. Ickes, Mr. Hull himself, and other American officials have seen to it that the United States hasn't a leg to stand on.

When the German ambassador asked the state department to explain Mr. Ickes' remarks on Hitler and Nazi Germany he encountered a cool fish eye and was sent about his business with his ears burning. Mr. Roosevelt puts his opinion of the dictators in his state papers and his public utterances. Mr. Ickes shoots his mouth off whenever he feels like it and he says whatever he pleases. Mr. Hull is more restrained, but his comments will not be printed in Europe as flattering to the European governments.

The American newspapers say what they please about Hitler, Mussolini, Stalin, and everybody else in Europe. Try as the controled newspapers may on the other side of the water, they haven't yet been able to say as many uncomplimentary things about Mr. Roosevelt and the members of his government as American public men and newspaper writers have said about the rulers of Europe.

Americans have called these fellows maniacs, murderers, assassins, degenerates, and tyrants. Despot is a mild word. They have been accused of crimes against peoples, nations, and individuals, and we believe that most of what has been said about them is true and that their own acts prove it. Our state department might contend that the American government has no control over the newspapers, therefore it is not responsible for them. It might argue that when a foreign newspaper speaks it speaks the mind of the government and therefore the government is responsible. What little there would be to that argument is destroyed by the fact that our government officials can be controled by the government itself and that when Mr. Ickes sounds off his remarks are as properly attributable to the White House as the remarks of a German newspaper to Hitler or of an Italian to Mussolini.

America hasn't a leg to stand on when it makes such silly protests. Mr. Roosevelt and his fellow makers-over can hand it out. If they can't take it they'll have to learn to.

FREE THE RAILROADS FROM RED TAPE.

For many years THE TRIBUNE has been advocating less rather than more governmental regulation of our railroads. The Platform for America at the head of this page has long contained the plank, "Free the Railroads from Red Tape." There has been little progress in the desired direction, but it would not be true to say that ours has been a voice crying in the wilderness, for most of the thoughtful students of transportation accept the plank as sound. They have been discouraged by the apparent hopelessness of resisting a trend which [until the second Tuesday of last November] was moving in the direction of greater concentration of power in Washington and greater hostility toward the American system of private enterprise. The nomination by the President of Thomas R. Amlie, one time vice president of the Public Ownership League of America, to the important post of interstate commerce commissioner has certainly not been reassuring.

Many years ago, before motor trucks or airplanes were invented, congress began with government regulation to prevent abuses arising from a virtual railroad monopoly of transportation. The inherent human proclivity to attempt to cure all ills by passing laws has bound our rail carriers hard and fast in a maze of red tape and changed the interstate commerce commission from a regulatory body to a managerial bureau. The financial difficulties of the carriers have paralleled this strange transformation.

And now congress is considering the advisability of extending the power of government management to all forms of transportation by granting to a greatly augmented commission the dictatorial, life-and-death power of decreeing minimum rates or charges to be assessed by the newer competitors of the railroads. The theory behind this feature of the Lea bill is that it "will prevent cutthroat competition which might destroy valuable investment in existing transportation facilities." Just why the management of such transportation agencies should be so stupid, and at the same time the burocrats in Washington so wise, is difficult for a sensible person to understand. All of which brings to mind two truisms which seem to be apropos at this point. Competition has always been considered the life of trade. The power to regulate, no less than the power to tax, is the power to destroy.

Thomas F. Woodward, a transportation authority, believes the "Railroad Problem" might better be called the "Railroad Dilemma." Whatever its designation, its solution cannot be obtained by legislative enactment, unless we regard repeal of some of the archaic red tape restrictions in that category. Evolution resulting from American inventive genius and individual initiative will work it out if not hampered too much by restrictive laws.

THE CICADAS ARE COMING BACK.

The cicada, known as the seventeen year locust, will be back again this year. In 1922 the nymphs were hatched and holed in. Now they are ready to desert their underground chambers and bore their way out. That is their fate. Otherwise it would be a case of very poor judgment. The world hasn't much to offer to anything which had the opportunity to avoid it by remaining oblivious.

When these cicadas were here in 1922 Howard Carter had found the stairs leading to the tomb of Tut-Ankh-Amen, the glories of whose burial were about to be revealed to the curious people of all nations. King Tut was a little known Pharaoh of almost recordless life whose existence on the earth was only a few months longer than the buried period of the locust which came out the same year with him. Locusts and Egypt are closely associated in the minds of Bible trained people. The two phenomena supplemented each other. Both made a great stir.

The year 1921, one of uncomfortable intimations, had a slogan. It "would reward fighters." The next year, the year of Tut and the locusts, seemed to prove it. Here in the United States at least the new era was just ahead. It wasn't going "to rain no more." But in Europe the Germans were starting the printing press money which was to reach astronomical stabilization at 420 milliards to the dollar and the French were preparing to invade the Ruhr. It was going to rain some more. The rain makers were bringing on the deluge out of which sticks here a nose and there a pallid hand.

Our new era disappeared into the New Deal and the fighters who refused to allow the backwash of war get them down in 1921 have found the roads by which the country has made its way out of depressions before closed by the governmental barricades. The cicadas will come back after seventeen years to a world which hasn't much to show in flattery of either its instincts or intelligence. Some of them, however, will have an almost human experience. In trying to come up they'll hit a concrete street or a basement floor laid while they were down below. They may think that's tough luck. They won't know the half of it. That's where most of the humans are.

THE PARETO CURVE AND ITS SIGNIFICANCE FOR OUR TIME

BY DR. CARL SNYDER.

[Extracts from a paper read on Dec. 28 before the American Academy for the Advancement of Science.]

In Two Instalments.

From an immemorial time there have been outstanding leaders and commanders; likewise in every walk of life men of superlative talent in some particular direction who stand forth among their fellows. Among commanders: Napoleon, Cæsar, Alexander, and Hammurabi; statesmen like Pericles and Moses; orators like Cicero and Demosthenes; poets, men of science, inventors, engineers, discoverers. The flower of our human kind.

And now the question: Out of all the hundreds of millions born within historic times, thousands upon thousands have aspired, toiled, and done some notable work. But why so few? Whence the transcendent talent which has made the few immortal?

It is rarely hereditary. Faraday and Newton did not come from distinguished families. The fathers of Cæsar and Napoleon were not remarkable men. Nor in the vast majority of instances did mere opportunity play a dominant rôle. Opportunity may have made a Grant, a Washington, and many another. But the high talent had to be there. Whence the high talent?

Few talents stand out more than music. Great musicians, the Beethovens and Wagners, like the Shakespeares or Gallileos, are assuredly born, not made. Are there physical essentials which musicians possess? To this problem a pioneering psychologist, Prof. Seashore of the University of Iowa has given 40 years of patient research. He found at least four basic essentials—a sense of pitch, of rhythm, of intensity, and of tone color. And there are others. But these four are physical capacities which are independent of any training, love of music, or desire to be a musician. And these basic qualities seem fully developed in a child of 10 years and can never be improved by training or experience.

Very recently Prof. Seashore's results have been supported by a quite remarkable investigation by Prof. Husband of the University of Wisconsin, who put a hundred volunteer students through seventeen different varieties of tests as to learning and ability as, for example, learning a typewriter, or to play golf, or to memorize poetry, or solve simple mathematical problems. Again the same results that all these different faculties or abilities behave much like independent units, no clear correlation one to another. Unit characters. Findings that seem to me profoundly instructive to the whole theory of education.

These abilities are distributed in any given population, according to what is known as the "normal curve," just as are such physical characteristics as height and weight. The term normal curve refers to the fact that there are relatively few of extremely low degree and equally few of very high degree.

There are obvious difficulties in making mathematical measures of talent. But there is one field in which we do have quite exact measures, or at least high approximations. This is the distribution of money incomes from income tax returns. If the material had been segregated we could compare musicians in this way, ranging from the modest income of the tens of thousands who make their living in one way or another out of music to the very few of top incomes, such as Toscanini and Paderewski. Not a very satisfactory measure of musical talent, but distinctly a measure of a type of ability.

Similarly the capacity to command and retain a large income is a measure of a type of ability of lawyers, physicians, engineers, and educators, and may I in these parlous times add for men in business, industry, or finance. Since there are few stronger human desires, few more dazzling rewards, nowhere else does success arouse such profound envy, admiration, or emulation. Is this all likewise dominated by a law of distribution?

Here at least we have an abundance of material to give answer. A wealth of statistical data has now been available for more than twenty years. Our income tax returns covering this period provide the most detailed information available in any country as to the distribution of incomes above, say, $1,500 or $2,000 per year. Very recently we have from a different governmental source come into possession of an adequate sampling of income below these amounts. These, too, are distributed according to the normal curve.

But this is not all. We had an income tax in the period following our civil war and, while the data are somewhat meager and perhaps not strictly comparable, yet the same general resemblance in distribution is there as well throughout the six or eight years for which comparable data are available.

In other words, what we seem to find, throughout the whole of the available material, is a general conformity that can scarcely be the result of mere chance. It gives the impression of the probable existence of a definite mechanism or, as we say, "law." And this impression is strengthened when we turn to other countries. England, Germany, France, and other countries likewise have income tax systems and publish their statistics. And if now we plot the returns from these various countries side by side with those of our own land, again the most remarkable resemblance.

Now the remarkable fact here is that this conclusion, of the fixity and similarity in the distribution of incomes in different countries and in different times, had been reached more than forty years ago by the genial Italian economist who succeeded to the chair of Leon Walras, in the University of Lausanne, Vilfredo Pareto, of French and Italian parentage, trained as an engineer and in his early years active in his profession.

Pareto had no such wealth of data as is now available, and yet the extent and range of what his industry was able to unearth seem now astonishing. Going back in a few instances even to the sixteenth century and including some strange returns derived from so curious a source as a great plague in Peru in the seventeenth century, his findings of normal distribution aroused sharp and even acrimonious criticism that has persisted intermittently ever since the first full publication in 1896.

Psychological studies like those of Prof. Seashore of the University of Iowa, among musicians, and of general learning ability by Prof. Husband at the University of Wisconsin confirm the thesis which I have endeavored to set forth explaining the distribution of wealth and income. So now we have an "explanation" of the income tax returns. They are not a matter of accident or opportunity [save with, no doubt, some exceptions], but in general follow a definite characteristic or "law" of wide application throughout the whole field of biology and economics. There is no mere accident in the making of the multimillionaire or the great industrial organizer or the shrewd merchandiser, or the transportation expert, or the golfer, like Bobby Jones, or the tennis player, like Donald Budge, or, if you please, the spectacular performance of Man o' War or Seabiscuit. All are a product of chance collocations, in the scientific meaning of the term, of the requisite special talents.

In other words, if high talent and genius are, as this thesis assumes, a composite of a number of discrete abilities or faculties, all of which are to be found distributed in the population according to the normal curve, then the resulting curve of the combination of four, five, six, or more of these faculties would give just such a distribution for the combination as we actually find, so far as we know, in all human society. Which is merely saying in technical language what is the most familiar commonplace, that genius of any kind is rare, that high talent is given to but few individuals in a generation, that a moderate degree of ability is to be found in a far larger number, while those of relatively little capacity or achievement are present in enormous numbers.

[The second and concluding instalment will appear next Sunday.]

CAN IT BE?

SATURDAY'S letter bag brought the following effusion from a physician friend whose chief avocation is prophecy. Known as the "Sage of Osceola"—his people [mostly farmers] regard his oracular utterances with great respect. His batting average hitherto has been high. Well, here goes!

"Dear Health Column:

"The old rules of hygiene have about played out and a spick-and-span youth movement [that's mine] is on. Health is now catching. All nourishment is derived from transmogrified air flavored with a generous sprinkling of microbes and straddle bugs. Only one meal—a single capsule—need be taken daily, and what a physical development ensues. Samson appears a mere pigmy in retrospect. On omitting all erstwhile mundane foods, there follows an expansion of brain power. The average hat size is 12½.

"We are paid for hours of rest and penalized when we work. All tasks must be performed surreptitiously at night, for the daylight hours are required for thumb twiddling. Babies are brought into the world by mechanical mothers—a new, scientific, neutron-cosmic ray device, modeled after the casques worn by the inhabitants of Mars.

"Why not? We have endured halfway disease preventing measures long enough. Let's make a good job of our reforming and go all the way. We have decided to act—not vacillate or temporize—and woe to obstructionists.

"But what will become of the family; of that sandstone of society—the home? Bah! There is none. Such puerile emotions as love and affection are taboo. Thrift is outlawed; likewise industry and frugality. They are too confining and soul-hampering. The span of life will reach a minimum of five hundred years; while those who adhere strictly to 'state' healing—which has the sanction of all new 'thoughtists'—will linger along for a hundred decades.

"For the ladies—clothes and styles are disdained. Nature is to rule and sun tan and milkweed floss will form the most graceful adornments. Shoes are out—every one will wear moccasins or go barefooted. And that reminds me: every wickiup will be provided with an outdoor pool for bathing in summer and ice skating in winter. That is, if we have winter any more, for a move is on foot to reorganize the sun's orbit and distribute its heat rays a little more evenly.

"Body shaking birth is no more, as it expresses disdain, and no such risible reaction is recognized in the modern order. Every one possesses an equable temperament—no weeping or chortling—only a steady flow of happy thoughts. Look where one will, he will gaze upon pink clouds and dancing elves.

"Capital? Money? Who needs such silly stuff? Charge it; or rather discharge it. He who contracts the largest debt shall be the greatest among men—for has he not grasped to the 'full' the true idea?

"There will be millions more jobs for 'workers'—astrologers and those skilled in necromancy. Of course, they will not be gainfully employed, as that would be contrary to the rules of the game. They will be too busy spinning cobwebs to be used for suspension bridge cables to bother about compensation.

"But, you ask, 'Who, in the name of time, will keep the gig whirling?' Why, the farmer, of course; he has his land, his stock, and his gasoline driven plow, so why not use them? He should be glad of the chance to plant crops so that the weeds won't take his land. He, his wife, and children will tread the mill to the millennium. He will pay the taxes, aided mildly by those who have been foolish enough to permit some one to record deeds to real property in their names.

"O, it's a grand and glorious prospect, and what fun! Of course, it will endure—aren't we the greatest nation on earth; cosmopolitan—from every spot on the globe? We cannot suffer defeat. The idea is too vast, too alluring, too magnificent to permit of extinction. Onward! Wave the banners aloft with canned medical practice our battle cry. At last—we are a great nation. Wasn't Daniel Webster silly when he said, 'It is employment that makes people happy'?

"Your forecaster, 'SECOND SIGHT.'"

TUBERCULOSIS PRECAUTIONS.

T. N. writes: My brother has tuberculosis. Until he leaves for the sanitarium, what precautions should we observe to prevent the rest of the family, particularly the younger children, from contracting the disease?

REPLY.

If possible, send your children to the homes of relatives or friends, where they will be free from exposure. If this cannot be done, do not permit them to have the slightest contact with the patient. He should remain in one room and be visited only by the one or two persons who are responsible for his care. If he is coughing, all expectorated material should be collected on paper tissue or within paper cups and burned. All dishes and eating utensils should be boiled and then washed in strong, hot soapsuds. No single article should be used by any other member of the family.

WEAK BOWEL WALL.

B. C. writes: After an X-ray, my doctor informed me there are small sacs on the large intestine. What is the cause? Are they serious?

REPLY.

This is known as diverticulosis and results from some weakness of the bowel wall, allowing a small bulge to form. Constipation is thought to be a cause. The condition may complicate colitis. Occasionally these pockets fill with fecal matter and ulcerate. In most instances, however, they give rise to no symptoms.

SHINGLES?

R. S. writes: What causes a row of red spots, resembling cold sores, that appear in a line across one side of the abdomen? They are very painful.

REPLY.

Shingles [herpes zoster] is the most likely cause. In elderly patients the pain often persists for long periods even after the vesicles [sores] have disappeared. Injections of pituitrin or of the patient's own blood are of value in many cases.

ARTHRITIS IN JAW.

REPLY.

Fibrous changes within the muscles or an acute or chronic inflammation involving the bony socket. This latter condition probably is arthritis. If the difficulty is painful, some infection should be suspected within the mouth or throat.

ORANGES AND APPLES.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—Orange groves have to be fertilized at least twice a year. They must be sprayed about six times a year. They have to be kept in a state of cultivation. Most groves have to be irrigated in one way or another, at least at times.

They are shipped from Florida, an average of about 1,200 miles. They have to be graded as carefully as apples. They are as subject to frosts as much or more than the apple. When you buy a dozen oranges at the average store for 35 cents, you are paying about 5 cents per pound. I bought a dozen fine oranges yesterday for 25 cents, making the price a little over 3 cents.

Apples do not have to be fertilized twice a year; neither do they have to be sprayed, as a rule, six times per year; neither do they have to be cultivated even every year. Some hardly ever put a harrow in the orchard.

Most of the apples Chicago people eat come from across the lake in Michigan. They can, if desired, bring them in trucks, thereby saving in freight even on that small haul. When you go to your dealer for Michigan apples you pay on an average of 6 or 8 cents per pound. It is needless to tell any one who has a machine what the farmer in Michigan gets for his fruit.

There is much truth in the old saying, "an apple a day will keep the doctor away." Get apples down to a figure so the common man can give his children all they want of that good, wholesome fruit. When that is done no one will lose a cent, for there will be so many more needed.

THE TEACHING OF FRENCH.

Los Angeles, Cal., Jan. 30.—Although I was but an average student and studied French but one year at Chicago's famous university down on the Midway, the teaching was so good and the requirements so exacting I had the groundwork on which to build my postgraduate course taught by French soldiers in dugouts and haylofts after I joined the French army ten years later. Through the years I have pursued French as an avocation rather than a vocation. My interest in this subject has led me into a casual examination of the teaching of French here on the coast as well as in the east. I heartily agree with your recent editorials criticizing French instruction in our schools.

As a student at a well known school in Paris, attended largely by American and English teachers of French, some years ago I sat across the aile from a very personable young man who told me that having recently graduated from West Point and having made good grades in French he had been sent to Paris to take this three months' course and after a year would return to the military academy to teach French. Apparently they don't take French very seriously at West Point.

As to our secondary schools [excepting the competent few] I find most of these so-called teachers people who know French just as they know Latin and Greek. They speak it just as they speak Latin and Greek, that is, not at all. And like Latin and Greek to them it is simply another dead language. Who could expect our red blooded boys and girls to grow enthusiastic over a corpse? Wherever you find a teacher able to blow the breath of life into this beautiful, virile language you will find a lot of boys and girls learning French and liking it.

AMERICAN PEASANTS.

Logansport, Ind., Feb. 2.—Why, you ask, are high school and college girls wearing peasant headkerchiefs, dirndls, and wooden shoes? Because the American's interests have widened. More European made cinemas, or cinemas with a continental background, are being shown; more and better books are being read by more and more common people; dictators and crises command interest in international diplomacy and in the nations involved. Adult intelligence is spreading in the United States, resulting in awareness of and desire for the romance of Europe.

DANIEL FRANCIS CLANCY.

LESS THAN A BLIZZARD.

La Grange, Ill., Feb. 6.—A lot of news has been created about a big blizzard in Chicago. Just the other day a man from Tennessee wrote his relatives in this vicinity really anxious about their safety. He had read about the terrible storm.

Now granting that many folks thought that this was a blizzard, we must face the facts. To those who have really faced blizzards in the central west, the Chicago storm was a pretty poor imitation. How would your readers like to see a 30 to 40 degrees below zero storm with snow so blinding and the cold so intense that people perished right within a few rods of shelter? Such storms have been common on our great plains. They came before the days of automobiles and there were no radios and no mail deliveries and no snowplows to help out. In those storms, some of which I have seen, many teachers have kept their pupils in school all night and scores have perished with the cold because of becoming lost in the raging snow and cold.

Over at a store in the loop the day of the storm I saw men by the dozens buying high four buckle overshoes and one would have thought that we were in for a real siege. And yet it was a pretty poor imitation of a blizzard. I have a friend in one of our northern states. He told me of a winter when for days the temperatures never got up to zero and went down to 55 below zero. The storms and cold were so intense that people were marooned for days and even the walls of the houses would crack on winter evenings. This is no exaggeration. We have gotten a lot of bad publicity in southern and west coast publications and folks there pity us. After all, we haven't much to worry about; it came a long ways from being a real blizzard.

THE RETURN TO THE FRENCH FRONT.

Madison, Wis., Feb. 6.—Congratulations on your fine editorial, "The Return to the French Front."

It is really our first bold effort to make good our promises to our dead comrades to stop wars. Of course we cannot do that, but we can make war less likely.

I am told that in the armistice there is a clause that provides that none of Germany's territory shall be taken from her; also that this was a solomn promise of President Wilson.

To live up to the terms of the armistice give Italy what was promised, with interest compounded. That would certainly make the next war less likely. It will be the first gesture to convince the living that our honored dead of 1917-'18 did not die in vain.

What can be done to stop this preaching of the gospel of hatred? It can lead to nothing but war. Instead of calling names we should say as our governor does, "God bless you." Praying might help some.

INTERNATIONAL JEWRY.

Chicago, Feb. 7.—You often hear of "international Jewry." Well, there is no such thing. The Jews have nothing in common excepting religion, the same as any other denomination.

One would think that all the Jews of the world had some secret subway of communication. That is a fake, pure and simple.

ALFRED DECKER.

FRIEND OF THE PEOPLE

The volume of Legal Friend mail necessitates printed statements on common questions. No copies or records of the letters or answers are kept. Hence follow-up letters should be complete in themselves. If questions are based on some previously printed problem a clipping of the article should accompany. Most of the replies are mailed. Letters bearing no name and address are disregarded. A self-addressed envelope will expedite handling.

TERMS OF WILL.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—My brother died several years ago, and, having no family, he willed his property to his wife. Before she died in 1935 she made a will leaving all her property to her relatives and a church.

Through inquiring about her I learned from the Probate court that her will was [1] probated in 1935 but was still [2] in the process of administration. Just what does that mean? There are no minors receiving bequests.

3. What could be some of the causes of such delay in settling a will of this kind?

4. I have a copy of the will and she does not stipulate any definite time when these bequests shall be given. She states in her will that her real estate shall be sold to satisfy these bequests.

5. Also, should not her husband's brothers and sisters share in this estate, as he made the money for this real estate?

J. D.

1. We assume that the context of your letter would show that the meaning at this point was that the will was proved and admitted to probate.
2. This would mean that the final account had not been approved nor the administrator discharged.
3. Some of the assets of the estate might be in process of litigation. The administrator might merely be dilatory.
4. Under Illinois law creditors are allowed a year in which to file their claims. Ordinarily the estate should be closed shortly after the expiration of that year.
5. The wording of the will would control unless it can be set aside on proof of undue influence or lack of testamentary capacity.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

EXECUTOR OF WILL.

Chicago, Feb. 3.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—Is it the duty of the executor of a will [1] to collect rent from property [2] and apply it on any outstanding debts?

3. Is it necessary for executor at any time to notify other heirs as to disposition of money collected?

4. Can executor being member of family collect compensation for his duties from estate?

5. Does executor who is an heir have to consult other heirs as to price for which property will be sold?

J. H.

1. The executor does not necessarily have anything to do with the real estate.
2. If the personal property is insufficient to pay debts, then he should see that the income or even the principal of the real estate is subjected to payment of the debts.
3. His obligation is to account to the court rather than to the beneficiaries.
4. Yes, the Illinois statute says not over 6 per cent of the personal property.
5. Depends on the wording of the will on whether the property is being sold under statutory proceedings to pay debts, or on whether it is being sold under private agreement with the heirs.

TRIBUNE LAW DEPARTMENT.

LEGALITY OF WILL.

Chicago, Feb. 1.—[Legal Friend of the People.]—1. I am writing with reference to the legality of a will that had been written on a piece of envelope and witnessed by two business associates.

2. In the event an original and authentic will had been drawn up could same have been destroyed in lieu of the above after death?

3. Would there be a duplicate of the original will recorded that one might check on?

W. B. B.

1. The kind of paper that it is written on is immaterial. The will would be valid as far as the facts stated are concerned.
2. Depends on whether the present will shows an intent to supersede the previous will.
3. Ordinarily there is no recording during the testator's lifetime.

LETTER REVEALS BUSY LINCOLN'S HELP FOR WIDOW

Illinois Gets Document Written to Stanton.

Springfield, Ill., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Abraham Lincoln's compassion for the mother of a soldier whose pay had been withheld for punishment was disclosed today in a letter from the great emancipator to his secretary of war, Edwin M. Stanton.

The letter, said Paul Angle, head of the state historical library, was recently acquired by the state and was made public today because tomorrow is the 130th anniversary of Lincoln's birth.

Dated March 1, 1864, the letter follows:

"A poor widow, by the name of Baird, has a son in the army, that for some offense has been sentenced to serve a long time without pay or at most, with very little pay.

"I do not like this punishment of withholding pay. It falls so very hard upon poor families. After he has been serving in this way for several months, at the tearful appeal of the poor mother, I made a direction that he be allowed to enlist for a new term, on the same condition as others.

"She now comes, and says she cannot get it acted upon. Please do it. Yours truly, A. LINCOLN."

Angle said Illinois now owns the largest collection of Lincoln autographs in existence. The library has approximately 200 Lincoln letters and documents in the collection.

Last Man to See His Face.

Leon P. Hopkins, 87 years old, a retired Springfield musician and plumber, said today he was the last man who saw Lincoln's face.

Hopkins has twice opened and resealed the coffin containing Lincoln's body. On April 14, 1887, a committee of nine Springfield residents viewed the body to stop rumors that an attempt to steal the body in 1876 had been successful.

On Sept. 26, 1901, the body was inspected prior to being buried for the last time beneath six feet of concrete.

Hopkins said today he saw Lincoln's face after the committee looked into the coffin, then soldered a sheet of lead over an opening cut into the coffin.

"The face looked just like some of those portraits that every one has seen," Hopkins said.

Lincoln's tomb, twice rebuilt, and dedicated by President Hoover in 1931 after the last improvement, has cost more than $450,000. It is situated atop the highest knoll of Oak Ridge cemetery, north of Springfield.

Beats a Drum

CITY AND STATE JOIN IN LINCOLN TRIBUTES TODAY

Services at Springfield to Top Observances.

Abraham Lincoln's "boys," fourteen of them, rallied again yesterday in his memory. The G. A. R. veterans, trembling but loyal, met in Memorial hall in the Chicago Library building, as they have done for forty years, to celebrate his birthday anniversary today and to hear again the stirring story of their first commander in chief.

Other commemorative ceremonies will continue today throughout the city, as Chicago joins the nation in honoring Lincoln's birth 130 years ago. Addresses, movies, and patriotic programs will be dedicated to his memory. Tomorrow will be a legal holiday. Public offices, public and parochial schools, and banks will be closed.

Service to Be Held At Tomb.

Lincoln's tomb in Springfield will be the center of the national observances where, as in the past, war veterans and dignitaries will make a pilgrimage.

President Roosevelt will be represented by Brig. Gen. Walter E. Prosser, commandant of the 6th field artillery brigade, who will place a wreath on Lincoln's tomb. Acting Gov. John Stelle, Brig. Gen. Carlos E. Black, state adjutant general, and Stephen Chadwick, national commander of the American Legion, also will participate. All religious faiths will be represented in memorial eulogies.

The scene of the services, the twice rebuilt Lincoln tomb, represents an outlay of more than $450,000.

Yesterday saw the opening at Mount Pulaski, in Logan county, of another of the numerous Lincoln memorials in central Illinois—the courthouse in which "old Abe" once argued cases.

Chicago's largest ceremony will be held at 2:30 p. m. at the Lincoln monument in Lincoln park. Seventeen Boy Scout troops will participate, as will organizations from Waller High school, the Lincoln Park and Harold Taylor posts of the American Legion, and the Sheffield branch of the Chicago Boys' Drum and Bugle corps.

The Chicago Historical society will hold its annual open house this afternoon. Visitors will be escorted through the society's renowned Lincoln hall, where one of the three finest Lincoln collections in the country is on display. A one act play, "Why Lincoln Grew a Beard," given by a group of children under the direction of Miss Pearl Roos, will be presented at 11 a. m. and at 2, 3, and 4 p. m. in the society auditorium at North avenue and Clark street.

Lawyers Plan Program.

The Decalogue Society of Lawyers will meet for dinner tonight in the Palmer House for a patriotic program. More than 1,000 are expected to attend. William D. Knight and Henry P. Chandler, presidents of the Illinois and Chicago Bar associations respectively, will speak. Ald. Jacob M. Arvey will be toastmaster.

Federal Judge Michael L. Igoe will speak on Lincoln tomorrow evening at the annual B'nai B'rith conference at Crawford-Roosevelt hall. The Chicago Lawndale lodge is sponsoring the meeting.

JAIL'S ELECTRIC EYE MAY BE ALL WET, BUT IT DETECTS A PISTOL

Cleveland, O., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The electric eye at Cuyahoga county jail detected metal on the person of a youthful visitor. A deputy pulled a pistol from the visitor's pocket and clapped him into jail. After spending the night in a cell the youth convinced officers it was a mistake. He explained that he was tired of having his little brother squirt at him and had pocketed little brothers' water pistol.

Illinois Wesleyan Observes 89th Year with Lincoln Talk

Bloomington, Ill., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—In observance of Illinois Wesleyan's 89th anniversary Monday L. L. Houser of Peoria will give a founders' day address on Abraham Lincoln at the university. One of Lincoln's closest friends, Judge David Davis, was among the pioneer Methodists who founded Wesleyan in 1850. Also listed among the founders are Jesse Fell, Isaac Funk, James Allin, J. E. McClun, and Peter Cartwright. The winter meeting of the university's board of trustees is to be held in connection with the founders' day celebration.

AIR TRIP REVEALS EXPANSE OF CHILE NITRATE COUNTRY

BY CAPT. M. M. CORPENING.
[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

SANTIAGO, Chile, Feb. 4.—[By Air Mail.]—The flight from La Paz, Bolivia, to Santiago offers little in the way of scenic attractions to passengers. The 1,200 mile jaunt is broken by one overnight stop in Arica.

Leaviing the modern little air depot in La Paz, a passenger's attention first is attracted to the length of time it takes the big Douglas plane to leave the ground. The airfield is a large, barren, practically level plateau with no outlined runways. The elevation is approximately 15,000 feet, and the thin air makes it difficult for the propeller blades to take hold.

The gap in the snow capped peaks separating La Paz from the Pacific ocean is far off to the west. Another 1,000 feet of elevation is necessary to scale the outlet trail safely.

Equipped with Oxygen Tubes.

The course of flight is southwest, with undulating terrain and pure distance for amusement. The ship is equipped with an oxygen tube in each seat. If a passenger feels faint, he picks up the little rubber hose, puts the end in his mouth and presses the release button.

After an hour the distant snow appears off to the right and left and the downward glide begins. A few days is not sufficient time to become acclimated to high altitude, so the heavier air is welcome.

Leaving the upland country and coming into the nitrate country where rain never falls, the terrain, is rough and barren and even the rocks have no color.

Finds a Made-in-America Church.

Down in the desolate airport in Arica, as in the La Paz depot, a passenger thinks maybe a joke is being perpetrated. The town is over a ridge, snuggled down by the sea.

It has no charm, because of the dryness, but the town boasts a good hotel [when water is running, which it wasn't on the stop overnight] and a made to order church—a small frame Catholic church which was made piece by piece in the United States and imported for erection. Whoever did it was good. The place is attractive.

At 7 a. m. we are off for a six hour flight to Santiago. The airline station wagon takes passengers to the airport. Out south the flight goes over the nitrate country with the Pacific off to the right and the inevitable [in this country] snow caps far off to the east.

Famous for Nitrates.

The nitrate country is not flat and it is not mountainous, it is not sand. it's not clay, it's not smooth—it's just so much terrain that for ages people avoided until the discovery of nitrate made it famous.

The plane lands in Antofagasta, Chile, for fuel, and the passengers observe Chilean National Airways' German made ship preparing for a takeoff. An American board says that plane had been there 30 minutes, and had made a stop since leaving Arica 5 minutes ahead of our own Douglas, which made no intermediate landing.

Off at 11 a. m. from Antofagasta—which has the usual large, dusty, level, unimproved airfield—the flight continues down the coast. Occasionally a nitrate plant shows up, and over on the coast a shipping settlement. Otherwise, nothing.

Beautiful Valleys Appear.

Not until the outskirts of Santiago are reached from the north are any substantial signs of civilization observed. With the nitrate land giving away to the infinitely more attractive wine country, passengers begin to boost Chile. Beautiful little cultivated valleys appear on the landscape.

Off to the left is Mount Mercedario, about 22,270 feet high, the highest peak in Chile. Closer to Santiago, seen farther away over the Argentine line, is Mount Aconcagua, about 23,080 feet high, the loftiest in South America. Down in Santiago, on a big, unimproved airfield with a modern depot, we land at 3 p. m.

LAKE SKIPPERS TEST LAND LEGS ON DANCE FLOOR

Captains from Major Ports at Party.

Captains from every major port on the Great Lakes tested their land legs last night as the Chicago chapter of the International Shipmasters' association resumed an old custom and held a party. It was half dance and half get-together.

These masters of ships that pass in the night neglected their wives and children to gather in little clusters and talk shop. About 400 persons whose interests concern some phase of the steamship trade gathered in the Great Northern hotel.

Chicagoans Drop in for Visit.

There was a delegation of doctors and nurses from the Marine hospital. Capt. J. O. Anderson, retiring chief of the coast guard's Old Chicago station, was scheduled to drop in. The steamboat inspection office here was represented.

The reception committee was headed by Capt. William T. Bright, master of the passenger ship South America. Capt. Bright, a Chicagoan, has been on the lakes for fifty-four years, although he's only 68 years old. His sailing career began at 13, when he left his home in Harbor Beach, Mich., to ship as a helper on the tramp schooner Seaman. He has been a captain for thirty-six years.

Awarded Gold Medal.

Last night Capt. Bright got a gold medal to indicate that last year he was grand president of the association.

Capt. Ed Palm of Milwaukee, whose ship is the ore carrier Richard V. Lindabury, and Capt. C. A. Wallace of the ore boat J. P. Morgan Jr. exchanged hearty greetings. Each is 53 years old. They were schoolmates together and have been on the lakes for more than thirty years. The Milwaukee chapter of the association held a dance recently, the forty-first annual one, Capt. Palm said. "They really go to town in Cleveland, Buffalo, Detroit, and Milwaukee," added Capt. Wallace, a little enviously.

The Chicago chapter is now headed by Capt. I. J. Berg, a tug master. The association was founded in 1886 "for insurance and social purposes," according to Capt. Wallace. Its founders would have been pretty pleased with last night's little effort, at least on the social side.

Naval Vets Honor Evers on 40 Years of Service

Hundreds of naval veterans of the world war fêted Capt. Edward A. Evers in the Naval armory last night on the occasion of his fortieth year in naval service. Among the invited guests were Rear Admiral Hayne Ellis and members of his staf.

WIVES ACCUSE 2 HUSBANDS OF ABUSING BABIES

Two men, charged with mistreating their own babies, were arraigned yesterday before Police Magistrate Clarence L. Brown of Waukegan. Their wives were the accusers.

The first was Andrew Skof, 29 years old, 324 South Utica street, Waukegan. His wife, Signe, told the court that Skof had slapped his daughter, Mary Ann, 3 months old, so severely that there were bruises on the infant's cheeks and forehead. Skof denied this; he said the baby fell. Magistrate Brown continued the case for investigation, but held Skof in jail.

Mrs. Mayme Howlett, 918 10th street, Waukegan, declared her husband, Walter, a WPA worker, beat her and forced her to hand over $5 which she was saving to buy milk for their two babies. He got drunk on the money, she said. Howlett, who is 22, admitted this was true. He was fined $25, and, unable to pay, was sent to the county jail in Waukegan.

TOWNS SURPASS CHICAGO ITSELF IN NEW HOUSES

Most Activity Shown in Evergreen Park.

BY AL CHASE.
[Real Estate Editor.]

Home building again was the outstanding activity in the suburban construction field during January. Permits for nearly three times as many homes were issued in sixty-eight communities as in January, 1938. The suburban total last month was larger than that of Chicago itself. There were 151 permits for homes to cost $1,028,648 in the suburbs in January. In Chicago permits for 128 homes were taken out last month. During January, 1938, suburban permits were issued for 57 homes costing $486,965.

Building of all types in the suburbs was less in January than in December and also below January, last year. The seasonal downward trend accounts for the difference between January and December.

School Projects Are Factor.

The decline as compared with January, last year, is accounted for by two large school projects, totaling over one million dollars, announced in January, 1938. Deducting this million from January, 1938, last month's total really represents a considerable increase in suburban building.

The total building for last month [all types, including residential] in the suburbs was $1,697,392. This compares with $2,039,871 in January, 1938, and with $2,886,963 in December, 1938.

In addition to suburban home building during January exceeding residential construction in Chicago, the building total of all types in the suburbs was greater than for the city in January. The Chicago total last month for all kinds of construction was $1,171,350, compared with the suburbs' $1,697,392.

Progress Is Shown.

Progress in home building in suburban towns, which last month reported permits for homes costing a total of $25,000 or more, is shown in the following table:

	January 1939. Homes.	January 1939. Value.	January 1938. Homes.	January 1938. Value.
Berwyn	7	$53,000	4	$41,550
Clarendon Hills	6	35,000	1	7,500
Crete	4	41,000	No report	....
Evanston	6	55,200	3	33,000
Evergreen Park	16	96,000	No report	....
Gary	8	32,500	None	....
Glencoe	3	37,000	2	37,540
Glenview	7	54,500	4	80,000
Hammond	8	34,725	2	12,850
Highland Park	7	63,360	None	....
Markham	9	45,800	9	40,000
Palos Heights	8	49,172	5	21,200
Park Ridge	5	35,100	None	......
Prospect Hts.	7	30,900	No report	....
Riverdale	5	27,736	2	8,750
Western Springs	5	42,500	1	8,000
Wilmette	3	37,500	1	10,250
Winnetka	3	44,500	None	....

It will be noted that Evergreen Park, of which George Hughes is building commissioner, led all other suburbs in both number and cost of new residential construction. Highland Park was second in total cost of new homes and Evanston was third.

The average estimated value of homes in the suburbs has declined steadily. In 1936 it was $9,000. The next year it had dropped to $7,700. In 1938 it was $7,050. In January, this year, the average was $6,812.

All of the foregoing information was supplied by the Greenebaum Investment company in its monthly survey of suburban building.

GETS TITLE SIX MONTHS AFTER U.S. ACCEPTS BID

Six months after its bid for the old Evanston postoffice property at the southwest corner of Sherman and Church was accepted by the United States government, title was conveyed to the R. E. corporation yesterday. The property, which fronts 125 feet on Church and 150 on Sherman, was conveyed by quitclaim deed. The price was $220,639.

Since last August the new owners have been awaiting action from Washington. The postoffice activities were transferred to the new building. The keys of the old building were turned over to the new owner. But nothing could be done until the usual federal red tape was unwound and the title actually conveyed by the government. The new owner couldn't wreck the old building and couldn't make leases for his contemplated new structure.

Raymond E. Herman, who represents the R. E. corporation [owned by Albert D. Lasker, former president of Lord & Thomas], yesterday said that a one story store building, designed by Alfred S. Alschuler, will be constructed as soon as the old postoffice is wrecked. No leases have yet been made.

Floor Covering Concern Rents Randolph St. Space

The Oscar L. Paris company, contract and wholesale floor covering specialties, yesterday leased the entire fifth floor in the 308 West Randolph Street building. The company formerly was in the Morton building.

SOUTH SIDE FLAT SALE

The six flats at 3347-49 South Michigan avenue were sold by C. H. Remien to Rubin and Anna Ekeeson. Quinlan & Tyson were brokers.

$355,000 Theater and Store Building for Oak Park

Plans and specifications have been completed for the above business building and theater to be constructed at the southwest corner of Austin boulevard and North avenue, Oak Park, by the North Austin Boulevard corporation. Lester P. Abelson heads the company. J. E. O. Pridmore of Chicago is architect. Work will start shortly, with completion expected about Aug. 1. The building will cost a reported $250,000 and the land is valued at $105,000, making a total investment of $355,000. The 1,000 seat theater has been leased and negotiations are under way with three national and two local chain organizations for some of the fourteen stores. Paschen Brothers, Inc., will have the general contract. Supervision of the construction will be under John B. De Voney of Frankenstein & Co. Peter G. Maniates is an associate broker with De Voney in renting the building. Allen M. Weary made the above sketch.

Suburban Prize Winner Cost $5,000

The above residence of Lawrence Lederer of the Universal Oil company in Smith & Dawson's Prospect Heights 360 acre development is typical of the homes being built there. Designed by Architect Carl J. Kastrup of Forest Park, it won first prize ($200) in the moderate priced house class in the recent Public Service Company of Northern Illinois modernization and home building contest.

The construction cost is reported to have been $4,450, plus $550 for the one acre site. The service charge and other incidentals totaled $141. It was financed with a twenty-five year Federal Housing administration insured mortgage negotiated through the Percy Wilson Mortgage company.

The monthly payments are $32.72. Of this sum $26.33 is for interest and principal, $3 is for taxes, $2.48 for fire insurance, and 91 cents for FHA insurance.

The house is on Clarendon street, just east of Elmhurst road (State route 54) and north of McDonald road. It has four rooms on the first floor and a completed stairway leading to the second floor, where there are two unfinished bedrooms.

Smith-Dawson Add 110 Acres to Community

Smith & Dawson yesterday acquired an additional 110 acres for expansion of their Prospect Heights development, one mile north of the village limits of Mount Prospect. This gives them a total of 360 acres. During the two and a half years they have been developing Prospect Heights they have built and sold one hundred homes, all of which are occupied. Forty-two of the hundred were erected during 1938. All occupy acre sites and sold from $5,000 to $7,500.

The property just acquired is east of their original holdings and extends east to Wheeling road and south to McDonald road. The land was bought from Catherine Haddon at an undisclosed price.

With acquisition of additional home sites Smith & Dawson announced their 1939 building program. According to Allen H. Dawson, the firm contemplates constructing seventy-five moderate priced residences this year. Already nineteen homes are under way, all scheduled for May 1 completion. All but five of this group have been sold.

The Frank A. Schmidt Construction company, 9218 Cottage Grove avenue, which has built fifty-four homes in the last five months [most of them to order], said yesterday that it plans to build 100 more during 1939. Of the original fifty-four homes, thirty-one have been completed and the other twenty-three are under construction.

The 1939 building program calls for twenty-five new homes in Chicago Heights. The company already has finished two houses in that city and has three under construction. Edward McClellan is architect.

Loop Taxpayer Ready Nov. 1 70 Pct. Rented

Wreckers will start tearing down the twenty story Capitol building, at the northeast corner of State and Randolph, on May 1. Demolition will take two months, it is expected. Work will then be started on a $400,000 two story "taxpayer," scheduled for completion four months later, or about Nov. 1. Shaw, Naess & Murphy are the architects.

Owners Approve Program.

According to Arthur Rubloff & Co., managing and rental agents of the property, 90 per cent of the note holders against the property voted in favor of the demolition and rebuilding program. Already 70 per cent of the new building has been rented, Rubloff said. Roof space has been leased for one of the largest electric signs west of New York.

The largest tenant in the new building will be the Walgreen company, occupying the corner store and basement. It was said that Walgreen will spend $200,000 making this the largest and finest store in the entire chain. Escalators will be installed leading from the subway level to the store's main floor.

Some of the Lessees.

Other lessees will be Wolock & Bauer, who have rented Randolph street space for a women's shoe shop; Famous Permanent Wave Shops, Inc., operating sixteen Chicago units; Capezio Professional Shoe corporation and the Brass Rail, a saloon, at the Benton place corner and a cocktail lounge on the subway level.

The Capitol building, best known as the Masonic Temple, was in its day one of the world's outstanding skyscraper. It was erected in 1891 and 1892.

At the Realty Boards

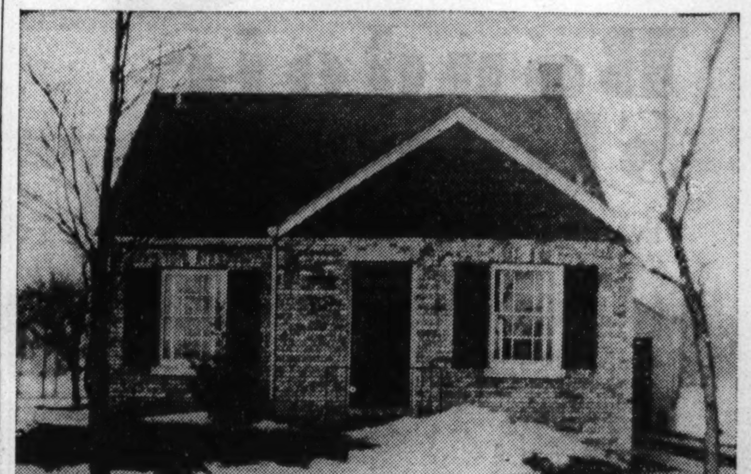
West side realtors who have been in business for twenty-five years or more will be paid a special tribute at the next meeting of the West Side Real Estate board, tomorrow noon at the Graemere hotel. The meeting will be called "Old Timers' Day."

Alvah C. Roebuck.

Among the "old timers" expected to be present, and the number of years they have had real estate offices in their own names, are: Frank Locke, 60; John P. Kenny, 56; George H. Schneider, 52; John T. McEnery, 50; James Storkan, 50; Albert F. Keeney, 44; Howard Ames, 42; John F. Diffenderffer, 39; Frank J. Petru, 38; F. C. Pilgrim, 37; Edward J. Scott, 35; W. F. Conlon, 35; Emil Geringer, 35; John S. Clark, 35; M. J. Barnes, 35; Wm. W. H. Wright, 29, and William R. Henricksen, 28.

Alvah C. Roebuck, original partner and co-founder with Richards W. Sears of Sears, Roebuck & Co., will extend greetings "from an old timer to old timers." Paul C. Loeber, president of the Chicago Real Estate board, will offer a toast from the realtors of Chicago and Albert F. Keeney will respond. There will be a display of old time west side photographs.

This House Cost $5,100



This is one of the fifty-four houses built by the Frank A. Schmidt Construction company during the last five months. It is the home of Emil Fink, manager of the A. and P. store in Chicago Heights, and is at 395 West 12th street in that suburb. The construction cost is $5,100, according to Alvin J. Gilbert of the Schmidt company. The owner already owned the lot. It has five rooms. It was financed by the Percy Wilson Mortgage company with a 25 year $4,900 Federal Housing administration insured mortgage. Monthly payments are $36.65. Of this $28.67 is for principal and interest, 99 cents for FHA insurance, 99 cents for fire insurance, and $6 for taxes. Edward McClellan is architect.

Survey Shows South Side Apartments 95 Pct. Rented

South side apartment occupancy increased materially during the last three months, according to James P. Meade of the South Side Renting Men's association. A survey of more than 45,000 rentable units managed by members of the association, showed an average of only 5 per cent vacant, or an occupancy of 95 per cent. Most real estate dealers consider 93 per cent normal.

Most of the vacancies are in the larger apartments. In the small units the vacancies are only 2.95 per cent, the survey shows. In the three and four room units the vacancies are 4.8 per cent. In the five and six room flats they are 5 per cent and in the seven room units 5.8 per cent. This is an average of 5 per cent.

"January, usually one of the poorest renting months of the year, has shown remarkable activity in the absorption of vacancies," Meade said. "We believe the decreasing vacancies, the impending all-time high tax rates and the wage increases and vacation allowances granted to janitors will force a stiffening in rents."

Rent renewals probably will be made at nominal increases, with a few larger increases to offset existing inequalities in existing schedules, Meade said.

Prior to May 1, 1938, occupancy had climbed to 99 per cent. After May 1 vacancies began to increase and occupancy slid to 90 per cent. It then began to climb to its present level of 95 per cent.

WILL RAZE FIVE UPPER STORIES OF 7 STORY UNIT

The seven story building at 115-17 North Wells street, owned by the Eugene S. Pike estate land trust, is to be cut to a two story structure. The five upper stories are to be removed, and a roof put over the remaining two. The tenants in the two lower floors are to remain while the upper floors are being wrecked.

The building was built prior to 1880. In 1919 the two lower floors were remodeled and a new terra cotta front installed. W. Gibbons Uffendell, architect of that remodeling, also is designing the present changes. Wreckers will start work on May 1.

The nine story Enterprise building at 127 North Wells, also owned by the Pike interests, is to have new elevators.

Realty Miscellany

J. H. Van Alsburg, chairman of the committee on air distribution and air friction of the American Society of Heating and Ventilating Engineers, will speak on "Ducts, Dampers, Deflection, and Distribution" at the next meeting of the Illinois chapter of that organization tomorrow evening at the Merchants and Manufacturers club, in the Merchandise Mart.

William Barts, manager of the mortgage loan department of the Mutual Trust Life Insurance company, will speak on "Some Aspects of Institutional Real Estate Sales," before the Allied Real Estate brokers next Friday noon at the Sheridan Plaza hotel.

Courtney R. Gleason, for many years identified with appraisal, management, and buying and selling of apartment properties, has opened new offices at 10 South La Salle street.

CITIZEN GROUP SHOWS HOW TO PREVENT SLUMS

Kenwood Property Owners Pool Energies.

What can be done to prevent a high class residence district from becoming a slum? This question, repeatedly asked by worried property owners in various parts of Chicago and other cities, has been answered by a group of south side residents with one word—"organization." These real estate owners not only have stopped the spread of deterioration by pooling their energies, but they have turned the trend the other way—upwards.

Newton C. Farr.

Slum consciousness took definite form in the Oakland-Kenwood area in the spring of 1937. A small group of leading citizens was worried over the exodus of persons having the ability to pay taxes, and the spread of depreciation from nearby slum areas.

Organize Property Owners.

They decided that the most practical way to resist deterioration was in organizing persons whose homes and investments were in the community. They realized that when persons financially able to pay taxes moved out of the neighborhood, the tax burden was increased for those remaining. They were aware, too, that what should be one of the most desirable sections of the city was being stripped of residential appeal by lack of organization among civic minded citizens.

During the summer of 1937 meetings were held and the limits of the territory to be saved from deterioration were outlined. The area is bounded on the north by 33d street, on the west by Cottage Grove avenue, by Hyde Park boulevard on the south and by the Illinois Central on the east.

Farr Made President.

The Oakland-Kenwood Property Owners' association was chartered under Illinois laws. Newton C. Farr was made president. Sixty directors were elected to control its policies. They include Paul Caspers, Naomi Donnelly, Newton C. Farr, Charles T. Byrne, Elizabeth Faulkner, Mrs. Albion L. Headburg, Wellington Leavitt, Mark Levy, Fred Lorish, Jane Mazan, Edwin B. Mayer, R. J. Neal, the Rev. Thomas M. Pender, Clarence Poffenberger, Walter Powers, Leonard Reid, C. C. Robbins, B. E. Sunny, Albert H. Veeder, Charles R. Walgreen, Dr. Alfred L. Wilson, Mrs. Hugh T. Martin, M. K. Binkley, and Richard W. Yerkes.

These directors were selected for their interest in the community and, as far as possible, by blocks. Since last March the association has sent monthly bulletins to members to report developments which have a bearing on real estate values and the desirability of the community.

Lists Accomplishments.

A full time business manager, J. V. O'Neil, was engaged and an office was established at 4300 Ellis avenue as a clearing house for suggestions for improvements and for complaints.

"With the aid of public officials a number of public services, which did not involve special assessments, were introduced," said President Farr. "These include extensive resurfacing, sidewalk replacement, leveling of parkways, alley grading, demolition of useless buildings, and improved service in street and alley cleaning.

"In coöperation with other neighborhood organizations and business groups, a supervised recreation program was undertaken on ten vacant lots during last spring and summer.

Eliminate Slum Causes.

"The association also accomplished removal of abandoned automobiles, parkway displays and a trailer camp. It had vacant lots leveled to the sidewalk line, secured the enforcement of the zoning and no-peddling ordinances, and eliminated a number of nuisances which in themselves aren't serious but which in combination contribute to the creeping 'blight' which in several close in neighborhoods has brought about actual slums."

Several months ago a moving picture of the community was made to show its good features and those which can be improved. It has been shown to a number of groups to establish community-consciousness and responsibility.

A recent bulletin of the organization summarized sanitation laws. This was distributed by the bureau of streets to shopkeepers. It also was given to school children with instructions that it be delivered to parents.

Business Groups Coöperate.

Local business groups coöperated to eliminate unsanitary and unsightly merchandise displays beyond the building lines. The association also bought oil drums for use as refuse containers.

Financing the organization was as follows: The initial cash requirements were provided by a number of property owners who paid $50 each as "sponsor dues."

"Thereafter, notices were mailed to all owners of property in the district, showing annual dues of one-fifth of 1 per cent of the assessed value in 1935 [the year of the last quadrennial assessment] with a maximum of $50 for any property. This method meant that the owner whose property was worth $5,000 had an assessment of $1,875 and his annual dues amounted to $3.75.

Inspires Activity.

According to Business Manager O'Neil, the association's maintenance and improvement program during 1938 inspired many property owners to build new homes and also to modernize existing ones.

"We believe the accomplishments of the Oakland-Kenwood group may point the way to a number of other organizations which are groping for guidance," he said. "We've been consulted by other groups which expect to pattern their activities after ours."

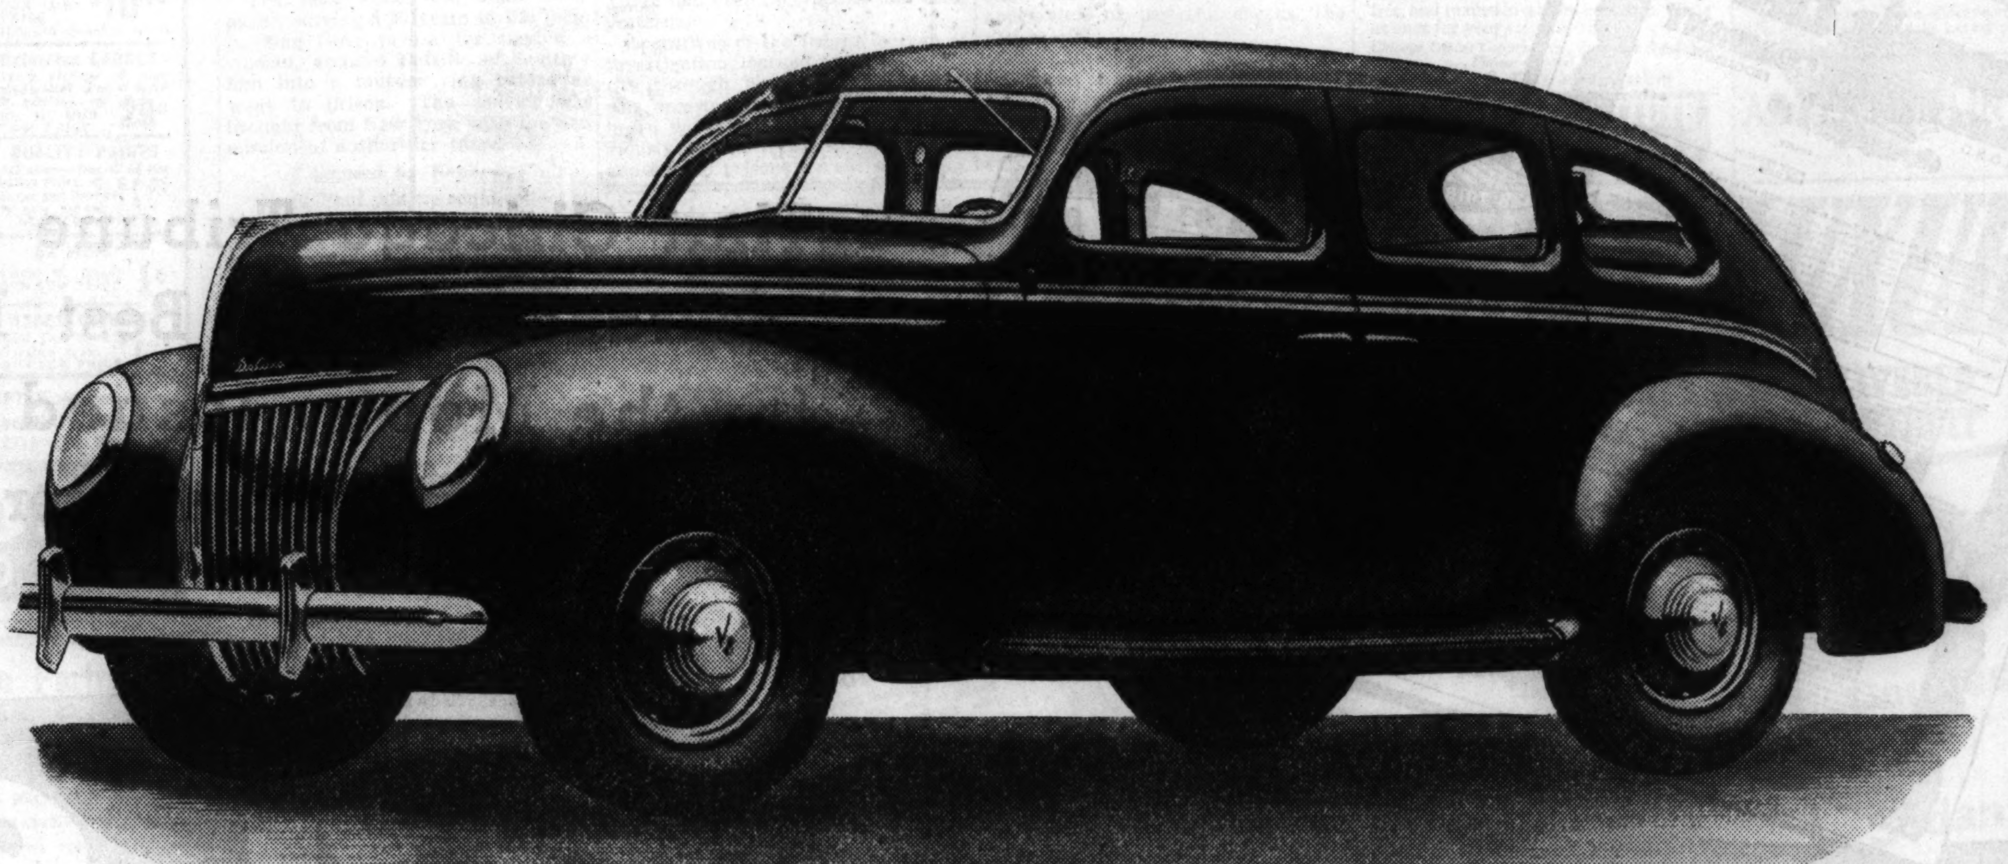
DE LUXE FORD V·8 FORD V·8 MERCURY 8 LINCOLN-ZEPHYR V·12

STYLE LEADERS FOR 1939



DE LUXE FORD V·8

Ford style leadership grows naturally out of our endless effort to build a better car. It is an outward expression of deep-down, clear-through quality. And it has a practical purpose.

Important as beauty may be, it is interesting to realize that utility dictated these changes in style. Beauty may be only a surface matter, but true functional design increases the usefulness of the car as owners drive it day by day during its long life. The style of Ford cars is but evidence of the Ford policy to build the better way.

On the De Luxe Ford, the Mercury and the Lincoln-Zephyr, smart radiator grilles are set low in front. They look better that way—and they permit more efficient cooling. The radiator fan is attached to the front end of the crankshaft, low, in position to draw the outside air directly through the radiator. Thus function guides form.

Streamlines flow from end to end, side to side. The windshield slopes neatly. Rear fenders blend into the long rear deck. This gives a handsome effect. But more than mere looks are important here! Streamlining first reduces wind-resistance in front and wind-drag behind. Performance is better. Gasoline goes farther.

The cars are low on the ground. This increases the impression of fleetness and grace. But more important, it increases safety! You are more secure, in these cars with the lower center of gravity, than you were in "perched-up" cars of yesterday.

All these are instances to show that style, in itself, is not so important as style with a reason. Form that grows out of function is more than beauty. It is beauty combined with forward-looking engineering. It is a motor car at its modern best!

The unity of the Ford, Mercury and Lincoln-Zephyr family is a unity of value as well as of style. The V-type 8-cylinder and 12-cylinder engines . . . the economy of operation . . . the great comfort and safety . . . the appointments . . . the scientific soundproofing are all typical of Ford value. All are possible at the price because Ford methods, resources and experience make them possible.

Where do Ford, Mercury and Lincoln-Zephyr styles come from? They come from thinking ahead. They come from the functions of a car that underlie its outward form. And they represent, we believe we can say, another important step in pioneering by the Ford Motor Company.

PLOT TO MURDER 10 FOR INSURANCE IS LAID TO TAILOR

Bodies of 5 Exhumed; 4 Held Poison Victims.

Philadelphia, Pa., Feb. 11.—(AP)—A heavy-set little tailor, described by detectives as a witchcraft practicer, was held without bail today for grand jury action on charges in a widespread plot to murder for insurance.

Witnesses unfolded at a magistrate's hearing a bizarre tale of "black magic" conjured in what investigators said was a conspiracy to kill persons in New York, New Jersey, and Pennsylvania, with poison after placing insurance on their lives.

The tailor is Paul Petrillo, 45 years old, who was held on charges of conspiracy to kill and soliciting to commit murder.

Charge Poison Evidence.

The bodies of five persons have been exhumed in the investigation and four of them were found to be poison victims, according to the authorities.

Police Sergeant Samuel Riccardi testified that the tailor was the leader in a plot to kill at least ten persons for a total of $100,000 insurance.

The tailor's nephew, John Cacopardo, serving a 30 years to life term in Sing Sing prison for slaying a woman, accused Petrillo of inviting him into a murder ring before he went to prison. The convict was brought from New York with the permission of authorities there.

Accused by Nephew.

"Uncle Paul said we could collect at least $500 insurance on each one we poisoned," said Cacopardo, who charged Petrillo "framed" him by testifying against him as a state's witness in his trial three years ago for slaying Molly Starace in Brooklyn.

Two women and Herman Petrillo, the tailor's cousin, also are charged with conspiracy. The investigation was started at the request of insurance companies.

TURNS BURGLAR TO SAVE FAMILY FROM HUNGER

Rather than see his family suffer for lack of food John Linden, 55 years old, turned to burglary. That was his story to Sheffield avenue police yesterday as, according to police, he confessed eight burglaries. He lives with his wife and three small children at 2222 Orchard street.

Linden was arrested at Barry and Pine Grove avenues on suspicion by Policemen Harold Hope, Robert Thompson, and Justin McCarthy. They found a ring of master keys in his pockets. Questioned, he broke down. Linden said he was unable to find work as a painter.

BAD CHECK TRAPS SUSPECT IN FARM WOMAN'S DEATH

James Williams, 36 years old, a former convict who is alleged to have slain Mrs. Elsie Lichtenwalter in her home at Wilton Center, Will county, is under arrest at Sacramento, Cal., it was learned yesterday. Will county authorities said he would be extradited.

Williams was a hired man on the Lichtenwalter farm, nineteen miles from Joliet. The slaying took place in October, 1936, and he fled immediately with the family car and a crate of chickens, which he sold later. There had been no trace of him until yesterday.

Operatives of the federal bureau of investigation learned Williams' identity through finger prints after he was arrested in California for cashing a worthless check. He had previously served terms in the Illinois and federal prisons for check forging.

PARKING SPACE KILLER TO PLEAD FOR A NEW TRIAL

Rubin Jersky, who was convicted Friday of slaying Donald Warden, a neighbor, in a quarrel over the parking of an auto on Warden's lawn, based his hope for freedom yesterday on a motion for a new trial. The motion will be heard next Friday by Judge William J. Lindsay.

A Criminal court jury found Jersky guilty and fixed his punishment at twenty years in prison. With the maximum time off for good behavior, Jersky must serve thirteen years and four months.

Warden was shot to death Nov. 3 on the front porch of his home at 1143 South Central avenue in a quarrel with three men, one of whom was Jersky. Witnesses testified that during the quarrel Jersky ran to his car, seized a pistol, and dared Warden to fight. As Warden prepared to do so, they said, Jersky shot him. Jersky said the gun was discharged accidentally when Warden grabbed it as the two were struggling.

SEIZED AT PRINT SHOP ON BOGUS CHECK CHARGES

Carlin F. Von Grosse III., 33 years old, was seized by North Damen avenue police yesterday at the Liberty Press company, printers, 4405 Damen avenue. Von Grosse had gone there to pick up a block of fifty checks he had ordered, the police said.

The checks were those of the Lake View Trust and Savings bank. Von Grosse had brought them in and ordered the addition of serial numbers and other printing to give them the appearance of pay roll checks, the police said.

The police charged Von Grosse already had cashed seven bogus checks for amounts from $10 to $15 in northwest side liquor and grocery stores. He lives with his wife and a son at 4723 Sheridan road.

Crime Commission to Hold Annual Meeting Thursday

Members of the Chicago crime commission will hold their twentieth annual meeting Thursday evening in the Union League club. Bertram J. Cahn, president, and Col. Henry Barrett Chamberlain, operating director, will present reports. Guest speakers will be Chief Justice Michael L. McKinley of the Criminal court, Chief Justice John J. Sonsteby of the Municipal court, and Prof. Arthur J. Todd of Northwestern university.

P. H. HOULAHAN, EX-MANAGER OF ALTON LINE, DIES

Retired Rail Executive's Funeral Tomorrow.

Patrick Henry Houlahan, a construction gang water boy who rose to become general manager of a railroad, died yesterday in the home of a daughter, Mrs. John E. Rigali Jr., at 200 East Delaware place. He was 83 years old.

P. H. Houlahan.

Mr. Houlahan was born in Ottawa, La Salle county, the son of Irish immigrants, who settled there in the 1840s. In 1867 he went to work for the old Ottawa, Oswego and Fox River Valley railroad. Three years later Mr. Houlahan became a section hand.

Witnessed Great Fire in 1871.

He got his first railroad pass in 1871 to travel to Chicago to watch the great fire, whose reflection against the sky could be seen in Ottawa, eighty miles away.

From track hand he advanced to check clerk, station baggage man, ticket agent, brakeman, and conductor. In 1881 he received his first executive appointment as assistant trainmaster of the St. Louis division of the Burlington railroad.

Rises with Other Lines.

In the succeeding years he rose to higher positions with the St. Louis, Arkansas and Texas railway and the old Hannibal and St. Joseph railroad. In 1904 Mr. Houlahan went with the Toledo, St. Louis, and Western railroad [the Clover Leaf route.]

When this line was merged with the Chicago and Alton railroad [now owned by the Baltimore and Ohio] Mr. Houlahan was appointed general manager of the Chicago and Alton system on July 1, 1908. He remained in that position until March 13, 1910, his 55th birthday, when he retired.

In addition to Mrs. Rigali he is survived by a second daughter, Kathleen. The funeral will be held in Ottawa tomorrow.

WM. A. CURRAN, PLUMBERS' UNION AGENT, IS DEAD

Stormy Labor Career Is Ended by Pneumonia.

William A. Curran, 52 years old, business agent for the Chicago Journeymen Plumbers' union, local 130, died last night in Passavant hospital of pneumonia. He had been in poor health for three years.

Wm. A. Curran.

Curran was a life long resident of Chicago and for most of the last twenty years had been a stormy figure in plumbing circles. He became a plumber's helper when he was 15 and was named business agent of the union in 1920. When he assumed charge the treasury was reported to contain $13,000. Four years later it was said to have more than $150,000.

Curran resigned in 1924 a few weeks after he was slugged and shot while attending a union meeting. He was later reëlected and had served ever since.

Curran became president of the Chicago Building Trades council in January, 1922, when the council was fighting the Landis wage award. He persuaded the group to accept the award, but could not hold the plumbers' union to the same agreement. He resigned shortly afterward as head of the council, saying he would rather be business agent of the plumbers' group than president of it.

His son, William Curran, and a daughter, Mrs. Albert Fuller, survive. Funeral services will be held Tuesday morning. Curran lived at 10 West Elm street. He had been active recently in Mayor Kelly's reëlection campaign.

IMPERIAL QUARTET AT LAIN & SON Exclusively

● In 1932 Lain & Son announced that the Imperial Male Quartet and Organist would be included with all Chapel services.

This was the first time in Chicago that any funeral director included music as a part of the service, for previously a quartet had cost $30 to $50 additional.

When the new Chapel of Lain & Son at 5501 N. Ashland was opened in April, 1937, the same policy of making available a quartet was continued.

Now there are two Imperial Quartets—and two Lain & Son chapels—and with every service, regardless of cost, the IMPERIAL MALE QUARTET is included without extra charge—as well as organ and organist.

First with Imperial Quartet
First with Air-Conditioning
First in Chapel Services

Chicago's preference for Lain & Son funerals is now greater than for any other concern!

JOS. BENTONELLI OFFERS VARIED VOCAL RECITAL

Critic Finds Fault with Styling of Songs.

BY EDWARD BARRY.

Joseph Bentonelli came to Orchestra hall last night to present the sixth program in the Adult Education council's Musical Arts Concert series. This is the American tenor who was once Joe Benton of Oklahoma, who later sang in Italy as Giuseppe Bentonelli, and who has more recently appeared with the Metropolitan and Chicago Opera companies under the name of Joseph Bentonelli.

Program Is Varied.

His program last night consisted of old English airs; songs in German, French, and English; and operatic excerpts from the Italian and French repertoire.

Mr. Bentonelli's great asset is a natural voice of amazing beauty and heady resonance. He has developed a diction worthy in purity to his vocal endowments.

His difficulty is and always has been one of style. He has not discovered that the character of the music must determine the method of delivery.

Some Stylistic Faults.

Excellent instances of stylistic faults came last evening in the old English songs, which lacked the limpid simplicity that their character demands. There were theatrical fortes, equally theatrical pianissimos. It was as if a reader should declaim a Ben Jonson lyric.

Mr. Bentonelli's assisting artist was Merrill Freeland, pianist, who achieved in the Rachmaninoff G-sharp minor Prelude a remarkable delicacy of manner.

Woodstock Voters Approve Completion of High School

Woodstock voters yesterday approved two proposals to assure the completion of the Woodstock community high school. The first proposal, authorizing the completion, carried 323 to 191. The second, approving a bond issue of $90,000 for that purpose, won 316 to 194. A gymnasium and a swimming pool are included in the work to be done.

Robert Adams Carr and his bride, the former Margaret Wiley, at the Graham Taylor chapel, where they were married yesterday afternoon.

Plan Wedding Trip

BY JUDITH CASS.

Miss Margaret Wiley and Robert Adams Carr were married at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the Graham Taylor chapel of the University of Chicago, with the Rev. Alfred Wilson officiating. Only members of the families and a few intimate friends attended the reception following at the home of the bride's parents, Mr. and Mrs. Stanley M. Wiley.

The bride, who was attended by her sister, Mrs. Alexander Persons of Worcester, Mass., wore her mother's wedding dress of old lace and ivory satin. Her veil of rosepoint lace also was her mother's. She carried white hyacinths and lilies of the valley. Mr. Carr, who is the son of Mr. and Mrs. Walter S. Carr, and his bride will be at home on the near north side after a wedding trip to Florida and Nassau.

Miss Katherine Young, who was married to John S. Cromelin at 4:30 o'clock yesterday afternoon in the apartment of her parents, Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Hardie Young, 1448 Lake Shore drive, wore a gown of gold and white moiré with a shoulder length veil of tulle. She carried white hyacinths. The bride was unattended. Robert Pyzel was best man for Mr. Cromelin. After a wedding trip Mr. Cromelin and his bride will be at home at 70 East Walton place.

PURDUE BEATS ILLINOIS; INDIANA, N. U. WIN

20 GOLDEN GLOVES CENTERS TO NAME CHAMPIONS

18 OUT OF TOWN FINALS WILL BE HELD THIS WEEK

Chicago Will Add 2 More Squads.

BY HOWARD BARRY.

Two Chicago sections and eighteen out-of-town centers will pick their representatives for the Tournament of Champions during the coming week of Golden Gloves competition.

A glance at the list of states from which the winners of the next few days will come, gives some idea of the vast scope of the tournament and the strength of the opposition Chicago's sectional winners face. On this list are Ohio, Wisconsin, Indiana, Iowa, Illinois, Michigan, Minnesota, Nebraska, Tennessee, Missouri, and Arkansas—and this is only a partial tabulation. In previous weeks boys have qualified from other states and still more will come in before the Tournament of Champions opens Feb. 27. Approximately 25 states will be represented in the field of more than 400 boxers who will gather in the Stadium for this most spectacular of boxing shows.

Grand Rapids, Omaha Hold Finals.

Two of the centers which annually sent particularly powerful teams to Chicago are holding their finals this week. These are Grand Rapids, Mich., and Omaha, Neb., where the Press and the World-Herald respectively are coöperating with THE TRIBUNE in the sponsorship of Golden Gloves.

Grand Rapids, which sent Jimmy Urso to the flyweight championship in 1937, holds preliminary tournaments throughout the southern peninsula of Michigan thereby making sure that the greatest fighters in the state will be in the sectional final.

Among its former champions, Omaha includes Paul Hartnek, who took the heavyweight title in 1936 and 1937, and Carl Vinciquerra, light heavyweight champion in 1936. Both Grand Rapids and Omaha will hold their finals on Thursday.

Rockford to Pick Team.

On the same night another strong town, Rockford, will be picking its team under the supervision of the Rockford Morning Star. Last year this city sent Linto Guerrieri to the light heavyweight championship.

The St. Louis Globe-Democrat, the Minneapolis Star, the Nashville Tennesseean, and the Dayton News are among the other papers which will hold their finals during the coming week.

Meanwhile Chicago's boxers will be competing in two sectional events—the south and the northwest. The south, which already has held three nights of fighting in White City, will need more sessions Tuesday, Wednesday, and Thursday before its champions emerge. The northwest will hold its eliminations in Marigold Gardens Wednesday, Thursday, and Friday.

West Side Team Named.

The west side already has completed its eliminations and has a squad of eight novices and eight open division winners to send on to the Stadium. The north will be the last of Chicago's sectional events to get under way. This tournament will be held in Loyola gymnasium Feb. 20, 21, and 22.

During the two weeks Golden Gloves competition has been going on in Chicago, local fight fans have been satisfied that this year's crop of boxers shows considerable promise. On the west side in particular there were some capable novices—boys who knew how to stand up and hit with their eyes open.

Olympic Club Vaulter Sets World Record

Boston, Mass., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Cornelius Warmerdam of San Francisco's Olympic club tonight set a new world indoor pole vault record by clearing 14 feet 6⅛ inches on his second try in the Boston Athletic association's golden anniversary meet in the Boston garden. Sixteen thousand attended.

Earle Meadows of Los Angeles, the 1938 Boston A. A. winner, took second place with 14 feet 3 inches. The old record of 14 feet 4⅞ inches was made by George Varoff of Oregon in the Boston A. A. games two years ago.

San Romani Paces Field.

Only twenty-four hours had elapsed since he beat Chuck Fenske of Wisconsin in Philadelphia by three yards in 4 minutes 15.6 seconds. Nevertheless, Cunningham was equal to a 4:10.8 effort, which gave him a yard triumph over Wayne Rideout of North Texas Teachers. Archie San Romani, now of New York, finished third, inches ahead of Fenske. It was Cunningham's fastest time of the 1939 indoor season.

San Romani, back in his old time form, paced the field for four laps as Cunningham ran in fourth place. Blaine Rideout took over the lead on the fifth turn and four more trips around the eleven lap track were made before Cunningham started to move up. Wayne Rideout also spurted and had about five yards on Glenn with a lap and a half to go. Then the Kansan started his brilliant finish. Wayne made a valiant attempt to catch him but failed.

Bill Fritz of Queens university, the Canadian quarter mile champion, gained his first American indoor triumph by beating Harold Cagle of Oklahoma Baptist by inches in the Hollis "600." Fritz led from the start and finished in 1:12.8.

Staley Ties Record.

Roy Staley of Los Angeles, who set a new world mark of 7.3 seconds for the 60 yard high hurdles last week, won the 45 yard high hurdles in the record equaling time of 5.7 seconds. The Southern California star appeared to have plenty left when he broke the tape a good two yards ahead of Allan Tolmich of Detroit.

Don Lash, fleet Indiana state trooper who set the 8:58 indoor mark for two miles in this meet two years ago, led from gun to finish in the Billings feature. He was timed in 9:08.4 as he finished about thirty yards ahead of the late rushing Joe McCluskey of New York, who remained in third place behind Tommy Deckard of Indiana for twenty of the twenty-two laps. Harrison Gets 66; Tied for 1st in Texas Open

San Antonio, Tex., Feb. 11.—(AP)—E. J. Harrison of Oak Park, Ill., and Jimmy Thomson, golf's mightiest hitter, shared the 36 hole lead of the $5,000 72 hole Texas open tournament today with eight-under-par totals of 134.

Two shots ahead of Byron Nelson of Reading, Pa., Harrison and Thomson had dub's errors to blame for not being at least one more shot in front.

Thomson, three strokes to the good after yesterday's course record-breaking 64, stripped one stroke from par today with his 70, but a careless jab at a 12 inch putt and a penalty stroke cost him. He bracketed nine's of 35 for his 70.

Harrison Gets a 66.

Harrison, working on a fine 69 fired yesterday, went around today in 66, missing an 18 inch putt on the 16th.

Ralph Guldahl, national open champion, was no better than 143 after an even par round. Harold [Jug] McSpaden, pre-tourney favorite, shot a wobbly 76 for a 144 total. Nelson nipped par by two shots for a second round 69 that added up to 136.

Two veterans rushed right back into the tournament after poor opening rounds. Henry Picard of Hershey, Pa., and Paul Runyan, P. G. A. champion, had 66s today to add to their 73s of yesterday.

Sammy Byrd Is Fourth.

Alone in fourth position was Sammy Byrd with rounds of 69—68—137, while Lloyd Mangrum of San Francisco and Frank Walsh of Rumson, N. J., were at 138.

Canadiens Put on a Rally, Tie Toronto, 3 to 3

TORONTO, Ont., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The last-place Montreal Canadiens came from behind tonight to gain a 3 to 3 tie with the Toronto Maple Leafs.

The Canadiens, trailing by three goals at one time, came up to level the score with two quick goals with four minutes to play in regulation time. Babe Siebert sparked the final rally with a goal, and Johnny Gagnon added the tying one.

The 9,957 fans sat through a dull first period, stamping their feet for action. They got it in the second with goals by Pep Kelly, Nick Metz, and Syl Apps. After Apps scored, Herbie Cain rang one up for Montreal.

There was no indication early in the third that Canadiens would catch up. The teams played dully—there wasn't a penalty all night—and it was only when the Canadiens sent five men up the ice that the scoring started. Lineup:

BANDITS TACKLE WRONG TACKLE—IT'S WRAY OF N. U.

Cleveland, O., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Park Wray, former Northwestern university football star, today nursed a sore fist along with a grudge against two would-be holdup men who attempted to take $2,800 in checks and cash from him.

The ex-Wildcat tackle, who stands 6 feet 3 and weighs 270 pounds, was held up at the entrance of his hotel.

As one of the men held something against his back and demanded his money, Wray said he turned with a quick left and sent his assailant to the sidewalk. When the bandit rose and started to run, the erstwhile grid star tackled him but was unable to hold him. The second bandit, meanwhile, also fled. A few minutes later police arrested two suspects and held them for questioning.

Wray, a salesman, graduated from Northwestern in 1937 and played last year with the Chicago Cardinals.

PAUL BIETILA, SKI JUMPER, IS CRITICALLY ILL

Madison, Wis., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Physicians reported today that Paul Bietila, of Ishpeming, Mich., University of Wisconsin ski jump star, was critically ill in the student infirmary of complications resulting from his injury in St. Paul last Sunday while practicing for the national collegiate tournaments.

Bietila suffered a fractured jaw and two broken ribs when his skis veered after a good landing and threw him into a guy rope. For the last two days he has been running a high fever and pneumonia has set in.

Pro Football Bosses Make 5 Rule Changes

BY GEORGE STRICKLER.

Five minor changes were made yesterday in the professional football rules by the National league, meeting in annual executive session in the Congress hotel. Following the lead of the collegiate rules committee, the professionals decided against any radical alterations of the code as being detrimental to the best interests of the sport.

Two of the changes have to do with players ineligible to receive forward passes. One was an amendment to the kickoff rule adopted two years ago and changed last year. The changes were:

1. The penalty for a forward pass striking an ineligible receiver at or behind the line of scrimmage shall be the loss of a down and fifteen yards from the spot of the preceding down.

Must Wait for Pass.

2. All ineligible pass receivers must remain on the line of scrimmage until the pass has been thrown.

3. Any kickoff touched by a member of the receiving team which then gets out of bounds shall be put in play fifteen yards in from the spot where it went out of bounds.

4. The referee shall permit only one additional time out for injury during the last two minutes of the second half.

5. Natural tees for kick-offs shall not exceed three inches in height and must be constructed from materials gathered from the immediate field of play.

Recommend Offset Goal Posts.

The league voted down a proposal to remove all restrictions from substitutions; tabled a suggestion by Coach Dutch Clark of Cleveland that the team scored upon be given three options instead of the customary two, and declined to make mandatory the use of offset goal posts. It recommended, however, that the offset posts be used where available and possible.

Coaches regarded as most important the lessening of the penalty for a forward pass striking an ineligible man behind the line of scrimmage. In adopting the new rule, the professionals accepted, with one change, the rule passed by the national collegiate rules committee last month. The collegians will only assess fifteen yards and the loss of a down on all instances where a forward pass strikes an ineligible receiver.

Retain Present Penalty.

Professional coaches preferred to retain the present penalty for such infraction beyond the line of scrimmage which is loss of the ball at the spot of the preceding down. Although this is the most drastic penalty in the code, they feel it is justified inasmuch as the book now will contain a rule which makes it a foul for an ineligible man to be beyond the line of scrimmage in the first place. Secondly, it will prevent teams from gambling the penalty against long passes.

Altering the kickoff rule made the third consecutive year that the professionals have amended the restrictions on this particular play. In 1937 they eliminated the second kickoff when the first went out of bounds and put the ball in play on the 35 yard line. The following year they put the ball in play on the 45 yard line when professional teams took advantage of the rule by kicking out of bounds repeatedly to prevent run backs.

Puts Stop to Practice.

Then it was found that quick-witted players often gained as much as forty yards by knocking a rolling kick-off out of bounds when they were trapped. The new rule will put a stop to this practice, making it imperative that receiving teams play any kick off that will not carry over the goal line or side lines.

Granting of an additional time out for injuries in the last two minutes of the second half will curb, if not completely eliminate, the practice of feigning injuries popularized by the Bears last fall. The rule was sponsored by Coach George Halas of the Bears, who also is chairman of the rules committee.

"That rule means," said Halas "that the Bears are limited to six plays in the last two minutes instead of the nine a minute we were getting last year."

ASKS THORNHILL BE RETAINED AS STANFORD COACH

Palo Alto, Cal., Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—The Stanford university board of athletic control tonight recommended to President Ray Lyman Wilbur that the contract of Head Football Coach C. E. [Tiny] Thornhill be renewed. Wilbur was expected to follow the board's recommendation.

The coach, whose contract expires in April, has been the center of an alumni controversy because of his failure to produce winning teams at Stanford in recent seasons.

The board also recommended that Thornhill's chief assistant, Bobby Grayson, be rehired. The recommendations made no mention of salary or of Glenn S. [Pop] Warner, who recently had been mentioned as a possible appointee to an athletic post at Stanford.

BOILERMAKERS TRIUMPH, 34-30, FOR 3D VICTORY

Hoosiers Continue Title Drive.

Lafayette, Ind., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Purdue scored heavily midway in the second half to defeat the Illinois basketball team, 34 to 30, tonight. It was the third victory in five conference games for the Boilermakers, and the third loss in eight games for Illinois.

Both teams set a sizzling pace and the two Illini invalids, Pick Dehner and Bill Hapac, were surprisingly active once they got into the fray. The two quintets traded shots throughout the first half, with the lead alternating rapidly. Then, with the Illini leading, 16 to 15, shortly after Hapac had entered the game, Capt. Gene Anderson and Fred Beretta came through with field goals to give the Boilermakers a 19 to 16 lead at half time.

Illini Regain Lead.

Dehner was in the game for Illinois as the second half opened, and the visitors jumped out in front, 22 to 21. Lanky Dan Fisher teamed up with Beretta, however, to launch Purdue on the drive that turned the tide. He dropped in three field goals and Beretta contributed a pair in the blistering drive. With five minutes and thirty seconds left to play, Purdue led, 30 to 25. Lineups:

INDIANA, 50; IOWA, 39

Indiana led, 20 to 17, at the half, with Capt. Ernie Andres contributing one-half of his team's total with five field goals. He eventually won scoring honors with nine field goals for eighteen points. Bill Menke, center, was Andres' chief aid. He scored six field goals and one free throw, good for thirteen points. Capt. Ben Stephens was the high scorer for Iowa. He compiled a total of sixteen points, including fourteen on field goals.

Iowa Leads—Not for Long.

Indiana was out of the lead for only a brief period during the first half. The Hoosiers opened the scoring, but free throws by Stephens and Howard Irvine, and baskets by Stephens and Tommy Lind gave Iowa a 7 to 6 lead. Andres, meanwhile, had scored all of Indiana's six points. Menke and Marvine Huffman came through with field goals, however, and Andres was good for another to put Indiana in front, 12 to 7. Lineup:

N. U. BEATS CHICAGO

Northwestern defeated Chicago in the Midway fieldhouse last night, 34 to 31. The victory raised the Wildcats to a .500 rating in the Big Ten race, with three victories and as many defeats. The Maroons have won only one game in seven starts.

The Maroons dominated the play for the first ten minutes, getting away to a 9 to 1 lead, largely due to Bill Murphy's three field goals. Then Les Harman got loose under the Wildcat basket and scored. Long shots by Bernie Davis and Jim Currie and another basket by Harman reduced the Maroons' lead to two points. Field goals by Davis and Jim Butherus and two free throws gave the Wildcats a 15 to 11 lead at the half.

The Murphy twins gave Chicago two baskets as the second half started, but long shots by Koble and Currie put Northwestern ahead, 21 to 17. The Murphys accounted for

27th Annual Windy City Pin Meet Opens on April 8

BY HOWARD MARTIN.

With the American Bowling congress meet approaching, an added stimulus is being given to the tournament phase of the ten pin sport. One of the many tournaments on the calendar is the twenty-seventh annual Windy City meet to be held in the Windy City Bowling association starting on April 8.

This event annually attracts contestants from cities within a radius of 100 miles of Chicago and is one of the most popular from a competitive standpoint. The booster division takes in teams averaging 930 or less, doubles combinations averaging 372 or less and singles averaging 186 or less. Bowlers over these limits will compete in the open division, each classification having its own prize list.

Diamond medals, in addition to prize money, will be awarded to the all-events winner in each class. Entries are being received by Jerry Peck, 2101 South Cicero avenue, until March 18. Bowling will be on week-ends.

Other tournaments in the offing are:

Sixteen annual original Industrial Bowling association meet beginning March 18 on the 29 West Randolph alleys. Entries close March 6.

National Italian-American meet in Sportsman's club Recreation beginning April 8. Entries will close March 12 with Joe Gratz, 3204 Armitage avenue. The event is not limited to Italian bowlers.

The Catholic Order of Forester Illinois state court's eighteenth annual meet in the Waukegan Recreation hall starting March 18. Entries close Feb. 25 in the state court offices, room 519, 30 North La Salle street.

Sixteenth annual husband and wife tournament Feb. 18 and 25 in Samuelson arcade. One hundred forty-six couples competed last year when Frank and Edith Westerberg won first prize. It's a handicap meet.

Classic League.

The Classic league will bowl in the Archer-Kedzie Recreation tonight at 8 o'clock. Ambrosia will meet Baby Ruth, Prager will face the champion Pabsts, the Thompson Restaurants will oppose Monarch, and Power House will shoot against Schlitz.

On North Side Alleys.

The leading Wallace Coals established two all-time records for the 24 year old Samuelson Major league when they rolled at 1,202 game and a 3,395 series. Chic Schroeder shot a 278 game and a 715 series, both high for the season. Others who contributed to the Wallace Coals' big count were: Gene Mytys, 693; John Small, 690; John Podmers, 654, and Herb Gumz, 643. This, of course, gave the Coals three victories over the Fritzi Scheffs. . . . Herb Freitag shot another 700 series, 711 this time, but the Art Williams Jewelers lost three games to the Neumann Tailors in the Gold Coast Major league. Pat Panzek led the Neumanns to a 3,168 total by shooting 700. Rudy Habetler helped with 660; Hank Jouron, 634, and Joe Aubert, 618. . . . Vic Malecki, with 677, was the best of the Greater Chicago Traveling league bowlers, who are shooting two series over the week-end. The Neumann Tailors lead this league.

On South Side Alleys.

The Budweisers and Eden Insurance remained tied for first place by winning three games apiece in the Stevenson Major league. The Budweisers were successful although their high game was only 915 against the Wesley Smiths. The Edens beat the Carlson Service Station by three pins in the first game and one pin in their 891 second. Eddie Lasky of the Underhill Plumbers topped the individuals with 699, but his team lost three games to the Gerwig-Nelson Motors. . . . Ad Plunge knocked off a 673 series to lead the Bruck Major league. Tom Masterson hit 666, Wally Barman 656, and Frank Limberg 649.

Windy City League.

The Budweisers, leading the Windy City Major league by one game, will draw the O'Keefe Coals as their opponents tomorrow night. The second place Whitecaps will meet the Congressman Maciejewskis.

Randolph League.

The Birk Brothers added three more victories to their record and increased their lead to two games in the Randolph league. The Budweisers swept their series and climbed into a tie for second place with the Joseph L. Gills, who dropped the final game of their series with the Burlington Routes.

North End League.

The 1,212 game rolled by the Kruse Service Stations in the North End Traveling league is the second highest score since it was organized in 1917 and is only the third time 1,200 has been topped. The Edward F. Moores rolled 1,207 in 1928 and on Feb. 17, 1930, the Baby Ruths set the record with 1,228. The big game helped the Kruse team to total 3,286, which netted three victories over Samuelson's Kids.

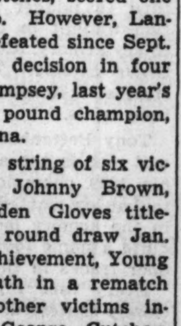
Other matches were marked by upsets, the Michelobs taking three from the third place Birks, the Sid & Mikes taking the odd from the leading Fox De Luxe five and the Pepsi-Colas handing the second pace Joseph L. Gills two beatings. The Keeleys won three from the Farwals. Ted Hjort's 748 series for the Michelobs was instrumental in downing the Birks and Lee Zander's 729 was an important factor in the Kruse's record breaking performance.

About the Women.

Mary Gordon topped the Bruck Major league with 593 to beat out Bee Hochstadter by three pins. Trailing them were: Marie Roethel 587, with a 244 game; Mayme Kitching, 566; Ethel Kelly, 563, and Tess Reardon, 557. . . . Bess Fender of Villa Moderne rolled 643 for high in the Congress league. Ann Weiller of the Logan Square Buicks was next with 629 which included high game of 236.

Lander Meets Kid Covelli in Eight Rounds

Eddie Lander, Golden Gloves graduate, will receive another opportunity to distinguish himself in an eight round bout with Frankie [Kid] Covelli, clever Brooklyn featherweight, in Marigold Gardens tomorrow.



Eddie Lander.

Lander, who was eliminated by Frankie Kainrath in the 1938 Tournament of Champions, has engaged in fifteen fights since turning professional on his 18th birthday last June 1. He won twelve of these matches, scored one draw, and lost two. However, Lander has not been defeated since Sept. 12, when he lost a decision in four rounds to Eddie Dempsey, last year's Golden Gloves 126 pound champion, in the Marigold arena.

After compiling a string of six victories, Eddie held Johnny Brown, also a former Golden Gloves titleholder, to an eight round draw Jan. 23. Prior to this achievement, Young Lander beat Kainrath in a rematch Dec. 26. Eddie's other victims include Lou Laurie, George Cutchey, Andy Canal, Sunny Batson, Johnny Boyd, Cocky O'Brien, and Kenny Bell.

Supporting contests:

Ernie Valente, Milwaukee, vs. Sol Robinson [4], 175.
Willie Kline vs. Charley Hudson [4], 140.
Johnny Williams vs. Alex Pug [4], 150.

Another show will be held in White City Friday, and it is topped by an eight round return fight involving Willie Joyce, 1937 Chicago Golden Gloves featherweight winner, and Lew Jenkins, Sweetwater, Tex. . . . Milton Rand and Norman Hess, amateur middleweights, meet in Coulon's gymnasium tomorrow. . . . Wrestling cards also are scheduled in White City and Cicero stadium tomorrow and Rainbo Fronton Wednesday. John [Bull] Doehring and Pat Murphy are windup performers in Cicero. Main event principals in White City are Rufus Jones and King Kong.

OUTDOORSMEN, DOG FANCIERS TO HAVE BIG WEEK

Open Wild Life Convention in Detroit Today.

BY BOB BECKER.

This is one of the biggest weeks of the year for hunters, fishermen, conservationists, and dog fanciers with two national events scheduled for these groups. Opening today in Detroit, Mich., is the fourth annual wild life conference sponsored by the National Wildlife federation which will bring together outdoor fans and conservationists from all over the United States. The conference will continue through Feb. 18.

While national problems of conservation and the preservation of our natural resources are being discussed in Detroit many of the prominent dog fanciers of the United States and Canada will be in New York, where the Westminster Kennel club show will be held. This show opens tomorrow and continues through Wednesday.

Designate Wild Life Week.

The National Wildlife federation has designated March 19 to March 25 as Wildlife week in the United States.

Stamps again will be issued and put on sale so that sportsmen everywhere may purchase them and thus help the federation in its campaign to increase our resources of fish, game, and forests. There will be eighty subjects depicted on the stamps this year. The originals were painted by eminent artists in the wildlife field, including Lynn Bogue Hunt, Roger Tory Peterson, Francis Lee Jacques, and Fred Everett. Among the subjects will be many species of birds, fish, trees, wild flowers, and animals. The stamps will be distributed through state federations, the returns to be divided among the National Wildlife federation and the many organizations which make up the state federations.

With outdoor fans from all over the United States now assembling in Detroit for a week of discussions on fish and game and thus focusing attention on the popularity of fishing and hunting, the state of Michigan released figures on the number of its hunters, fishermen, and trappers which tell a story of increased participation in rod and gun sports in the central states. The Michigan department of conservation estimates that in 1938 a total of 1,400,000 persons were licensed to hunt, fish, and trap in that state.

Make 4,500 Arrests.

In spite of the fact that this great army of outdoor fans was in the field and the game laws were enforced better than in previous years, only 4,500 arrests were made for violations. This represents about three-tenths of 1 per cent—or about one in every 300. Although the approximately 4,500 arrests made last year for fish and game law violations were more than the number made in any previous year, the number of persons who bought hunting, fishing, and trapping licenses was considerably larger than in any previous year. The Michigan figures on outdoor fans who enjoy hunting, trapping, and fishing indicate that interest in these sports is on the increase. Reports on fishing in the United States show that more women and boys are taking up this sport than ever before, thus bringing a new group to lakes and streams each season.

Chicago Fencers Defeat Ohio State, 19½ to 7½

Chicago's fencing team, champions of the Big Ten, scored its third conference victory within ten days yesterday afternoon in Bartlett gymnasium, defeating Ohio State, 19½ to 7½. The Maroons showed marked superiority in the epée and saber events, collecting 14½ points to 3½ for Ohio in these matches. The foils were closer, Chicago getting 5 points to 4 for Ohio State.

Even the Customers Get Touch of Vertigo.

BY CHARLES BARTLETT.

The semi-annual epidemic of vertigo which has been diagnosed for want of a better name as the six day bicycle race will break out again at 9 o'clock this evening, when the beauteous Dixie Dunbar sends away twelve teams in the 41st local case of the giddy ailment in the Chicago Stadium.

Dr. Harry Mendel, the Jersey specialist who has devoted his career to controlling the ravages of bikeitis in those centers which it is wont to attack, predicted yesterday that he will have the situation well in hand come Saturday night. Straitjackets and sleeping powders will be given to one and all at that time, the dosages depending upon the condition of the victims.

He'll Triumph in End.

Beyond promising that the approaching plague will be checked by Saturday midnight, Dr. Mendel said he hesitated to make any predictions other than that he fears one of the worst attacks of prolonged pedaling ever visited upon the Stadium woodwork.

In checking through "Dizzy Days, or, Why Are Bicycle Fans?" his own authoritative work on the subject, Dr. Mendel discovered one way of combating a six day bike rash such as he dreads this week. This consists in mixing up the treatment of the patients. Accordingly, he has outlined a program for the current epidemic that should succeed.

First, there was the matter of who should fire the starting gun this evening. The doctor always has been a great hand for contrasts. Hence the choice of Miss Dunbar, whom none will deny provides a perfect contrast against the starter of the recent Cleveland race. This was none other than Tony Galento, the Fistic Falstaff.

What to Do with The Germans?

Going on from this solution of the starting problem, Dr. Mendel was confronted with the dilemma of what to do with those two bright German lads, Gustav Kilian and Heinz Vopel, who as a team probably have been more responsible than any other pair for the spread of modern bikeitis. Dr. Mendel wisely foresaw that a continuance of the Kilian-Vopel team as such would reduce the whole plague to a dull headache, hardly worthy of his talents.

Always a man to like hard work, the doctor has broken up the German twosome, so that Chicago patients will see the two boys who threatened a monopoly riding apart. Kilian will ride with Master Bobby Thomas, the Kenosha youth with whom he recently won the Buffalo version of the epidemic. Vopel's partner tonight is Cecil Yates, the rapid south side Irishman. Vopel will ride with his left wrist, which was fractured in the Cleveland race, in a special cast.

The sprint needle will be jabbed into the patients ten times a day—at 2, 3, 4, 8, 9, 10, and 11 p. m. and at midnight and 1 and 2 a. m.

PEPSI-COLAS AND LAKE FOREST TO MEET IN HOCKY

The third of four intercity exhibition hocky games scheduled by the Arena Amateur Hocky league will be played in the East Erie street rink this afternoon at 2:15 o'clock when Pepsi-Cola meets the strong Lake Forest Collegians. In the second game of the day the Planerts and Hornets meet in their final league meeting of the present season.

Lake Forest has three former members of the Planerts on its roster in Robert Meacham and Chris Petersen, defense men, and Joe Griffis, a forward. This will be the second of a two game series, total goals to count, for the northern suburban hocky championship. The two clubs met three weeks ago, the game resulting in a 1 to 0 victory for the Pepsi-Colas. Most of the Pepsi-Cola players hail from Waukegan.

The Hornets and Planerts have met three times this year, each winning a game, the Planerts, 2 to 0, and Hornets, 4 to 1, with the third ending in a scoreless overtime tie. Today's battle will decide this series and also the Hornets' status in regard to the league championship.

PLAY HANDBALL SEMI-FINALS IN LAWSON COURT

The semi-finals of the city Y. M. C. A. handball doubles tournament will be played tomorrow night and the finals Wednesday in the Lawson Y courts. In a quarter-final match Friday night, Louis Apple and George Corsan of Hyde Park defeated Barney D'Amato and John Gribin of Englewood, 17-21, 21-13, 21-20. Results of other matches:

Rumick and Corenman, Lawson, defeated Fiske and Wiese, 111th Street Y., 21-3, 21-9.
B. Neross and Rosenberg, Lawson, defeated Garvey and Litkey, Hyde Park, 7-21, 21-6, 21-7.

SECTIONAL TITLES AT STAKE TODAY IN WALTHER PLAY

Sectional titles will be determined when Walther league basketball teams meet today. A victory for the leading St. Andrews five over the second place St. Stephens quintet will enable them to clinch the first place position in the southwest division, while a victory for Salem, Blue Island, against Trinity, Crete, in the south suburban sector will give them that section's championship. The Grace, River Forest, live, will be out to clinch the second place post in their tilt with Christ, Oak Park, at the Austin High gymnasium.

Just Too Good; They're Split Up Tonight

IMPOUND BEATS PORTER'S MITE AT SANTA ANITA

Wins $10,000 Race as Favorite Runs Third.

Los Angeles, Cal., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Alfred G. Vanderbilt's Impound scored a surprising victory in the $10,000 San Vicente handicap before 30,000 turf fans today, beating the favored Porter's Mite, Xalapa Clown, and a crack field of 3 year olds in the seven furlong Santa Anita feature event.

The Vanderbilt colt, in assuming a rôle as one of the top candidates for the coming $50,000 Santa Anita Derby, ran the distance in 1:23 to get the decision in a photo finish.

Porter's Mite Third.

Impound paid $19.80, $6, and $3.60 to win. Our Mat paid $5.20 and $3.80, and Porter's Mite paid $3 to show.

Teddy Kerry, Xalapa Clown, Hysterical, Atavistic, Hy Camp, Yale o' Nine, Touch and Go, Time Alone, Sweet Nancy, Bubbling Boy, Morning Breeze, and First Port also were in the field.

Bet $153,716 on Race.

Porter's Mite, Mrs. Bessie Franzheim's Xalapa Clown, and Our Mat were the one-two-three pre-race favoriates. Blac kBun, Race Riot, and Grey Nurse were scratched.

Betting on the race totaled $153,-716. Betting at Santa Anita for the day passed the $1,000,000 mark for the third time this season. A total of -1,014,407 was bet on the eight race program.

FAIRY CHANT WINS

Miami, Fla., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Hialeah's largest crowd of the season, estimated at 16,000, today saw Fairy Chant, a daughter of Chance Shot and Star Fairy, get home first in the $3,710 Everglades stakes. Mrs. P. A. B. Widener's Drury Lane was second.

The decision at the end of three furlongs was by only a nose, with Jocky Maurice [Moose] Peters, just up in the last stride with the Foxcatcher farm horse to score at $21.80 for $2. Another nose away Maedrew was third in field of ten.

Drury Lane Leads at Start.

Drury Lane got away to a lead at the start, but driving between horses, was Fairy Chant, and Peters was asking for her full power. The Chance Shot filly gave it, with the result that the daughter of Mr. Widener's stallion, was up in the last stride to defeat the colorbearer of Mr. Widener's daughter.

The afternoon was a good one for the distaff side of the horse family as the 4 year old filly, Billy's Folly, was winner of the opening race. And in the secondary feature, the Key Largo purse, the 5 year old mare Trina was first to the wire. Trina came from far back to defeat another filly, Weary Flower, in the Key Largo. Sun Victor, a colt, and the early leader, was third. Trina is owned by D. J. Sullivan and finished a mile and three furlongs in 2:18.

Ten Year Old Wins.

One of the oldest horses in racing, Brandon Prince, now 10 years old, was winner of the last race from Silent Shot, a 9 year old, and Lady Genie, a 7 year old. The youngest horse competing was the 4 year old, Sure Cloud, which finished next to last. Brandon Prince returned $14.80 for $2. Jocky Don Meade got his fifty-first winner of the meeting, and his fifty-seventh of the year, when he rode Sun in Play to victory in the Winter Haven purse. Eddie Arcaro, runner-up to Meade at Hialeah, has twenty-nine to his credit. The two boys are the leading riders in the country for 1939.

MacQUINN AND SNYDER TO RACE ON MIDGET CARD

Harry MacQuinn of Indianapolis, 1937-1938 midwest indoor champion, and Jimmy Snyder, Chicago star, return to midget auto race competition tonight in the 124th Field Artillery armory, 52d street and Cottage Grove avenue. The first race will start at 8:30 after ninety minutes of time trials.

Tony Bettenhausen of Tinley Park will race in the armory also, making his 1939 championship debut. Bettenhausen started indoor auto racing in the armory last season and made quite a name for himself on the outdoor tracks in the east last summer.

Every race this season has been closely contested. MacQuinn won the main events on Jan. 8 and Jan. 15, and Snyder took the feature on Jan. 22. Ray Richards, present title point standing leader, won the main events on Jan. 29 and Feb. 5, setting new track records on successive Sundays.

Despite the return of MacQuinn and Snyder, Richards, because of his record-breaking victories in the last two meets, will be the favorite in the forty lap main event tonight. Ray has a fast car and he has been driving it with skill, courage and a fair share of racing luck. Bert Knight, Pete Nielson, Cowboy O'Rourke and Earl Simmons will be in the top flight contention also.

MOTORS—TRAFIC—HIGHWAYS

Route to Mardi Gras

The heavy line shows the route recommended by the Chicago Motor club for fast travel to the New Orleans Mardi gras. Also shown are two suggestions for a different route for the return trip to Chicago.

Trip to Mardi Gras Easy to Make and One to Remember

BY HAL FOUST.

The Mardi Gras festivities open in New Orleans next Thursday and continue through the following Tuesday. The distance from Chicago is 974 miles over a fast highway finally completed through Mississippi a couple of months ago. It's something for tour hungry Chicago motorists to mull over, even if they can't take the trip.

This New Orleans Mardi Gras has been an exciting day dream for most of us midwesterners since childhood. In puritanical imaginations it has connoted a Latin gayety and abandon enviably free of a sense of sin.

It's Something to See.

Whether the Mardi Gras can fulfill romantic expectations is perhaps speculative. Maybe it's just a big carnival requiring the right amount of wine for any but a yokel to enjoy, with authentic glamor of the old city lost in tinsel, crowds, and noise, and with hotel rates boosted exorbitantly. Anyway, for winterbound motorists of Chicagoland it's something they would like to see—at least once—or at least to think about.

You shouldn't be intimidated by the condition of Chicago's streets. Main rural highways hereabouts were free of ice last week except in widely scattered spots where there had been deep drifts. About 150 miles south there weren't any more of these spots. Of course at this time of the year you have to check on weather and roads immediately before departure.

Fastest Route Recommended.

As the fastest route the Chicago Motor club recommends the Governors' highway [Ill. 49] to Kankakee, U. S. 45 to Ill. 37 south of Effingham, and thence Ill. 37 to Cairo. In this southern tip of Illinois eyes eager for traces of spring will note the bright plumage of cardinals darting across the road. Of course these birds have been there all winter, but they seem like harbingers of warmer weather.

At Cairo a toll bridge [it used to be $1] carries U. S. 62 over the surging muddy waters of the Mississippi within sight of its conflux with the flooded Ohio. U. S. 61 is picked up for the run to West Memphis, Ark. Again there's an illusion of spring, green honeysuckles choking drainage ditches.

Memphis, Tenn., is reached by crossing the father of waters on U. S. 70. South into Mississippi the route follows U. S. 51 markers over fast concrete, beautiful engineering, that the prideful governor of Mississippi prematurely announced as completed more than a year ago. The days are getting long and, with a lucky break in the weather, you'll feel warm sunshine. There'll be traces of green on hillsides with south exposure.

Easy Two Day Drive.

New Orleans is now an easy two day drive from Chicago. Some young folks, with two men alternating at the wheel, are making it in less than 24 hours. Obviously such long hours of driving are dangerous.

There's a choice if you want to vary the route for the return trip. It's 1,065 miles, only eight of them still gravel, going up the Mississippi River valley on U. S. 61 to Memphis. Baton Rouge, Natchez, and Vicksburg are worth any tourist's time and you'll enjoy glimpses of antebellum mansions in the towns and on plantations. Following this alternative you'll double your trail over U. S. 61 in Arkansas, but you'll cross the Mississippi river at Cape Girardeau, Mo., rather than at Cairo. In Illinois you might use U. S. 51 from Anna to Decatur and thence Ill. 48 to U. S. 45.

Go North Through Red Hills.

Or you can go north from New Orleans through the red hills and scrub pine of eastern Mississippi on U. S. 11 and U. S. 45 through territory rich in civil war associations to enter Illinois at Paducah, thence to Chicago via U. S. 45, Ill. 1, Ill. 130, and Ill. 49, as indicated on the accompanying map. To take this route it would be a shame not to detour a few miles by way of Gulfport to smell the salt air and to see the warm waves of the Gulf of Mexico.

Perhaps you've been to the Mardi Gras, paid too much for undesirable lodging, and didn't like the crowds. You'll still want to clip the accompanying map because you'll still want to take a motor trip to New Orleans before spring arrives in Chicago. Regardless of whether you can afford the time and money, it's diversion merely to contemplate idling through the old French quarter with its architectural reminders of a colorful history, all within pleasant touring distance of Chicago.

New Pavement Aids Lighting

These are "before and after" pictures of an experiment on a street in Lynn, Mass., demonstrating the value to night visibility of an improved pavement surface. The better visibility in the lower picture was attained without adding to the electricity consumption solely by rearranging the lamps and resurfacing the pavement.

Develop New Pavement with Improved Night Visibility

A successful experiment in the development of a pavement with improved night visibility was reported to the Association of Asphalt Paving Technologists by C. A. B. Halvorson, illumination engineer of the General Electric company. The experiment was conducted by the Illuminating Engineering society and the Asphalt Institute with the coöperation of Mayor J. Fred Manning of Lynn, Mass.

With measuring instruments and with a camera it was determined that the visibility can be multiplied by rearranging the lamps and by an appropriate resurface of the pavement without any increase in the electricity consumption. Two illustrative photographs are published herewith.

Road Surface to Play Part.

"The road surface of the future will play an important part in providing a high night time visibility for safer trafic and more enjoyable motoring," Mr. Halvorsen said. "Pavements on thoroughfares and highways needing permanent lighting can be processed to insure a high order of uniform light reflectivity, which will assist engineers and authorities in charge of public works in the economical provision of proper and adequate visibility.

"The technique and luminaires for proper lighting have been developed. Arrangements of luminaires for the best visibility results have been scientifically determined. Lighting units of high efficiency have been designed to direct a maximum light output to the street surface without objectionable glare.

"Surfacings now in common use 'soak up' or waste light in varying degrees, having a light reflectivity from less than 4 to more than 30 per cent, according to their color and character. These surfacings also reflect light differently, some diffusely, like new snow, others spectacularly, like rippled water, and have no uniformity of reflection over large areas which is necessary for proper visibility at night.

"With only one or two exceptions, pavements and paving materials change their light reflection coeff cients and characteristics greatly when wet, another obstacle to the provision of proper visibility at night. Then, too, the brightness uniformity of various types of pavement has been found to vary greatly with the specific intensity, direction, and angle of light applied.

Coördinate Designs.

"At Lynn, for the first time the design of the road surface was coordinated with the design of the illumination. These demonstrations made it clear that vision in streets and highways primarily must be accomplished by means of contrasts between objects and pavement.

"A step in this investigation was to resurface the pavement with Chelmsford granite chips ⅛ to ⅜ of an inch in size glued to the old pavement with a thin intermediate layer of asphalt. This produced a diffusing or matte-surface pavement of about 30 per cent reflectivity. Lighting conditions were the same as in a previous test. In this case the pavement surface appeared bright throughout. There were no intermittent areas of darkness wherein objects could be partially concealed."

VOICE OF TRAFIC

Chicago, Feb. 7.—I wish that I knew what to do to offer you with the kind of encouragement that would keep you at your campaign against double parking until it should accomplish some tangible results.

Of all the inconsiderate things that Chicago drivers do to show their utter unconcern for any other than their own selfish selves, it seems to me that the very prevalent practice of drivers to double park where there is available parking space within a half block or sometimes a few feet, as in the case of third car from the right in today's picture, "Parkers Clutter Street," is the thing that impresses drivers from the rest of America most unfavorably in their first impressions of Chicago.

I know much of America, but I know of no communities pretending to urban status that allow any type of double parking, let alone the vicious type that is too inconsiderate to pull in to the open space that is available. C. A. DeCamp.

SAVE OUR CHILDREN.

Chicago, Feb. 9.—Every parent of a small child or baby should join in the opposition against any further widening of streets in Chicago. Every wide pavement is a threat against the lives of our young ones. The statistics are available, but they are not necessary to prove this point. Watch how difficult it is for a boy or girl to cross one of our broad thoroughfares where there are no trafic lights or policeman.

Chicago oubtless needs rapid motor transportation if it is going to grow commercially and industrially. In developing this transportation system let's not destroy Chicago as a home for families. Let's build elevated highways to carry all fast automobile trafic where it will not endanger our children.

[Mrs.] Mary Jane Abbotson.

TURN SIGNALS.

Chicago, Feb. 6.—Some months ago there appeared an article in your columns about directional signals. I put one on my car, and after having had it this long, can state that it has been a great asset. It promotes peace of mind and aids me in being courteous to other motorists. I look forward to the day when all cars will have this equipment in the interest of greater safety.

John Lind.

NEWS AND VIEWS

More than 32,000 persons are expected to visit the sixteenth annual motor salon which opened yesterday in the Edgewater Beach hotel. Nineteen makes of cars are exhibiting 72 models. Curtis M. Betts, salon chairman, says that some of the cars offer the first public view of recent engineering improvements. Cars to be shown include: Buick, Cadillac, Chevrolet, Chrysler, De Soto, Dodge, Ford, Graham, Hupmobile, La Salle, Lincoln, Lincoln-Zephyr, Mercury, Oldsmobile, Packard, Plymouth, Pontiac, Studebaker, and Willys. Admission to the show, which closes Feb. 19, is free.

Nash jumped to eighth position in Cook county automobile sales in January from tenth place for December. Despite the general downward sales tendency in January compared with December, the Nash January total of 224 held about even with the 237 total for December.

The heavy snowstorm of Jan. 30 gave an unexpected thrill to Dodge dealers and drivers who went to Detroit to take part in the Dodge driveaway. Despite the bad driving conditions encountered through Michigan and in the Chicago district, especially all the dealers and drivers in the Chicago area arrived at their destinations without accident. About 250 cars were driven to points in Illinois, Wisconsin, Minnesota, Indiana, and Iowa.

MIDWEST RAILS UNDER EASTERN INSURANCE RULE

Senate Quiz Shows Absentee Power.

BY PHILIP HAMPSON.

Testimony before the senate monopoly committee in Washington as to the loose way in which insurance company directors and trustees are elected was mentioned yesterday in Chicago's financial district as offering one explanation for absentee control of midwestern railroad and other enterprises.

The testimony in Washington and inquiries in Chicago among insurance representatives indicated that middle western policy holders have little part in the election of the directors and trustees of the eastern insurance companies to which they entrust their insurance money. The lack of an opportunity for policy holders in mutual companies to vote, or their lack of interest, ensures perpetuation of management by eastern interests, it was pointed out.

Exercise Rail Influence.

This situation exists despite the fact that the directors of the large eastern insurance companies have an important influence, if not control, in the conduct of middle western railroad and other enterprises. Insurance companies have large investments in railroad and other properties. They also have a community of interest with New York banks and eastern investment houses.

An examination of the directorates of fifteen well known eastern insurance companies is illuminating. These fifteen companies have total admitted assets of more than 17 billion 230 million dollars—money invested in many types of enterprises. They have a total of 28 directors.

Derive Funds from Midwest.

Citizens of Illinois in at the end of 1937 had more than 4 billion 340 million dollars of insurance in force with fifteen companies. During 1937 Illinois citizens paid to these companies more than $119,782,000 in premiums.

A very substantial part of the money used to purchase the more than 17 billions of assets of the fifteen companies was obtained from the region west of the Alleghanies and hundreds of millions are poured each year into the treasuries of these and other eastern companies in premiums from the west. But western participation in the supervision of the huge sums of western money is lacking.

Chicago financial men say they have no desire to participate in the control of eastern railroads and enterprises. But they say that they are entitled to a share of the business originated by railroads and other enterprises having their headquarters in Chicago and serving the western area.

Keep Control In New York.

Chicago bankers assert that eastern insurance companies in the past have supported New York banks and investment houses in their efforts to keep control over Chicago railroads in New York. With control maintained in the east, New York banks and investment houses have been able to hold financial business connected with the roads that otherwise might have been handled by Chicago banks and investment houses.

Of the nine railroads that have their headquarters in Chicago, the boards of directors of six lines meet in New York City. With few exceptions easterners bulk large in the railroad directorates, despite the fact that none of these roads runs within hundreds of miles of New York City.

Where Directors Are Located.

Here are fifteen large eastern insurance companies, the number of their board members, those west of the Allegheniés, and the amount of their assets:

Aetna Life Insurance Co., Hartford, Conn., 10 directors, none in the west, $577,000,000 assets.

Connecticut Mutual Life Insurance none in the west; $312,000,000 assets.

Equitable Life Assurance Society of America, New York City, 35 directors, 5 in the west including one in Chicago; $2,105,000,000 assets.

John Hancock Life Insurance Co., Boston, Mass., 16 directors, all in the east; assets $855,000,000.

Massachusetts Mutual Life Insurance Co., Springfield, Mass., 20 directors, one in the west; assets $609,000,000.

Metropolitan Life Insurance Co., New York City, 24 directors, 3 in the west including one Chicagoan; assets $4,719,000,000.

Makeup of Other Companies.

Mutual Benefit Life Insurance Co., Newark, N. J., 12 directors, none in the west; assets $645,000,000.

Mutual Life Insurance Company of New York City, 36 directors, four in the west including two in Chicago; assets $1,349,000,000.

New England Mutual Life Insurance Co., Boston, Mass., 10 directors, all in the east; assets $402,000,000.

Penn Mutual Life Insurance Co., Philadelphia, Pa., 27 directors, none in west; assets $668,000,000.

American Can Profits Much Lower in 1938

Much lower earnings in 1938 were reported yesterday by the American Can company. The corporation, which has headquarters in New York, is one of the nation's leading makers of tin cans, packages, and receptacles of all kinds.

H. A. Baker reports lower earnings for American Can.

Among other companies which reported lower incomes were S. S. Kresge company, American Gas and Electric company, and Brooklyn Edison company. The Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., Childs company, and Chicago Railway Equipment company, which operated at substantial profits in 1937, had losses last year.

H. A. Baker, president of American Can, in his annual statement to stockholders, reported net income for 1938 was $13,645,499. This was equivalent to $4.35 a share on the outstanding common stock after preferred dividend requirements, Baker said. Net profit was $17,927,833, or $6.08 a share, in the preceding year.

Balance Goes for Surplus.

Baker said that a balance of $863,176 remained from net earnings last year after preferred dividend requirements and payment of $4 a share on the common stock. This balance was transferred to surplus.

Net sales amounted to $168,781,382, a decrease of 9.86 per cent from 1937. Most of the decline was caused by a reduction in packers' can sales, Baker said. Sales of general line products were only slightly less than in 1937. Baker said there were no bank loans at the end of 1938, compared with $9,000,000 at the end of 1937.

"Taxes amounted to $7,027,996, compared with $8,123,350 in the preceding year," Baker said. "The reduction was due to lower income taxes on reduced earnings. Other taxes were substantially higher. Taxes of all kinds were equivalent to $2.84 a share on common stock against $3.28 in 1937.

Social security taxes amounted to $1,173,162, an increase of $227,077 over those of 1937.

Kresge Earns Less.

Net income of the S. S. Kresge company, 5 and 10 cent store chain, amounted to $8,997,051 in 1938. Equal to $1.63 a common share, this compared with net profit of $10,712,513, or $1.94 a share, in 1937.

American Gas and Electric net income last year totaled $12,130,316 against $13,648,222 in 1937. This was equivalent to $2.23 a common share against $2.56 in 1937. December net income was $1,474,965, against $1,276,246 a year earlier.

The 1938 net profit of the Brooklyn Edison company was $10,442,817, or $8.36 a share on the common stock. In 1937 the utility had net earnings of $11,643,218, or $9.32 a share. In the three months ended Dec. 31 net income was $2,395,794, or $1.92 a share, against $3,182,454, or $2.55 a share in the December quarter of 1937.

Carpet Company Loses.

Operations of the Mohawk Carpet Mills, Inc., in 1938 resulted in a net loss of $1,485,901 after depreciation, taxes, and an inventory writedown. The company had net income of $1,242,084 in 1937. George McNeir, chairman, said that 1938 was one of the most difficult years in the rug and carpet industry since 1930.

Childs company, restaurant chain operator, reported a net loss of $756,222 for 1938. In 1937 the company had net profit of $421,801, or 49 cents a common share.

Chicago Railway Equipment company reported a net loss of $61,758 last year. In the preceding year the company operated at a net profit of $681,342, or $8.49 a common share.

U. S. May Give Brazil Credit in Trade Drive

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—Current discussions here between government officials and Oswaldo Aranha, foreign minister of Brazil, may lead to American credits for Brazil in an effort to win the largest South American country away from Nazi influence.

Oswaldo Aranha.

This is the interpretation placed here on the administration's invitation to Aranha to confer with American officials and the elaborate plans made for his visit. The President is alarmed by Fascist influence in the western hemisphere and is eager to take any steps that will retard Fascist growth, it was said.

Topics of Discussion.

Officials are publicly silent on the purposes of Aranha's visit, but the agenda for discussions is reported to include the following:

1. Financial assistance to help the Brazilian government liquidate frozen credits and create exchange for credit.

2. Resumption of payments on some of the 357 million dollars in private loans in Brazil, either wholly or partly in default.

3. Promotion of trade and evening of the trade balance now in Brazil's favor.

4. Possible assistance from the United States in helping Brazil build her defenses.

It is reported that Aranha's visit may result in substantial credits to Brazil from the Export-Import bank. It is understood that at yesterday's conference between Aranha and Undersecretary of State Sumner Welles it was tentatively agreed that some form of financial assistance to Brazil is necessary as a first step in improving economic and political relations between America and Brazil.

Aranha is scheduled to confer with Warren Lee Pierson, president of the Export-Import bank. Pierson had discussed the possibility of credits with him during a visit to Brazil several months ago.

The minister has brought with him voluminous statistics on commercial relations and visible and invisible balances of trade with which to support plans for American assistance. Aranha, who formerly was Brazil's ambassador to this country, is regarded adept at handling such negotiations. He has many friends among officials here, another point in his favor.

He insists that Brazil "is not asking for money" but says it would welcome commercial credits and further American investments in the development of Brazilian industries.

Aranha could not confer with the President nor Secretary of State Cordell Hull because of their illness, but he is expected to visit them early next week. He paid a courtesy call today on Secretary of the Treasury Henry Morgenthau Jr. This is expected to mark the opening of a series of conferences on monetary and trade questions.

Believes Money Aid Helpful.

Morgenthau recently expressed the opinion that a monetary understanding would help promote trade between the countries. There is still a substantial volume of trade between the two countries, but Germany last year remained the leading trader with Brazil. The Nazi barter principle, however, is not popular, working, as it does, in the Nazis' favor. As a result, American trade stimulants apparently would be welcomed.

Aranha said that the balance of trade with the United States had invariably been in favor of his country, but in a constantly diminishing proportion. He pointed out that Brazil's trade with the United States dropped to 30 million dolars last year from a peak of 60 millions a few years ago.

BANK OF AMERICA WINS COURT RULING TO CURB INVESTIGATION BY SEC

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—The United States District Court of Appeals tonight issued an injunction restraining the Securities and Exchange commission from investigating the Bank of America's private dealings with its customers. The court ruled that the bank's contention—holding that affairs of the institution's customers should not be made public—was completely justified.

The billion dollar Bank of America contended that it is under supervision of the Federal Deposit Insurance corporation, and the federal reserve board, and that the attempt of the SEC to investigate its affairs was not only contrary to law but unwarranted infringement upon the fiduciary nature of the bank's relations with its customers.

The SEC was attempting to investigate the affairs of the bank and its clients as a part of its hearings on the Transamerica corporation, which has been charged with filing "false and misleading statements" with the SEC.

CAPITAL STOCK BOOST PLANNED BY INLAND STEEL

The Inland Steel company has notified the New York Stock exchange that it will call a special meeting of stockholders for March 31 to vote on an increase in capital stock, company officials said yesterday. The call will be issued within two or three weeks, they said.

At the meeting, which will be held in Chicago, stockholders will be asked to approve an increase in the authorized capital stock to 1,650,000 shares from 1,600,000. The change will provide stock for acquisition of the Wilson & Bennett Manufacturing company, Chicago, the nation's largest maker of steel barrels and pails. Of the Inland stock now authorized 1,576,070 shares are outstanding.

Plans for the merger of the two companies were announced Jan. 18.

UTILITIES POWER PLAN IS OPPOSED BY TWO GROUPS

Two objections to the proposed plan for reorganization of the Utilities Power and Light corporation, big Chicago holding company, were filed yesterday before Harry N. Gottlieb, special master in chancery. The reorganization plan is that of the Atlas corporation, which owns a major part of Utilities Power debentures.

Attorney Willard L. King filed an objection in behalf of the common stockholders' protective committee. He charged that the plan discriminates against common stockholders. A similar objection was filed for the class A stockholders by Attorney Anan Raymond.

It was said more extensive objections would be filed before the Securities and Exchange commission, which on Tuesday will begin a hearing into the Atlas plan in Washington, D. C.

Rock Island to Buy 2 New Streamliners

The Rock Island Lines tomorrow will ask for bids for two streamlined high speed passenger trains, the road announced yesterday. They will be used in service between Chicago and Denver and Colorado Springs. When these trains go in operation six streamliners will be in service between Chicago and Denver. The Burlington has two and the North Western-Union Pacific two.

The two new trains will each consist of seven cars pulled by a 2,000 horse power Diesel-electric locomotive. Each train will have one baggage car, one diner, two coaches, two sleepers, and one bedroom-observation-lounge.

Will Make Faster Trip.

Running schedules have not been worked out, but the new train—to be called the Colorado Rocket—will take Chicagoans to the Rockies in much less time than is now required by the Rocky Mountain Limited of the road. The train will run from Chicago to Limon, Colo., where it will be divided, part going to Colorado Springs and the other to Denver. The distance from Chicago to Colorado Springs is 1,072 miles and to Denver 1,084 miles.

Besides serving the west, the new trains will supplement the Rock Island's present high speed Rocket service to the Tri Cities, Rock Island, Moline, and Davenport, and to Des Moines, Omaha, and Lincoln.

Has Six Streamliners.

The Rock Island has six streamlined stainless steel trains built by the Edward G. Budd Manufacturing company. One runs between Chicago and Peoria, one between Chicago and Des Moines, two between Kansas City and St. Paul-Minneapolis, and two between Kansas City and Fort Worth and Dallas, Texas.

Operation of the present Rockets has been highly successful and the management believes that it can build its Rocky mountain resort business with a train of the Rocket type.

When the new trains go into operation there will be about forty-five streamlined trains running in and out of Chicago. Approximately sixty-five streamlined trains are operated by American railroads.

CHICAGO STEEL OUTPUT HIGHEST FOR THIS YEAR

Steel mills in the Chicago district have scheduled ingot production starting tomorrow at the highest rate this year, the Dow-Jones service reported yesterday. The indicated production ratio is 50.1 per cent of theoretical plant capacity, a gain of 0.5 point from the preceding week.

The projected output is a point higher than a week ago and 2.3 points above that scheduled four weeks ago. A year ago it was 23.5 per cent. The advance in the district's production is the third consecutive weekly gain.

Pittsburgh steel operations are scheduled to expand 2 points to 48 per cent. Steel making in the Youngstown district was expected to start this week at 44 per cent, unchanged from a week ago.

Markets and Banks Close Tomorrow

Principal American commodity and security exchanges, and banks will be closed tomorrow in observance of Lincoln's birthday anniversary. Foreign markets, the New Orleans Cotton exchange and the live stock markets will operate as usual. Trading will be resumed Tuesday.

PREMIER POINTS FRANCE BACK TO SANITY IN MONEY

Hopes Rise Daladier Will Succeed.

[Chicago Tribune Press Service.]

PARIS, Feb. 11.—Hope is rising that Premier Edouard Daladier will succeed in his efforts to bring France back to the path of monetary orthodoxy from which it strayed under the radical régime of Leon Blum, former premier.

The belief is expressed that the danger of extreme monetary inflation, which threatened to overtake the country less than a year ago, has been turned aside.

The turn of events in recent months recalls the earlier "rescue" of France from the consequences of monetary mismanagement which was effected under the Poincaré government. Poincaré's national union government was called to power in 1926 after an earlier radical administration had brought the government's fiscal affairs near the point of wreckage.

Believe Powers Justified.

The dire warnings with which Daladier wrested from a reluctant parliament the unusual decree powers over financial matters were, in the opinion of unbiased observers, fully justified. The history of French finances since the world war gives ample evidence of the results that would flow from the policies followed by the Blum government.

The will o' wisp of inflation has led France from the narrow path of sound finance before. Each time a strong government was called upon to restore order and financial sanity. The progress made under Daladier indicates to observers that once again a successful restoration will be accomplished. Not all are so optimistic, some pointing out that Daladier still has many hurdles to clear.

Living on Borrowed Money.

France has been living on borrowed money since the war. The refusal or political inability of successive governments to face that fact paved the way for the drastic decree powers that Daladier demanded late in 1938.

France, like other participating nations, emerged from the war under a terrific burden of debt. The French were not worried about their debts, however. They were confident that "the Boches will pay." It took years for that pleasant belief to die, and in the meantime inflation was resorted to as a means of avoiding a realistic appraisal of the country's financial status.

France kept borrowing after the armistice to support swollen costs of the gargantuan government that had grown up during the war years and to finance the reconstruction of its devastated areas. At the same time it built up the largest military plant in Europe.

Inflation Cycle Prolonged.

Because of these developments the inflationary cycle was prolonged for years. The franc was devalued and the gold stock of the Bank of France revalued several times. Finally waning confidence in the false bookkeeping of the government brought about a reckoning.

The first Popular Front government [Cartel des Gauches] broke in 1926. Its inflation of the currency had been carried on covertly for the most part. Then followed the Poincaré stabilization which restored the franc to a sound footing and put the government treasury in a fairly healthy condition.

The second Popular Front under Blum differed from the first in its financial policy in one important respect—it carried on its financial inflation openly. Supported by a combination of left wing parties the Blum government built up a huge debt structure. It was that burden of debt that finally destroyed Blum politically and brought to power Daladier with a pledge of monetary reform.

Wrecked by Mismanagement.

"Governments of the left," Daladier told parliament in demanding his financial decree powers, "are wrecked on the rocks of monetary mismanagement. It was not foreign armies but unsound financial policies that undid the work of the French revolution."

Daladier is now striving to prove that his own government, equipped with new powers, can do what the former régime lacked the courage or ability to accomplish.

Senators Rap U. S. Spending; Warn Investor

The federal government's spending policies are denounced by two Democratic senators in the February issue of Investor America, the magazine of the American Federation of Investors, Inc.

Senator Edward R. Burke of Nebraska attacks what he calls "the present effort to sugarcoat a profligate spending policy by emphasizing its alleged investment character." Senator Harry Flood Byrd of Virginia charges that the administration is gambling for the return of prosperity on continued government

Articles written by the two senators were made public yesterday. The magazine is to be published in a few days.

Burke Warns of Bankruptcy.

Senator Burke says the administration has sought to change bookkeeping methods so as to conceal evidences of threatened bankruptcy.

"Fiscal policies of the federal government are a matter of importance to the citizens whose savings provide the capital of private industry," he says. "Unwise or excessive government expenditures, financed either by taxation or by borrowings of funds otherwise available to private enterprise, are a deterrent to normal industrial progress.

"Investors are suffering from burdensome taxation, which reduces or wipes out the earnings of companies whose stocks and bonds they hold and which likewise cuts down their savings from other sources. Proof of existing handicaps of private industry and of the difficulty encountered by investors in placing their savings to advantage is given by the ease with which the treasury finances deficits at abnormally low rates of interest.

"Investors have reason to recognize the need of maintaining a proper balance between public and private expenditures.

Byrd Fears Deficit Spending.

Senator Byrd says a gradual approach to a balanced budget would supply the country with some much needed assurance that congress is aware of the pitfalls of unbridled spending.

"We approach the tenth deficit year with no assurance or early prospect of balancing the budget," he declares. "In fact, this current year the federal expenditures are the highest in peacetime history. The deficit is second only to 1936, when the soldiers' bonus was paid.

"Expenditures for the next fiscal year are likely to be as large or larger and the deficit as great or greater than for the present year. Throughout this period of deficit spending the President's budget shows that the federal government alone has spent 68 billion dollars, more than 28 billion of this being added to the public debt.

"Yet we are told in a presidential message that the deficit spending must be continued until a national income arbitrarily fixed at 80 billion dollars—an income reached only once in history—is attained. The President says that on July 1, 1940, we shall have a federal debt of $44,458,000,000.

Each Family Owes $1,600.

"Our total public debt—national, state, and local—now averages $450 for every man, woman and child. For every family the average is $1,600. Such is the mortgage which government has placed upon the property of all the people, in addition to tax assessments collected.

"Under the load of such a debt we are spending even now at the rate of $23,000 a minute, twenty-four hours a day, 365 days a year. When the results of this debt and spending policy are considered it cannot be overlooked that there are today, by the government's own estimates, 10,500,000 unemployed, nearly as many as when the depression was at its worst, and nearly 3,000,000 more than last year.

"The longer we defer economy, the greater and more terrible will be the penalty that we must surely pay."

INDUSTRY GAINS IN SOME LINES, SAGS IN OTHERS

Average Is Barely Steady for Week.

BY LELAND FORRESTER.

American business and industry barely held their own last week. Some lines of production showed a tendency to droop, but others held even or advanced, and merchants reported an increase in trade.

Steel production, cotton textile manufacturing and building of homes expanded, compared with the preceding week. Bank clearings were in larger volume. Automobile output gained, but less than the normal amount at this season.

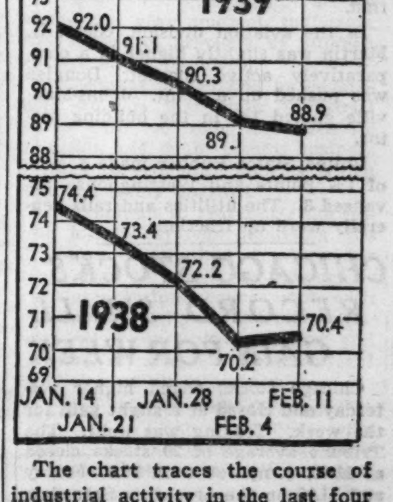
Late 1938 Earnings Improve.

Brightening news included additional earnings reports revealing an improvement in corporation business in the final 1938 quarter, and signs of peace between the government and the utility industry.

The rate of steel production was 53.4 per cent of capacity. In the preceding week it was 52.8 per cent and a year ago 30.7 per cent. Ingot output in January was 3,186,834 tons, an increase of about 1 per cent over the December total. The United States Steel corporation's shipments in January were reported to have been the largest for any month since October, 1937.



The chart traces the course of industrial activity in the last four weeks, as measured by the Associated Press seasonally adjusted composite index, and shows the corresponding activity a year ago (1929-'30 average equals 100).

Automobile plants turned out 84,500 cars and trucks, against 78,410 in the preceding week and 57,810 in the 1938 week.

Storms Reduce Rail Freight.

Railway freight loadings fell in the latest week for which figures are available—the period ended Feb. 4. The volume was 576,790 cars, or 3 per cent less than in the preceding week, but 2.1 per cent more than a year earlier. Snowstorms and floods cut shipments of coal and industrial goods.

Engineering construction awards slumped 30 per cent for the week and were 24 per cent below the level of a year ago. Electric power output was down 0.2 per cent for the week but held 9.8 per cent above the 1938 week.

Retail sales were 2 to 7 per cent above year ago levels, said Dun & Bradstreet. In the preceding week the gain compared with a year ago was 1 to 5 per cent. The agency said wholesale trade was 5 to 15 per cent larger than a year ago. A week earlier the gain over the 1938 volume was estimated at 4 to 12 per cent.

Department Store Sales Lower.

Reporting for an earlier period, the federal reserve board said sales by department stores alone in the week ended Feb. 4 were 6 per cent less than in the 1938 week.

New financing tumbled to about 10½ million dollars from 151 millions a week earlier and 46 millions a year earlier. The week's marketings included a public offering of 400,000 shares of common stock of the Howard Aircraft corporation of Chicago at $3 a share. The federal treasury sold $300,000,000 of ⅞ per cent notes at 100¼.

STOCKS REVERSE RECENT SLIDE; GAIN MODESTLY

Trading Reduced by Start of Double Holiday.

New York, Feb. 11.—[Special.]—Stocks mustered enough strength today to reverse the downward trend of recent sessions and closed with gains of fractions to a point. Industrial issues led the way. Motor and aviation issues received favorable treatment.

Seats in the brokerage houses were plentiful as traders got an early start on the long week-end holiday. Those in attendance were discouraged by the small volume of 322,070 shares on the upswing, the smallest total for a Saturday in many months.

News Influence Lacking.

News of a price making character was at a premium. No important change is expected to take place in the operating rate of the steel industry next week and conversational fodder was provided chiefly by the situation in Spain.

Stocks opened higher and met with no important rebuffs throughout the two hours of trading. Only 515 issues were traded and of this number 291 finished higher, 94 declined and 130 ended unchanged.

United States Steel, after opening unchanged, forged ahead to finish with a fractional gain. Bethlehem was fractionally higher on its initial sale and closed with a gain of a point. Other issues in the group were up fractions.

Motor Shares Firmer.

Motor shares followed the firmer trend. Chrysler was among the best and finished more than a point higher. General Motors was bid up a fraction.

In the aviation division, Glenn L. Martin was slightly higher in a comparatively active market. Douglas was pushed up a point. Johns-Manville gained 1¾ in the building sector.

United States Rubber made a gain of 1⅜ points and Westinghouse advanced 3. The utilities and rails generally were up fractions.

GRAINS REGAIN EARLY LOSSES; FINISH FIRMER

Late Rally Is Caused by Short Covering.

CHICAGO GRAIN PRICES

	Yesterday.	Friday.	Yr. ago.
Wheat	$.67¾	$.67⅝	Holiday
Corn	.48⅛	.48¼	......
Oats	.27⅝	.27¾	......
Rye	.44⅞	.44⅜	......
Soy beans	.79¾	.79⅝	......

Grain markets showed an easy undertone in the early trading yesterday. Corn declined ⅜ cent with the May delivery selling at 47¾ cents, or within ½ cent of the seasonal low price. September corn was in new low ground. There was comparatively little pressure on the market after the opening rush of selling. Short covering brought about a rally from the low price. Closing trades were unchanged to ⅛ cent a bushel higher.

Closing trades on wheat futures were unchanged to ¼ cent higher. Firmness in southwestern markets had some effect on prices. Oats declined ⅛ cent and rye was ⅛ to ½ cent a bushel higher.

Pledge Corn to Loans.

About 11,000,000 bushels of cash corn were pledged last week by farmers as security for government loans at 57 cents a bushel. This compared with 16,000,000 bushels which entered the loan category during the preceding week, and sealings of 23,500,000 bushels several weeks ago. Including grain pledged from the 1937 crop, farmers have now secured loans on approximately 170,000,000 bushels of corn.

It is figured by brokers that if farmers continue to pledge corn at the rate of 11,000,000 bushels a week from now until March 31, the deadline for securing loans, there will be about 250,000,000 bushels sealed in cribs. This is about equal to the excess in the available supply of that grain for the 1938-'39 season as compared with the preceding crop year.

Corn Lacks Export Demand.

There was no evidence of export demand yesterday for American corn. The asking price for Argentine grain in Liverpool was reported to have declined 4 cents a bushel during the last week. During the same period American shippers reduced their price about 1½ cents a bushel. Liverpool corn futures closed ¼ cent lower. The Buenos Aires market was unchanged to ¼ cent a bushel lower.

Part of the early easiness in wheat was on selling induced by a long range forecast for warmer weather over the west and southwest during the current week. The Federal Surplus Commodities corporation was reported to have reduced its bid for hard winter cash wheat in the southwest by ½ cent a bushel relative to the May delivery. The current subsidy offered on flour sold to continental Europe is equal to about 25 cents a bushel on wheat.

ENJOIN SCHULTE FROM SECURITIES MANIPULATIONS

Blamed for 'Misleading' Market Situation.

New York, Feb. 11.—[Special.]—David A. Schulte today consented to a federal court injunction, asked by the securities commission, restraining him from manipulation of securities traded on national securities exchanges.

David A. Schulte.

Schulte was charged in the complaint with maintaining a number of brokerage accounts in his own name and the names of others in the offices of Ira Haupt & Co., member of the New York Stock exchange, and of Strauss-Phillips & Co., member of the stock exchange and an associate member of the New York Curb exchange.

Guaranteed by Schulte.

In each account, no matter what name was used, said the complaint, Schulte posted the margin, guaranteed the account, and had full trading power.

Manipulation was charged in the stocks of five companies of which Schulte was an officer, director, and stockholder. These were Park & Tilford, Inc.; Dunhill International, Inc.; Philip Morris & Co., Ltd., Inc.; Schulte Retail Stores corporation, and Huyler's of Delaware, Inc., all listed on the New York Stock exchange or New York Curb exchange.

Matched orders, said the complaint, were used "to create a misleading appearance of active trading and a misleading appearance in respect of the market for the securities mentioned."

Price Boosting Charged.

In addition, Schulte effected, alone and with others, a series of transactions in these securities, creating actual or apparent active trading and raising the prices for the purpose of inducing others to purchase the securities," the complaint said.

Schulte was enjoined from entering orders for the purchase and sale of any securities regist red on a national securities exchange, either in accounts maintained in his own name or guaranteed by him, which result in matching of orders or increating activity and thereby raising prices in contravention of the provisions of the securities act of 1934.

FOREIGN TRADE IN PORK

FOREIGN TRADE IN HOGS, PORK IS NEARER NORMAL

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The agriculture department reported today that United States foreign trade in hogs and pork took on a more normal aspect in 1938. Exports incrased and imports declined. With domestic production expanding, further declines in imports were predicted this year.

Imports of cattle and beef also were smaller in 1938, the department said. They totaled 424,022 head, weighing 241,356,000 pounds live weight. The department said this was a decline of 14 per cent in number and 15 per cent in weight.

Exports of pork, excluding lard, were placed at 102,782,000 pounds, compared with 69,064,000 in 1937. Imports were 52,382,000 pounds, compared with 74,831,000 in 1937. Exports of lard were 204,603,000 pounds, compared with 135,950,000.

Imports of cattle and beef were 5.4 per cent of cattle slaughtered in this country under federal inspection. Pork imports were 1.08 per cent of total production.

PREDICT MEATS TO BE AS CHEAP AS DURING 1938

Live Stock Is Expected to Average About Same.

Meat bills for American consumers during the spring and summer of this year will probably be as low, on the whole, as those of 1938, it was predicted by live stock men at the Chicago stock yards yesterday. Costs of raw material [live stock] are expected to average much the same during those periods as last year, it was said.

Any possible increase in rates of some classes probably will be offset by the cheaper costs of pork foreseen by market experts for the summer of 1939. From the present outlook all cuts of pork will fit the budget of the average working man's family better during coming months than other meats. The bulk of the expected increase in the spring and summer meat output will be pork, packers agree.

Expect Large Hog Slaughter.

Private estimates on the probable slaughter of hogs during the next four months for the entire country indicate an expected gain of about 10 per cent over the number butchered during the same months of 1938. The trade expects the late summer killing of swine to exceed a year earlier by about 20 per cent, with supplies sufficient to maintain an attractive level of prices in the butcher shops.

Sept..	.40	.48	.34	.42	.42	.44

Prices Vary from Year Ago.

Current quotations for the various classes of meats in wholesale channels are from 2½ cents per pound lower to 3½ cents higher than a year ago, with the least changes in pork and the most uneveness in beef.

At the close of last week butcher shop owners were paying as much as 3½ cents a pound more for some cuts of beef than in 1938, whereas they obtained other cuts 2½ cents lower. The most upturn was in the cheaper grades.

Lamb meat sold wholesale mostly 2 to 3 cents a pound higher than in 1938, but many cuts of pork cost the same as a year ago. Top loins of pork were a cent above last year.

Live Stock Trend Lower.

The general trend of live stock costs last week was lower. The steer average for the week declined 25 cents to $10.20, but it was $2.40 above the corresponding week last year. Lambs averaged $8.95, off 20 cents, but this compared with only $7.45 in 1938. The hog price at $7.65 was steady with the preceding week, but 65 cents under a year ago. The three principal classes combined made an average of $8.95, which was $1.10, or 14 per cent, above a year ago.

Final rates for most steers yesterday were 25 cents lower than the close of the week previous. Yearlings and cows were steady to 25 cents lower. Calves showed a decline 25 cents lower. Most hogs were steady to 10 cents higher than at the close of the preceding week.

Today we give more definitions of defects and blemishes as defined by the Southern Pine association in its regulations for grading lumber produced by the members of the association. The gradings have been standardized to help lumber buyers to determine the quality of the lumber they are purchasing.

Pith: This is the small soft core occurring in the structural center of a log. The wood immediately around the pith sometimes contains defects or blemishes.

Shakes: A shake is a lengthwise separation of the wood which occurs usually between and parallel to the rings of annual growth.

Splits: These are lengthwise separations of the wood due to the tearing apart of the wood cells.

Stain: This is a discoloration on or in lumber. It is of any color other than the natural color of the piece on which it occurs.

Wane is bark, or the lack of wood or bark, from any cause, on the edge or corner of a piece of lumber.

WEATHER SLOWS DRILLING IN OIL FIELDS OF ILLINOIS

Centralia, Ill., Feb. 11.—(AP)—Inclement weather was blamed by operators today for a decline in Illinois oil field activity. A total of 239 tests was completed during January compared with 452 in December, and 394 in November.

The industry floundered in mud and water again this week during which there were sixty-nine well completions, including fifty-two producers. Twenty-seven of the producers were in the Lake Centralia-Salem field.

The Chicago Syndicate's No. 1 Williams well, south of Kell, struck water in both the McClosky and Rosiclare formations and will be abandoned.

February Butter Contract Higher on Short Covering

Short covering in February storage commitments featured butter futures trading yesterday on the Chicago Mercantile exchange. The current delivery rose ⅝ cent a pound to 24¼ cents, its highest level in more than three weeks. March fresh standard contracts were offered at 24¾ cents, a discount of ¼ cent a pound under the support level of the Federal Surplus Commodities corporation. Egg futures prices were unchanged to ¼ cent a dozen lower in quiet trading.

The agriculture department has reported that stocks of leaf tobacco owned by dealers and manufacturers in the United States and Porto Rico on Jan. 1 totaled 2,342,593,000 pounds. These stocks compared with 2,222,019,000 pounds on the same date in 1938.

TRACTORS, AUTOS CUT LABOR, BUT EXPAND SEVERAL INDUSTRIES

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—About one billion man hours of labor a year have been dispensed with through adoption of tractors, trucks, and automobiles on farms in the last ten years. But more than this amount of new work has been created in the consequent expansion of the automotive, rubber, and petroleum industries, according to a WPA study made public today.

The study is described as an example of the compensatory workings of modern technology. Although the new employment created is significant in a broad economic sense, the report said, the immediate effect of mechanization has been to throw thousands of tenants and farm laborers out of jobs.

The fact that the newly created jobs were generally in remote cities and called for skill and training which few farm workers possessed also detracted from the long run beneficial effect of the change, it said.

The rapid growth of mechanization on farms is indicated by the fact that there has been a 66 per cent increase in the number of farm tractors between 1930 and 1938.

OHIOANS OBJECT TO U. S.-CANADA SEAWAY TREATY

Toledo, O., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—The Toledo Chamber of Comerce today announced it had passed a resolution opposing ratification of the treaty between the United States and Canada for completion of the Great Lakes-St. Lawrence waterway. The board outlined its objections as these:

Cost to the United States will be $300,000,000, which would have to come out of the public treasury as the waterway is to be free.

That 60 per cent of the grain making use of the waterway would be Canadian. That the water power features would benefit the public only to a limited extent.

Every study of present trafic and future possibilities reveals there is no need for the deep waterway.

JUSTICE BUREAU GIVEN REPORT ON NEWSPRINT

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—[Special.]—The department of justice today announced it received the report of the federal trade commission regarding the investigation which that commission made into the newsprint industry. This study was made by the commission in response to a request of the attorney general on Jan. 24, 1938.

The department is examining the report in order to determine whether any violation of the federal anti-trust laws is disclosed therein. No decision will be made as to whether or not the department will take any action in respect to trade practices and conditions in the newsprint industry until the examination of the commission's report is concluded.

Newsprint Production in Canada Is Reduced

MONTREAL, Que., Fev. 11.—(AP)—Production of newsprint by Canadian mills totaled 208,382 tons in January, compared with 209,753 tons in December and 222,500 tons in January, 1938, the Newsprint Association of Canada reported today. Shipments amounted to 201,852 tons, 23,620 less than in December, but 32,892 tons higher than in January, 1938.

ASK EQUAL RULE FOR PRIVATE AND PUBLIC UTILITIES

Seek Sounder Relations with Government.

Washington, D. C., Feb. 11.—(AP)—A committee of the Chamber of Commerce of the United States urged today that equal regulation be applied to public and private utilities as one step in establishing "sound relationships" between the government and private electric utilities. Suggesting public interest made necessary the establishment of a definite, basic relationship, the committee said "widespread concern" had resulted from federal activities.

"This concern," it said, "has affected the sale of securities and the raising of new money for increasing facilities that are urgently needed."

Owens Heads Committee.

The report on government-utility relationships was drafted by the chamber's committee on natural resources and will be presented at the annual meeting in May. James F. Owens, president of the Oklahoma Gas and Electric company, was committee chairman. The report also recommended:

"Effective regulation by state commissions, and where it is necessary and within its proper jurisdiction, by the Federal Power commission.

"Legally established rules of general application regarding the purchase of private utility properties by governmental agencies for use and operation as publicly owned utility systems, or parts thereof, the object of such purchase being the avoidance of destructive competition."

View on Sale Necessity.

There was no direct reference in connection with the latter recommendation to the prolonged negotiations between the Tennessee Valley authority and the Commonwealth and Southern corporation, recently ended by TVA's purchase of the corporation's system in the TVA area. The committee said, however, that in the absence of regulation of publicly cwned utilities "occasions will arise in which there will be no alternative for privately owned utilities than sale of their properties to the only available buyer—the government."

"For such sales there should be formulated appropriate and fair rules, protecting proper interests," it said.

COTTON

Mills and spot interests bought cotton futures early yesterday. The market weakened late in the session on hedging by the south. Closing trades were about the low point with prices unchanged to .09 cent a pound lower. The new crop months led the decline, and sold at approximately the lowest price of the season.

Spot cotton closed .02 to .05 cent lower, with New York, 8.95 cents; New Orleans, 8.59 cents; Houston, 8.30 cents, and Galveston at 8.21 cents a pound. Prices follow:

MEXICO PUTS POWER FIRMS UNDER STRICT GOVERNMENT CONTROL

MEXICO CITY, Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—A new law placing the Mexican electric power industry under strict governmental control was promulgated today in the official Daily Gazette. Effective within ten days, the law provides that all concerns operating in Mexico must apply for new concessions within ninety days. Concessions may be granted for a maximum period of fifty years, "after which they become state property without payment of any compensation whatsoever."

The new law provided that only Mexicans or Mexican corporations are entitled to concessions and stipulated that the government may establish the obligation in special cases to furnish electricity free when it is in the public interest. Violation of any condtions in a concession provides for forfeiture of property and concession to the government.

Among the principal foreign owned power companies operating in Mexico are the Mexican Light and Power company and various Electric Bond and Share company subsidiaries.

AUTO PLANTS CUT OUTPUT DESPITE LARGE ORDERS

Detroit, Mich., Feb. 11.—(AP)—The manufacturing division of the motor car industry has put the brakes on temporarily, although it still boasts an accumulation of unfilled orders. The levelling more closely to retail distribution is designed to avoid the overstocking of any dealer outlets during the fortnight or so that a curtailment of consumer requirements is exected to last.

This development is wholly in line with expectations expressed by the producers as far back as last November, when the current models were introduced, and in no way alters previous estimates by the manufacturer that they will assemble at least 1,000,000 units of these models during the first three months of the present year.

The uncertainties of the labor situation and general business conditions make it impracticable to venture predictions regarding second quarter output, say most of the car makers. However, they are not willing to revise downward earlier assertions that close to 4,000,000 cars and trucks will be assembled during the present model season.

BLAME INDUSTRY, GOVERNMENT AND LABOR FOR SLUMP

Federal Acts Are Causes of Much Difficulty.

New York, Feb. 11.—(AP)—The National Association of Manufacturers said today that government, industry, and labor all must share the blame for policies which retarded business recovery in 1932-'37 and led to the 1937-'38 slump This was the finding of a large scale study of depression problems.

Howard Coonley reports on causes of depression.

The study was preliminary to a forthcoming report listing conditions deemed essential to sustained prosperity after recovery has been achieved. It was described as the "first large scale study by any group" of depression problems and represented the fruits of an 18 month survey by 52 business leaders and economists.

The nation's manufacturers recognize that all groups in our economy have been contributing factors to depression," said Howard Coonley, president of the association.

Factors in Depression.

Among "immediate factors" of the 1937 decline, the report mentioned:

1. Wrongly timed government acts, including the raising of member bank reserve requirements by the federal reserve board and "drastic instead of gradual reduction in federal cash deficit expenditures."

2. "Sitdown". strikes,. "accompanied by governmental indication that seizure of property by sitdown strikers might be lawful."

3. "Expression of belief by government officials that many industrial prices were too high, thus creating confusion and doubt among business men as to economic policies which could be safely pursued."

4. " .Proposals to reorganize the federal judicial system, including the Supreme court, thus creating the belief that we might be moving toward a centralized government, with lessened authority in the states, impairment of constitutional rights, and removal of adequate constitutional protection of all minorities."

How Government Harmed.

The report dealt extensively with governmental activities, listing among "depressive elements" excessive and unsound taxes, unsound regulation of business, the theory purchasing power could be created by "artificial" price fixing and support of wage rates, and an "unsound" relief program.

Business policies cited as contributing to depression included: Unwise inventory expansion and consumer credit policies, failure of many companies to reduce fixed charges and to develop satisfactory labor relationships, "too ready acceptance of apparent effects of government spending policies and making business calculations thereon."

The government policies, the report said, "undermined confidence in the American economy and restricted the 1932-'37 recovery.

DENY NEW TUBE WOULD BENEFIT HOME RADIO SET

Long Life Not Necessary, Says Phone Official.

The long life vacuum tube developed by the Bell Telephone laboratories would not be advantageous for home radio sets, the monopoly investigating committee was told in a letter made public yesterday.

Frank B. Jewett.

Frank B. Jewett, vice president of the American Telephone and Telegraph company and president of the laboratories, recently sent the letter to the committee to amplify testimony he gave on Jan. 18 at a hearing on patents. He testified Bell had developed a tube that would last 50,000 hours and consume less current than the ordinary tube, but that radio makers had not adopted it.

Intended for Telephone Use.

In his letter Jewett said he wished to make it clear that he did not intend any criticism of radio manufacturers. He said the long life tube was developed especially for telephone use and that its advantages would not necessarily extend to radio sets. He stressed that the average radio set has a "relatively short life of four to six years."

"Little or nothing would be gained," he said, "by using [in a radio set] tubes whose normal life is eight to ten times the life of their associated equipment." This is particularly true at present, because the long life tube entails a greater cost, he added.

Tubes Suited to Uses.

"The engineering problem of the radio designer," he wrote, "has diverged from that of the telephone designer, with the result that each has developed a tube construction best suited to his industry."

BONDS FIRMER; RAIL AND UTILITY ISSUES DO BEST

New York, Feb. 11.—(AP)—Main trading interest in the bond market centered on rail and utility issues today, many of which closed fractions to about a point higher.

U. S. Governments participated in the rising trend but meagerness of the turnover attested to the absence from the street of most traders, who got an early start on the Lincoln day holiday. The final range in the government list was 6-32nd of a point higher to 2-32nd lower with gains outnumbering declines. Foreign dollar bonds did better as a whole than the domestic groups.

YOUR INCOME TAX—3.

Last Thursday's article outlined the items which you must include in gross income in figuring your federal income tax for 1938.

Certain items, however, which may be "income" to you personally are not considered income items for tax purposes. Such exempt items, which should be omitted from your gross income in reporting, include:

1. Any money or properties received in 1938 as a gift or inheritance. A gift must actually be a gift and not some other form of income masquerading as a gift.

2. Compensation received from state or local governments. This includes salaries and pensions. It also includes jury fees in state, county, or municipal courts.

Insurance, Alimonies.

3. Payments received from a life insurance policy. Also proceeds from accident or health insurance policies.

4. Alimony payments received. Also damages for alienation of affection, breach of promise to marry, personal injury, slander, or libel.

5. Soldiers' bonus paid to world war veterans.

6. Corporate dividends received that were paid out of earnings made before March 1, 1913.

7. Interest on bonds of state or local governments. Interest on postal savings accounts.

Special Attention.

Special attention must be given to interest on bonds and notes of the federal government and to interest and dividends from government agencies. Such income is exempt from the normal income tax of 4 per cent, but in many cases is subject to surtaxes which are levied on net taxable incomes of more than $4,000.

The government obligations whose interest is completely free from surtaxes as well as the normal tax are: United States bonds issued on or before Sept. 1, 1917; treasury notes, bills, and certificates of indebtedness, and farm loan bonds issued under the farm loan act.

On savings bonds and treasury bonds, interest is free from surtaxes only on $5,000 of bonds held. This $5,000 exemption does not apply to bonds of government agencies.

Member Banks.

Dividends paid by member banks of the federal reserve system on their stock are treated like ordinary corporate dividends and are part of gross income. Dividends by federal savings and loan associations are exempt from normal taxes but not surtaxes.

[The fourth article in this series will appear Thursday. It will discuss items you should deduct from gross income to find your net taxable income. If you have income tax questions write to the Investors' Guide.]

EFFECTS OF BIG BUSINESS ARE STILL UNKNOWN

Study Advises Against Penalties for Size.

New York, Feb. 11.—[U. P.]—Excessive concentration of economic power is dangerous, but it is impossible in the light of present knowledge to say that big business is bad just because it is big, the Twentieth Century Fund said tonight. In a memorandum to Senator Joseph C. O'Mahoney [D., Wyo.], chairman of the senate monopoly investigating committee, the fund's corporation survey committee reported the results of three years of research.

"Until we know much more than we do now about the effects of big business," the memorandum said, "penalties, legislative or otherwise, should not be placed upon business merely because of its size unless clearly justified by the evidence."

Conversely, the report said, "subsidies or other favors based on small size are, we believe, unwise."

O'Mahoney Asks Facts.

O'Mahoney had asked the Twentieth Century Fund for information gathered by a committee of which Ralph E. Flanders, president of the Jones & Lamson Machine company, is chairman.

In his letter replying to O'Mahoney's, Flanders said that big business was "suspect" with a large part of the population, and that "this view has even been written into the law." He cited the corporation income tax, chain store taxes, and the like.

But concentration of power, the memorandum said, is dangerous "not because of any inherent viciousness in those who happen to be in power, but because mistakes of judgment, when they are made, are on such an enormous scale." That viewpoint applies to "the growing concentration of power in the hands of government and labor organizations, as well as corporations," it said.

Question on Power.

"The giant corporation," the report said, "has raised a serious question as to whether too vast a power over jobs, wages, and the conditions under which men and women spend most of their waking hours has not been put into the hands of the few men who control vast companies."

The survey committee urged O'Mahoney to investigate big business thoroughly with a view to determining its actual efficiency, the quality of its products, and its effect on labor, consumers, and little business.

serve member banks in the week ended Feb. 8 increased four million dollars, but such loans by New York member banks declined five millions from the preceding week.

The Associated Press composite index of industrial activity declined to 88.9 per cent of the 1929-'30 average. A week earlier it was at 89.1 per cent and a year ago it was 70.4 per cent. The index, with its seasonally adjusted components, compared as follws:

Utility Situation Clarified.

There was widespread favorable reaction to the peaceful settlement of the six year feud between the Tennessee Valley authority and the Commonwealth and Southern corporation. A week ago yesterday an agreement was reached for the sale of Tennessee properties of the utility to the TVA for $78,600,000 plus other considerations, raising the figure to about $80,000,000. Over the following week-end financial and utility circles pondered the implications of the agreement, and by Monday considerable optimism had developed.

The fact that the TVA agreed to pay 80 millions in contrast with its 55 million dollar offer last spring involved more than a capitulation by the TVA on the question of price, utility men said.

Recognize Utility Stock Equity.

A more significant thing, said utility leaders, was that the TVA for the first time recognized "equity" or common stock value in utility bookkeeping, acknowledged investment in other than tangibles and recognized "going business" value, as well as the utilities' theory of deterioration. Private utilities favor a lower allowance for deterioration than does the government.

Numerous utility executives, including Wendell L. Willkie, president of Commonwealth and Southern, and Floyd B. Odlum, head of Atlas corporation, acclaimed the TVA "peace" as a good omen. They said that if the government continues to show a friendlier attitude, the utilities probably will spend a billion dollars a year for the next three or four years on improvements and expansion. A billion a year would be more than twice the 1938 outlay.

Insurance Growth Emphasized.

The monopoly investigating committee's hearings in Washington, D. C., on the insurance business brought out testimony which emphasized the vast size and rapid growth of insurance company assets. It was shown that legal reserve life insurance companies in the United States have assets totaling $27,750,000,000, compared with $2,924,253,848 in 1906.

A favorable 1938 report was issued by Marshall Field & Co. It showed that all divisions of the company—merchandising, manufacturing, and real estate—operated at a combined net profit of $3,492,238. In 1937 losses in some lines of the company's activity more than ate up the retail store's profits, resulting a consolidated loss of $1,654,451.

The Commonwealth Edison company reported an increase in 1938 earnings, in part reflecting the benefits of a huge refinancing program carried out under the direction of James Simpson, company chairman.

The meat slaughtering industry is not faring so well. The total slaughter in government inspected packing plants in January was 6,675,151 head, compared with 7,002,903 in January, 1938, and a ten year average for January of 6,838,000 head.

COUNCIL RACE FIELD IS NARROWED

3 CENTS SAVES ONE CHINAMAN FROM STARVING

Church Collections Today Vital.

BY THE REV. JOHN EVANS.

Pennies in the collection plates of many Protestant churches throughout Chicago will have important meanings today. Common as pennies are in church collections, yet just three of them in the right church plate today means that one refugee Chinese won't starve to death tomorrow.

The Rev. T. C. Hume.

What is more, if Chicago churchmen can reach their aim of raising $100,000 for China relief it will mean that 100,000 fewer Chinese will starve to death during the next thirty days. At least that is the information furnished to more than a thousand pastors by the Rev. Theodore C. Hume of New England Congregational church, chairman of the Chicago China relief committee.

Spent Years in China.

Although Dr. Hume was born in India, he spent nearly all of his growing years in China where his father, Dr. Edward H. Hume, developed the noted university, Yale-in-China, as its first president.

The humane penny-a-meal drive, however, is national in scope. Under the guidance of the Foreign Missions conference representing forty denominations, in coöperation with the nationally organized China Famine relief, American churchmen will seek to stave off starvation for at least a million Chinese.

Other officers of the Chicago committee are Clifford W. Barnes, president of the Sunday Evening club, honorary chairman; Mrs. C. Colton Daughaday, Dean Charles W. Gilkey, the Rev. Emory Luccock, and Mrs. George R. Wilson, all vice chairmen; C. R. Sellers, secretary, and Frank McNair, treasurer.

Plan Luncheon Friday.

Prominent businessmen and religious leaders of international groups will meet for a luncheon at the Union League club on Friday at which the guest speakers will be Mr. and Mrs. Harper Sibley. Mr. Sibley is the present national chairman of the Church committee for China relief and was formerly president of the United States Association of Commerce.

About four hundred local churches have organized to do their share in raising the Chicago quota and the suburbs of Evanston, Oak Park, La Grange, and Winnetka have each set up executive committees. The Chicago executive committee includes Prof. Arthur H. Compton, J. B. Forbes, W. A. Rowell, the Rev. Norris L. Tibbetts, pastor of Hyde Park Baptist church, the Rev. Ralph Wakefield, president designate of the Chicago Church federation, and the Rev. Edward S. White, rector of the Episcopal Church of the Redeemer.

Members of Committees.

Denominational committees follow: Congregational: Mrs. Wilfred A. Rowell, Hinsdale; Mrs. Albert W. Palmer, United Church of Hyde Park; Paul Reynolds, Congregational Educational society.

OUR TOWN

SALUTE Robert S. Saunders, 7010 Stony Island avenue, an Our Towner of distinction. Selected as the outstanding Citizens Military Training Camp's trainee in the 6th corps area in 1938, he will be the guest of the Civilian Military Education Fund in Washington Thursday, Friday, and Saturday to receive the Gen. John J. Pershing medal. He is one of the nine young men chosen from more than 30,000 trainees in the corps areas of the United States who will be honored. In addition, he was notified recently of his appointment as a second lieutenant in the infantry reserve. After graduation from Calumet High school in 1935 as lieutenant colonel of the R. O. T. C. unit, he completed his preparatory military training last August in the C. M. T. C. at Fort Sheridan where he was awarded the Daughters of the American Revolution saber "for distinguished military training" as well as the Pershing nomination.

Robert S. Saunders.

M. B. Auerbach, formerly scoutmaster of troop 585, has been appointed assistant district commissioner of the Shoreland community. He has served seventeen years in scouting.

ELECTED a life member of St. Clement's Episcopal church, Harvey, Mrs. Mary Chute is believed to be the first person so honored in the history of the Chicago diocese. After being number one pledge for many years, Mrs. Chute found that she was unable to assume an obligation this year. Members of the congregation conferred with the Rev. A. M. McLaughlin immediately upon learning of her situation. The following resolution was the result: "Whereas, Mrs. Mary Chute has been a loyal member of St. Clement's Episcopal church in Harvey for forty years, and during all this period has given freely of her time and services in the furtherance of the work of God, and of the church. Now, therefore, be it resolved by the finance committee of St. Clement's Episcopal church of Harvey, that Mrs. Mary Chute be, and hereby is, elected a life member of said church and as such, be relieved of the payment of any and all future dues and assessments."

JEAN-CARLETON HATFIELD, 10631 Seeley avenue, was one of the nine pledges recently initiated into Theta Sigma Phi, national honorary and professional journalism sorority, at Northwestern university. Candidates are accepted by vote of the members upon consideration of a 1,500 word manuscript and of scholastic average which must be at least B. A graduate student in the Medill school of journalism, Miss Hatfield is a member of Delta Gamma social sorority.

EXECUTIVE ability and popularity run in the Pohlzon family, 6808 Crandon avenue. Mr. and Mrs. Henry Pohlzon are the parents of three sons who have been graduated from the Hyde Park High school within six years as presidents of the senior class. Henry, the oldest, was president of the February, 1934, group; Charles headed the February, 1937, class, and Joseph, one of the outstanding graduates interviewed by THE TRIBUNE last month, led the February, 1939, representatives.

The spotlight swings on south side artists this week. William Latz, son of Mr. and Mrs. Frank Latz, 2253 West 111th street, was awarded the Harold Gray prize recently for the best portrait of a child in the Hoosier salon. The exhibition is in the Marshall Field galleries. Mr. Latz studied in the day school at the Frederic Mizen Academy of Art for two years and has continued his training in the evening school since beginning to work.

The Ridge Art association will open an exhibit of the work of its members Wednesday in the club woman's bureau at Mandel Brothers. This will be the first loop display of the organization and will continue throughout the month. It consists of oils, water colors, sculptures, and wood carvings. Members whose work will be in the showing include Ethel Crouch Brown, 2111 West 109th street; Claude and Leslie Buck, 14600 South Spaulding avenue, Midlothian; Mary Brubaker, 6942 Stewart avenue; William Eppens, 6210 Ingleside avenue; Tunis Ponsen, 1031 East 45th street; Derk Smit, 10510 South Bell avenue, and Florence White Williams, 4533 Greenwood avenue.

Add to the list of honor for collegiate achievements the names of Merton Carlson, 7345 South Park avenue, and Robert Conrads, 2219 East 70th street, appointed to the debate squad at Principia college, Elsah, Ill., where they are juniors. The Principia debaters are scheduled for ten intercollegiate contests, including the Illinois and Missouri state tournaments. The subject chosen for this year is "Resolved, that the United States should cease to use public funds [including credit] for the purpose of stimulating business."

Silver is the motif for two Our Town couples. A group of friends from Roseland surprised Mr. and Mrs. Theodore Rack, formerly of 11529 Harvard avenue, at their place of business in Cicero last week to help them celebrate their twenty-fifth wedding anniversary. Mr. and Mrs. Joseph J. Grish, 6515 South Rockwell street, will mark their twenty-fifth anniversary by attending high mass Wednesday in the Nativity church, 68th street and Washtenaw avenue. A reception for members of the family and friends will be held that evening in the Plaisance hotel, 60th street and Stony Island avenue.

BY RITA FITZPATRICK.

Romance is a dressup affair these days. Our modern Valentine day is evidence. Greeting cards for the occasion grow larger each season. Boxes of candy are crusted with flamboyant hearts. Florists have turned demonstrativeness into dollars, and merchants have made it plain that not only the Greeks should come bearing gifts.

Sixty-five years ago only the wealthy people had time to be delicately sentimental. When a workingman courted a maid, he brought only the honest declaration of his affection and the prospect of spending a life working hard for a living. There was no folderol about romance. Mr. and Mrs. Gregory May, 5517 Wood street, pioneer settlers of Gage Park, who just recently celebrated their 65th wedding anniversary, know this to be true.

Work Is Their Life.

"Gregory never sent me a valentine in his life nor I him," says sprightly Mrs. May who at 87 has the smile of 16. "We didn't have time. We were working people."

In this simple statement Mrs. May packs a story of happiness out of hardship that would make a modern romance look anemic. Plain German folk, the Mays came to America separately around the time of the Chicago fire. Mrs. May, who at that time was Marguerite Pauly, had worked for her daily bread from the age of six and had no illusions that the streets of Chicago were paved with gold. Mr. May was a farm hand, who expected no quarter of leisure.

His first job was as hired man on Gage farm, 56th street and Western avenue, after which Gage Park was named. He remembers reading the newspaper in his bedroom by the light of the Chicago fire. Plump, redcheeked Marguerite was only in Chicago one week when she started work as a maid of all work in a boarding house, working from 5 o'clock in the morning to 10 o'clock at night.

Has Practical Side.

They were introduced by Marguerite's brother and, chuckles Mrs. May, "Gregory was a straightforward fellow who proposed to me right away. I expected to return to Germany, so put him off for awhile. But I accepted no invitations from other young men. When I did decide to marry Gregory, I wouldn't even let him buy me a ring, I don't believe in sentimentalism."

For the first decade of their married life Mr. May held the position of head gardener for the Transit house at the stockyards and then the urge to own the produce which he coaxed from the land prompted him to buy ten acres at 55th street and Wood avenue. They built a shanty of three rooms for themselves, their five children and Mr. May's father. The ten acres were given over to truck farming. Drinking water had to be hauled from the nearest house at Damen avenue and water for wash-

MISS JOAN DUNCAN.
[Root Studio.]

Taking a tip from Earl Carroll's slogan, "Through these portals pass the most beautiful girls in the world," organizations on the southwest side will sell their social and dramatic events this week with the lovliest of local girls as their representatives. Miss Jane Waldron, a daughter of Mr. and Mrs. Carl A. Waldron, 10531 Longwood drive, will highlight the St. Barnabas' Woman's club card party and dance Saturday evening in the Congress hotel by peddling flowers with a smile. She is a sophomore at Rosary college.

Enacting the leading feminine rôle of Karen Andre in the drama, "Night of January 16," Mrs. Joseph Hatch, 9757 Damen avenue, will call attention to the Beverly Theater Guild Friday and Saturday evenings in Ridge park fieldhouse, 96th street and Longwood drive. Robert S. Blakeslee is the director of the guild.

67 Survive and Will Go On Ballot.

BY WILLIAM STRAND.

Aldermanic battles in the eleven southwest side wards last week took on definite form for the Feb. 28 election. In last minute moves the field of candidates, which numbered ninety-one at the start of the campaign, was narrowed to sixty-seven who are assured of places on the ballots.

Nineteen persons voluntarily withdrew before Wednesday evening's deadline and the board of election commissioners forced five others out of the race when it sustained objections to their nominating petitions.

But a survey of the campaign fronts showed few changes in the general lines which were drawn several weeks ago. None of those who quit or were ruled out bore the endorsement of any of the principal ward organizations.

Factional War Increases.

The bitterness of the Kelly-Courtney strife in the Democratic ranks was increased during the week as the insurgent faction unloosed new attacks upon the administration's record. Regular Democratic aspirants met each new assault with facts and figures designed to refute opponents' arguments. Meanwhile the other candidates, including several strong Republicans, directed their fire about equally at both sides of the Democratic household.

After five withdrawals, only six candidates remained in the running in the 14th ward. Ald. James J. McDermott and Ex-Ald. William R. O'Toole were fighting grimly for an edge which might mean victory. The alderman's organization is one of the main cogs in the Kelly-Nash machine and O'Toole has been commissioned by Courtney to smash it if he can.

At the city council meeting on Monday, O'Toole felt the displeasure of the administration for his advance in the campaign on the side of the state's attorney. He was removed from a $4,300 a year job as member of the examining board for stationary engineers which he had held for six years.

Wants Civic Improvements.

Edward E. Shields, 28 years old, who has conducted a news stand at 47th and Paulina streets for the last 18 years, is carrying into the campaign his fight for civic improvements and recreation centers to aid underprivileged boys. Instead of spending enormous sums of money to send boys to reform schools, he contends, the city should provide places where juveniles can pass their spare time in healthful and educational surroundings.

Anthony Wojciechowski loomed as a dangerous opponent for the other candidates after John Ignaszak, Frank Novak, and Walter Rozewicki withdrew in his favor. There is a heavy Polish population in the ward from which Wojciechowski is expected to draw support. Walter Piotrowski, a receiving clerk in the stockyards now making his first bid in politics, is another of Ald. McDermott's opponents.

Moran Faces Fight.

Ald. Terence F. Moran [16th] has two dangerous opponents in his race for reëlection. One is former Assistant State's Attorney John Boyle and the other is former alderman, Scott M. Hogan, regular G. O. P. candidate supporting Dwight H. Green in the mayoral contest.

Hogan has a wealth of political experience and was in public office continuously from 1917 to 1931. From 1917 to 1919 he was an assistant corporation counsel, then served in the council until 1923. He was an assistant state's attorney from 1923 until 1927 after which he was the city fire attorney for four years.

With the prospect of a close fight between Moran, the Kelly-Nash organization candidate, and Boyle, who is supported by Courtney, experts concede Hogan a 50-50 chance for victory. It is a strong one and much depends upon the results of the battle between the two Democrats.

Points to His Record.

Ald. Moran, a council veteran, is chairman of the committee on local industries, streets, and alleys. He also is a member of the committees on finance, local transportation, utilities, license, and health. His record, he says, shows improvements in streets and alleys, construction of new playgrounds and extension of the street lighting system.

Boyle points to his efforts for law enforcement, established while he was an assistant state's attorney. His program provides for the reduction of real estate taxes, extension of the Englewood Elevated lines, additional playgrounds for children and supervised recreation for young people.

He also advocates opening Union avenue from 61st to 63d street at no added cost to property owners, improvement of local transportation facilities, and the maintenance of three ward offices instead of the usual one. He has the support of several nonpartisan civic organizations of which there are many in the ward.

Follow Party Lines.

Party lines are being followed closely in the 17th ward contest, which promises to be one of the liveliest in the city. Ald. William T. Murphy, completing his first term in the council, is opposed by two strong candidates—Assistant State's Attorney John M. Long, who established a record as head of the city's new sex offense bureau, and Attorney Albert E. Grammer.

Ald. Murphy is the regular Democratic candidate, Attorney Long is the Courtney standard bearer, and Grammer has behind him a powerful consolidation of G. O. P. groups.

Ald. Murphy is a civil engineer and an attorney. He was graduated from Loyola university and formerly was right-of-way attorney for the county highway department. Attorney Long is a graduate of St. Rita High school and Columbia college, Dubuque, Ia., where he distinguished himself in athletics. Following his graduation from Kent College of Law in 1927 he became associated with the late Ald. Frank J. Corr, Ald. Murphy's predecessor in the council.

While directing the work of the sex bureau he obtained convictions against 193 defendants in sex offense cases. He is strongly in favor of better street lighting as a deterent to sex crimes. His platform also calls for "taking politics out of the schools system."

Native of Illinois.

Attorney Grammer is a member of a pioneer Illinois family. He was born in 1892 near Jonesboro, scene of one of the famous Lincoln-Douglas debates. His maternal great-grandparents settled in that section at about the time Illinois was admitted to statehood. One of his paternal ancestors was a member of the first Illinois territorial legislature.

He worked his way through college and then taught school while studying law. The present campaign is his first bid for public office. His platform calls for reducing taxes by lowering governmental expenses and eliminating governmental services which duplicate themselves.

The other candidates are Paul A. Krause, a roofing contractor, who favors the city manager plan for Chicago, and Richard H. Trehey, a nonpartisan contender.

Saw Service in War.

In the 19th ward Roland H. Bradley, regular G. O. P. candidate, is threatening the rule of Ald. John J. Duffy, the Kelly-Nash incumbent. Bradley has been a resident of the south side since 1907 and was graduated from Morgan Park High school. From the time he was 11 until he was 18 he augmented his family's income with a magazine agency.

When the United States entered the world war he enlisted in the navy and saw service aboard the destroyer U. S. S. Shaw, which was rammed and sank off Southhampton, England, in 1918 with thirteen hands lost. Bradley was injured and spent several months in the hospital. Then he was reassigned to another destroyer on which he served throughout the rest of the conflict.

Returning to America he went into the real estate business and is now employed by the Northern Trust company. He was defeated in 1936 in the race for state representative from the 11th senatorial district. His platform calls for reorganization of the city departments to enable financial experts to make income meet expenses.

Last week Bradley received the endorsement of the 19th Ward Captains' club, a strong political organization headed by Charles Greenfield, which has always acted independently of the other organizations.

Others in the Race.

Ex-Ald. O. E. Northrup's withdrawal from the race, observers said, greatly enhanced Bradley's chances. However, there are several other strong candidates beside Ald. Duffy.

Harry Carlson, entered in the contest by a young G. O. P. organization, is campaigning on a platform of tax reduction. His attacks on the present administration are based on the lack of information on city finances available to the citizens.

Also waging an active campaign is Clemence H. Collier, a real estate credit man, who has the support of civic groups and various nonpartisan organizations. Reduced expenditures, improved transportation, and elimination of politics from civil service are some of the points in his program.

SHERMAN STATE BANK EXPECTED TO PAY $11,500

Only Refund Predicted for Current Quarter.

The Sherman State bank may soon distribute another $11,500 among its 1,600 depositors, State Auditor Edward J. Barrett indicated last week. He made this prediction as he released statements showing the condition of twelve closed state banks on the southwest side. The Sherman bank has repaid $47,218, or 22½ per cent of its debt, to depositors since it suspended on April 23, 1932.

Three banks in the new group made refunds during the December quarter, Mr. Barrett's figures show. One was the West Highland State bank, which divided another $41,500 among its 6,000 depositors. The Stockmen's Trust and Savings bank depositors got another $31,000. The Ridge State bank distributed $9,200 to its 2,000 depositors. In each case the repayment represented 5 per cent of the total debt.

RIDGE STATE BANK — Total receipts, $161,006. Paid on prior claims, $53,827. Paid depositors, $37,008, or 20 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $2,798; legal, $8,718; clerical, $23,304; interest, $187; advanced to protect assets, $24,331, with $15,037 refunded. Cash, $3,503. There are indications that perhaps another 5 per cent will be distributed before the receivership is terminated.

ROSELAND STATE SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $1,543,298. Paid on prior claims, $144,202. Paid depositors, $885,246, or 55 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $12,475; legal, $41,830; clerical, $89,804; interest, $258; advanced to protect assets, $312,147, with $291,346 refunded. Cash, $57,331. It still appears that there may be another 15 per cent for the general creditors.

SHERMAN STATE BANK—Total receipts, $219,203. Paid on prior claims, $58,039. Paid depositors, $47,218, or 22½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $3,955; legal, $9,644; clerical, $23,091; interest, $1,293; advanced to protect assets, $46,047, with $26,357 refunded. Cash, $13,265. It still appears that the payout eventually will total about 35 per cent.

SOUTH SHORE STATE BANK—Total receipts, $531,544. Paid on prior claims, $196,961. Paid depositors, $178,680, or 40 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,095; legal, $17,867; clerical, $48,798; interest, $5,302; advanced to protect assets, $60,222, with $44,699 refunded. Cash, $19,615. It is believed that the payout may reach 50 per cent before the receivership is lifted.

SOUTHWEST TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $3,057,100. Paid on prior claims, $1,122,286. Paid depositors, $1,290,805, or 80 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $9,289; legal, $101,819; clerical, $102,567; interest, $4,508; advanced to protect assets, $404,299, with $388,204 refunded. Cash, $31,524. Prediction is made that another 5 or 10 per cent may be repaid.

STATE BANK OF BEVERLY HILLS—Total receipts, $781,575. Paid on prior claims, $206,182. Paid depositors, $319,268, or 55 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $7,362; legal, $39,487; clerical, $54,386; interest, $1,479; advanced to protect assets, $116,134, with $104,678 refunded. Cash, $18,381. The next 5 per cent or so may be the final distribution.

STOCKMEN'S TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $992,425. Paid on prior claims, $446,290. Paid depositors, $248,097, or 40 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $4,957; legal, $42,615; clerical, $49,074; interest, $3,781; advanced to protect assets, $164,946, with $177,043 refunded. Cash, $17,659. There may be another 5 per cent disbursement before the affairs of this bank are wound up.

UNIVERSAL STATE BANK — Total receipts, $750,030. Paid on prior claims, $240,995. Paid depositors, $241,878, or 37½ per cent. Costs: Receivers, $5,597; legal, $27,551; clerical, $45,173; interest, $4,494; advanced to protect assets, $118,280, with $93,407 refunded. Cash, $29,897. Estimates indicate that there may be another 8 to 10 per cent.

WEST ENGLEWOOD TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $2,479,425. Paid on prior claims, $510,708. Paid depositors, nothing. Costs: Receivers, $27,076; legal, $109,353; clerical, $159,200; interest, $5,769; advanced to protect assets, $1,208,797, with $868,555 refunded. Cash, $458,518. Only a small additional return is anticipated.

WEST HIGHLAND STATE BANK—Total receipts, $603,600. Paid on prior claims, $165,396. Paid depositors, $82,998, or 10 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $8,896; legal, $37,051; clerical, $54,801; interest, $1,320; advanced to protect assets, $124,273, with $114,957 refunded. Cash, $128,861. It appears that there is little if anything left for the depositors.

WEST LAWN TRUST AND SAVINGS BANK—Total receipts, $153,044. Paid on prior claims, $40,249. Paid depositors, $44,278, or 20 per cent. Costs. Receivers, $4,014; legal, $8,313; clerical, $23,613; interest, $150; advanced to protect assets, $22,483, with $15,300 refunded. Cash, $3,843. The present payout may eventually rise to 30 per cent.

WIERSEMA STATE BANK—Total receipts, $838,307. Paid on prior claims, $181,397. Paid depositors, $303,607, or 35 per cent. Costs: Receivers, $7,200; legal, $56,298; clerical, $75,012; interest, $1,748; advanced to protect assets, $185,736, with $174,007 refunded. Cash, $27,304. Estimates suggest another 5 to 8 per cent before the receivership ends.

Pioneers of Gage Park

Mr. and Mrs. Gregory May, 5517 Wood street, recently celebrated their sixty-fifth wedding anniversary with a dinner in the home of their daughter, Mrs. John Fashingbauer, 5440 Hermitage avenue. The Mays are among the first settlers of Gage Park, having farmed a ten acre truck garden on the prairies fifty-five years ago. They have lived at their present address for forty-four years and are the parents of three daughters and three sons. There are seventeen grandchildren and three great-grandchildren.

During the first year of farming, Mr. May was struck by a train while driving his vegetables to market. Their only horses were killed and he was brought home near death. His wife, expecting her sixth child, ministered to him as best she could. Ten days later, when the baby was born, Mr. May rose from his bed despite his injuries and walked to 44th street and Union avenue for the doctor.

Triumph Over Misfortune.

The same year he was stricken with erysipelas, and the next year with cholera. Mrs. May worked in the truck garden, caring for the hotbeds even in winter, sometimes with the snow touching her knees. She spun wool, knitted and sewed all garments, cooked for nine people, baked six loaves of bread daily, and sixteen coffee cakes over week-ends for guests, taught her children and found time in spring to plant a flower garden.

When subdividers braved the prairies, the Mays built their present two story frame building on their former hayfield. With typical pioneer initiative, Mr. May carved a new career in carpentry.

Today, with their six children all settled in separate homes, the Mays still maintain a hospitable German household. Mrs. May cooks a big meal every noon "just so she won't get lazy," and her husband, who will be 90 years old in May, does the shopping for her. "We don't know how to stop working," laughs Mrs. May, "except now and then for a little pinochle of an evening."

SERVING CHICAGO Chicago Tribune FOR 91 YEARS

REGENCY HOUSE HAS OLD BARN IN ITS FAMILY TREE

Sturdy Structure Reborn as Modern Home.

BY LOUISE BARGELT.

It seems increasingly simple for a house to wipe out the years, whatever they have been, to rid itself entirely of any hampering past, and under skilful architectural direction, begin life gloriously anew.

The recently modernized home of Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Huntress, 1011 East 50th street, had quite a past to live down.

It had started life as a great old barn, with haylofts and harnesses, watering troughs and other trappings from our horse and carriage era. Years later it had been turned into a garage, for greater usefulness.

Then, last year, the task of converting the large, squarish brick structure, with walls 13 inches thick, into an all-modern ten room house in the regency manner, was given to an architect, H. Ring Clauson, Inc.

Past Is Forgotten.

I saw the house one wintry afternoon, its walls of whitewashed brick softened by a haze of lightly falling snow, and it was hard to imagine that the home had ever had a "past" of any sort.

The entrance had been moved and placed at the side and there was a faint peal of distant chimes as one pressed the bell.

The interior is spacious, the rooms high ceilinged. The center hallway runs the length of the house and at the right of the hall is a wide stairway, with Chippendale rail, leading to the second floor.

Fireplace In Library.

There is generous provision for outdoor living. French doors to a future terrace open from this room, and also from a smal library adjoining. In this informal library the walls are of knotty pine, stained dark, and built in bookcases and cupboards on each side of a natural burning fireplace.

French doors also lead to outside terraces from the large dining room at the right of entrance hall.

The kitchen is generous in size, with ventilator over dishwasher sink, built in cabinets, wood counter tops, red accessories, and a gray and black rubber tile floor.

Adjacent to this kitchen is a butler's pantry and a utility closet beyond that. There is a wealth of closet space throughout this home.

The heater room is ultra modern indeed! The house has no basement, and the hot water boiler is placed in a small room on the first floor. It is stoker fired, the stoker and coal room walled completely from the heater room, since the boiler is fed by a worm through the base of the wall. Incidentally, the stoker is noiseless. No sound when it starts or stops.

Has Five Bedrooms.

A small powder room opens from the stair landing. A charming little spot with Persian brown fixtures, an attractive small "bottle glass" window, and gray papered walls, with a pattern of white flowers and green foliage.

On the second floor there are five bedrooms.

The master bedroom has a ten foot high ceiling, French windows along one entire wall, white woodwork and Wedgewood blue walls. There is a dressing room which connects with this bedroom and a bath beyond, its shower wall lined with rich cadet blue, and ivory fixtures. On each side of the dressing table there are built in drawers and shelves and racks for shoes, hats, and accessories. Also two closets in this room and a third larger closet off the master bedroom.

There are four other bedrooms, one of which will eventually be a studio. The nursery has walls of butter yellow paper and French gray woodwork. It also has a radio nurse, connecting with master bedroom, so that Mrs. Huntress can hear every sound from the baby's room, even though there is quite a distance between them.

Front Is Redesigned.

The entire front of the house exterior was redesigned. The floors, windows, and stairways are all new. There was no inside stairway to second floor either in original barn or garage. An outside stairway led to the second floor, where there was a section reserved for servants' quarters.

While the exterior walls were left intact, and some of the inside partitions kept, many more were torn out.

Barn to Garage to House

Once upon a time this home was a great barn, then it became a garage. Now it is an all-modern ten room home in the regency manner at 1011 East 50th street. Architect, H. Ring Clauson, Inc., 540 North Michigan avenue. Owners, Mr. and Mrs. Douglas Huntress.

This Week in the Garden

Monday, Feb. 13.

The tender annuals requiring a long time to develop into flower should be started early in the house, hotbed, or conservatory. The chief difficulty in attempting to grow seedlings is the lack of light indoors, the excessive heat, dry atmosphere, and the after care of the young plants. Frequently what is known as "damping-off" kills the plants. Damping-off is fungus disease that is caused by excessive moisture and too close planting. A number of chemicals are on the market that are said to stop such attacks. Directions for their use are on the package. There also are root stimulating chemicals that are worth a trial.

Tuesday, Feb. 14.

The value of a hotbed and coldframe should not be overlooked. A sunny, protected back yard is just the spot for a frame and when the season advances it can be stored. Some firms offer knocked down outfits that are easily handled. Window panes can be used, but they usually are small or likely to break when moved. The standard size of a sash is 3 by 6 feet. One sash can be used or a string of ten or more as wanted. Have you hung out any suet or other food for the birds? Examine the lilacs and other shrubs for scale. If any are noticed begin spraying with any recommended material. The yellow calla lily is a fine plant for in the house. Bulbs can be procured now. Plant in a good fibrous soil in a 5 to 6 inch pot and keep fairly cool until roots are well formed; then give plenty of water, heat, and light.

Wednesday, Feb. 15.

Flowering pot plants that come from the florists never should be allowed to suffer from lack of water. The ball of roots in the pot should be thoroughly watered. Some plants should not be watered on the leaves or discoloration or disease will result. Many house plants seem to grow smaller and smaller instead of developing into heavy, strong plants with luxuriant foliage. This is sometimes caused by a lack of food.

Thursday, Feb. 16.

The garden should not be overdone. The general plan should fit the place, be of proper proportion, and not have too many trees. The plant material should consist of dependable kinds, those that are hardy and adapted to local conditions. Do not be misled by startling pictures that appear in catalogs, but read the descriptive matter and learn something about the material before ordering.

Friday, Feb. 17.

The young growths that appear on the pandanus can be removed and used as cuttings. Strong cuttings will root easily in water. How about growing an alligator pear seed in a glass of water? Remove the pulp from the fruit or seed, take three toothpicks, insert in the bottom of the seed in triangular fashion so that it stands evenly, and place in the glass. Fill about three-fourths with water and watch results. In two or three weeks the top will split and a green, stringlike shoot will appear. It makes a unique way to grow a plant. Later, if desired, it can be potted in soil. Grapefruit seeds sown rather thickly give a pan of delightful green for a table.

Saturday, Feb. 18.

If a considerable number of plants are wanted for the outdoor garden, continue making cuttings from the young growth. Coleus is easily rooted and does well in city gardens. When making the cutting remove most of the leaves to reduce transpiration. Some begonias make fine plants for the garden, the semperflorens types especially. Cuttings should be made from the new growths that come from the base and not from the ends of the flowering stems. Cuttings also can be made from the choice geranium, but the stems should be sturdy, crisp, and just right if they are to root readily. Thin, soft stems are likely to decay. Do not overwater, but syringe the tops frequently. All kinds of bedding plants can be rooted from now on, but avoid using the weak stems.

WOMAN CASTING DIRECTOR HAS A PRIZE MEMORY

Head Holds Hundreds of Phone Numbers.

BY LARRY WOLTERS.

If Alice Carey ever finds time to talk, you should listen. Chances are she won't, though. She is too busy. She's the casting director for the advertising agency that produces more radio shows than any other hereabouts. She is a walking directory of who is who and what's what in Chicago radio circles.

Alice Carey.

Miss Carey averages a hundred telephone calls a day. She has a file of 600 of Chicago's radio actors, directors, sound effects experts and specialists.

Actually she doesn't often refer to that file. She carries around in her head most of their telephone numbers. More than that, she remembers the qualifications and talents of hundreds of them. She knows better than some of the individuals themselves their daily work schedules, recreation habits, where they are likely to be any hour of the day from Monday through Friday.

Knows Actors and Directors.

And she has a pretty good idea where they can be reached in emergencies over the week-end. She knows a lot about the idiosyncracies, the preferences, the tastes of the various directors of programs. Nobody knows better than she that one actor may be one director's meat, another's poison. So, skilfully, she routes the types one prefers to his programs; keeps those he abhors a long way off.

Miss Carey has no dramatic ambitions herself. She got rid of those a few years ago in high school dramatics. They had to rewrite Shakespeare for her. Cast as an Elizabethan heroine, she had an accident just before a certain play was to be presented. So she had to do her emoting from a chair.

"It was a terrific flop," she recalls. So she forgot about the drama personally and for a half dozen years has been getting her full measure vicariously. In her job there is no escape from radio acting. Naturally her friends are in radio.

And radio people, she says, live, eat, breathe, think and talk radio most of the time. Their work day may extend from morning until far into the night. They learn to find their fun, recreation and rest between broadcasts. It is not uncommon that actors start a day before noon in evening dress because they won't have time, what with rehersals, to make a change before an evening audience show broadcast.

"You're stymied, living the kind of life I lead," said Miss Carey, "if you ever go out with anyone outside of radio or who isn't interested in radio."

Think it Glamorous.

Fortunately most people think of radio as glamorous. Miss Carey finds many total strangers whom she encounters by telephone more than cooperative as soon as they learn she is trying to locate a radio performer.

She has many stories of persons busy in other more staid pursuits who have dropped the business at hand to help locate some bit player who was probably only needed to do a dozen lines in an electrical transcription episode that reaches the air a month later.

Miss Carey excuses the intrusions into other persons' lives because most of them enjoy even such scant brushes with broadcasting. And she has another argument, too. Contrary to popular belief most radio actors do not make a good living, she says. Of course there are many who do. There are many more who do not. To them it is always important that they are called when there is an opportunity to work.

Not Always Full Pay.

To offset the impression that actors get paid a day's work for reading a couple of lines, Miss Carey points out that the opposite is just as often true. A show may require the portrayal of 40 characters. The sponsor's budget may permit the use of only ten actors. Thus, a single actress may have to portray a baby, a child, an ingénue, a middle aged woman and two elderly dames, not to mention contributing a couple of dialect bits.

Miss Carey does an effective job mainly for two reasons. She knows the talents of many actors and their work schedules—she knows what in radio is called their "conflicts." She remembers, for example, that any actor working in Betty and Bob cannot work on the Little Orphan Annie program, Jack Armstrong, or the Tom Mix series. Because at the time these three programs are being rehersed or aired Betty and Bob is engaged every week day making electrical transcriptions for presentation on certain stations three weeks ahead

But she will remember perhaps a half dozen other programs in which supporting parts are open from time to time that are scheduled so that Betty and Bob actors can work on them.

To trace actors it is important to know many things about them besides their telephone numbers and addresses. It's useful to know their best friends, whether they have cars, whether they go for sports or indoor recreations, their favorite bars, and for the women, their hairdressers. Miss Carey has caught girls in the middle of getting an upsweep and summoned them to the microphone.

Mostly Well Educated.

Some skimmings off Miss Carey's experiences: Radio people are in general well educated. Most of them have been to college or had formal dramatic training. Many have come from the stage.

Many of them look forward to television. Few aspire to get into the movies but they hope and expect that television will find use for their experiences in audible radio.

Women are more generous in their relations to other feminine performers than the men are among themselves. There is more vanity among men, more jealousy. A man will seldom recommend another actor. Women will do so more often.

But if there is any group more annoying than the bright young people who insist on going to work at a couple of hundred a week without knowing a thing about the broadcasting business it is:

Women who call up saying that their friends tell them they ought to be on the radio, they have such nice voices.

It's because of them that Miss Carey has an unlisted telephone number.

Lovely little Bonnie Baker and Conductor Orrin Tucker, singer and director respectively with the orchestra now at the Palmer House in Chicago and heard over W-G-N and the Mutual network. Long heard on W-G-N and Mutual, music from the Empire room has just returned to the air.

SWING GROWING STAGNANT, DUKE ELLINGTON SAYS

Swing music is stagnant. So charges Duke Ellington, Negro composer and orchestra leader in Down Beat, swing magazine. As soon as artistry gains commercial standing—which has happened to swing, Ellington argues, inspiration dies a slow death.

"It is the repetition and monotony of the present day swing arrangements that bode ill for the future," Ellington asserted. "Nothing of importance, nothing new, nothing either original or creative has occurred in the swing field for two years."

But jaz itself is still developing, Ellington believes.

"It speaks in many manners," he said, "taking always original and authentic form. Still in the throes of development and formation, it has fought its way upward through the effortful struggles of sincere and irate musicians, has fought to escape maljudgment at the hands of its own 'causified critics,' those fanatical fans who have woven about it interminable toils."

'The Yearling' Scheduled on Book-a-Week Program

Margery Graham, who conducts the Book-a-Week program on W-G-N and the Mutual network from 3:45 to 4 o'clock Mondays through Fridays, tomorrow will begin readings from "The Yearling," by Marjorie Kinnan Rawlings.

Lombardo on WGN.

The music of Guy Lombardo and his Royal Canadians is being heard once again over W-G-N and the Mutual network from New York's Hotel Roosevelt. "The sweetest music this side of heaven" will be heard several times weekly.

W-G-N, MUTUAL HIT NEW HIGH IN DANCE MUSIC

Thirty Top Flight Bands Are on Schedule.

A new high has been reached by W-G-N and the Mutual network in broadcasting dance music, with thirty top flight bands either heard at the present time or about to go on the air.

From Chicago, originating in W-G-N, are several of America's better known orchestras. They include Orrin Tucker and his orchestra, on the air from the Palmer House, and Bob Crosby and his orchestra at the Blackhawk.

Also to Be Heard.

On Wednesday Ina Ray Hutton and her Melo-dears will begin an engagement at the Rose Bowl café and over W-G-N and Mutual. Others on the list are Dick Jurgens and his orchestra from the Aragon ballroom, Bill Carlsen and his band from the twin Trianon, Tiny Hill and his orchestra from Melody Mill, and José Manzanares and Lew Fidler and their orchestras from the Colony club.

Light concert music also is heard from W-G-N and Mutual. From the Yar comes Russian music, from Old Heidelberg is heard a variety of sprightly Continental and American selections, and Ralph Ginsburgh and his concert orchestra, for years one of the favorites, have come back to the kilocycles from the Palmer House.

On New York List.

A number of well known orchestras come to W-G-N and Mutual from New York. Among those who have recently joined the network are Guy Lombardo and his orchestra from the Hotel Roosevelt and Ben Bernie and his orchestra from the Hotel Pennsylvania. Other New York bands include Chick Webb and his orchestra from the Park Central hotel, Jimmy Dorsey and his orchestra from the Hotel New Yorker, Sammy Kaye and his orchestra from the Hotel Commodore, and Glen Gray and his Casaloma band from the Waldorf-Astoria. Often heard on W-G-N and Mutual are Larry Clinton and his orchestra and Mitchell Ayres and his orchestra, both from New York.

From the west coast W-G-N and Mutual pick up Shep Fields and his orchestra and Skinnay Ennis and his orchestra. From Pittsburgh come Bernie Cummins and his orchestra and Al Fremont and his band.

George Olsen and his orchestra are heard from Houston, Tex. Both Clyde Lucas and Griff Williams and their bands will soon broadcast from St. Louis. George Hamilton and his orchestra are heard from Cleveland.

HAROLD STOKES BOWS TO CUBA IN 'SUNDAY DATE'

Harold Stokes will dedicate his "Your Sunday Date" program to Cuba. He will feature the singing of Edna O'Dell, the chorus, and Comedians Tom, Dick, and Harry, at 8 o'clock this evening on W-G-N.

Miss O'Dell and the chorus will sing "Week-end of a Private Secretary." Tom, Dick, and Harry, in addition to their regular comedy skits, will sing the novelty, "When Yuba Played the Tuba!" and "La Bomba."

Other numbers will be "Begin the Beguine," "Sidewalks of Cuba," and "Cuban Love Song."

"On a Sunday Afternoon," directed by Stokes, at 2 p. m. on W-G-N, will present Lawrence Salerno, the Four Shades of Blue, and the Three Graces in a half hour program of the latest songs.

"Deep Purple," a piece which Stokes helped boost to popularity through use as his theme song, will be presented in special arrangement by the orchestra.

Salerno will sing "I Promise You" and will join the Graces to do "Thanks for Everything." The Four Shades of Blue will sing "Mutiny in the Nursery," "Jeepers Creepers," and "Ya Got Me." Other numbers will include "I Go for That," "Promenade," and "Between a Kiss and a Sigh."

Handicap at Hialeah Park Is to Be Carried by W-G-N

A description of the running of the George Washington handicap will be heard over W-G-N and the coast to coast Mutual network on Feb. 22, from 3 to 3:15 o'clock, from Miami's Hialeah park. On Feb. 25, from 3 to 3:30 o'clock, the running of the Flamingo Stakes race will be broadcast. The closing broadcast from Hialeah will be on March 4, when the Widener Challenge cup, $50,000 added event, is reported.

STYLES IN DOGS TO BE DISCUSSED BY BOB BECKER

Fashions in dogs change as definitly as fashions in clothes, headgear or motorcars, according to Bob Becker, famous authority, who will discuss this matter in his "Chats About Dogs" this afternoon at 1:45 o'clock over W-G-N.

Back in the gay nineties the pug was the smart breed to own, but pampering, soft cushions, ribbon bows and too many chocolates proved its undoing. Now, more than forty years later, pugs are staging a comeback.

Immediately after the world war the German shepherd, or so-called police dog, came into vogue through tales from overseas of its great intelligence, stamina and loyalty. Motion pictures starring "Rin Tin Tin" did much to advertise the breed, and and for several years every one had to own one of these animals.

Cycles in which the Airedale and the Boston terrier were tops followed. Just now the silky-coated Cocker spaniel is in the limelight. What will be the popular breed tomorrow? Becker confesses that he has no idea which way the public's fancy will turn.

BARBIROLLI RETURNS AS CONDUCTOR FOR PHILHARMONIC TODAY

John Barbirolli, returned from a vacation, will resume his Sunday broadcast series today as conductor of the New York Philharmonic Symphony orchestra with Walter Gieseking as soloist in the Rachmaninoff Piano Concerto No. 3. The concerts are carried over WBBM-CBS at 2 p. m. Deems Taylor is intermission commentator.

The program:

Roman Carnival Overture..............Berlioz
Concerto for Piano and Orchestra No. 3 in D minor, Opus 30...Rachmaninoff
Walter Gieseking.
Symphony No. 3 ["Eroica"] in E flat major, Opus 55................Beethoven

This is to be Gieseking's second appearance in two seasons in consecutive works by the same composer.

MELODY PAGEANT MOVED UP FOR LINCOLN DINNER

Time Tomorrow Night Is 8:45 o'Clock.

Henry Weber's Pageant of Melody, usually heard at 9:30 p. m. on Monday, will be moved up to 8:45 o'clock tomorrow on W-G-N and the Mutual network, to make room for a special broadcast of the National Republican Lincoln day dinner.

Attilio Baggiore, tenor, will be featured as soloist of the pageant. He will sing two solo numbers, "A Toi," by Henri Bemberg, and Meyerbeer's "O, Paradiso," and will join the octet to do "Kashmiri Song" by Amy Woodford Finden. The octet will sing Tschaikowsky's "Dance Arabe," "Old Creole Days," and "Mardi Gras," from Ferde Grofe's Mississippi suite.

Other numbers, to be played by the orchestra, will include waltzes from "The Bat," by Johann Strauss, Brahms' "Hungarian Dance No. 7," and the "Andante," from Tschaikowsky's Fifth Symphony.

Mr. Weber's Concert revue will feature themes from Offenbach's "Tales of Hoffman," with the singing of Kathryn Witwer, Margery Mayer, William Miller and Mark Love, from 8:45 to 9:30 p. m., Thursday. Miller will sing "Macushla," by Chauncey Olcott, and Miss Witwer will sing "Into the Light," by Frank La Forge.

Other numbers will include "Tambourine," "Musette," and "Ballet Scene," from Handel's opera, "Alcina"; "Prayer" and "Temple Dance," by Edvard Grieg, and "Carnival," from Leoncavallo's "Pagliacci."

Mutual's January Billings Show an Increase of 16.7%

Total billings of the Mutual Broadcasting System for January, 1939, were $315,078, it was announced yesterday. This represents an increase of 16.7 per cent over January, 1938, when billings totaled $269,894.

Frances Kennedy to Sing as Music Counter Guest

Frances Kennedy, American songstress who held the theatrical and musical comedy spotlight for more than a third of a century, will be a guest on Harold Stokes' Music Counter on W-G-N and the Mutual network, Wednesday. The program will be broadcast from 9:30 to 10:15 p. m. from the audience-studio. Miss Kennedy will sing one of the songs she made famous, "Peggy O'Neill." With her will be a cast including Florence Brower, Babette Gordon, Ken Christy, Howard Hoffman, and Joseph Johnson.

7 Stomach Ailments Call For Pepsin In Your Laxative!

When constipation brings on acid indigestion, bloating, dizzy spells, gas, coated tongue, sour taste, and bad breath, your stomach is probably loaded up with certain undigested food and your bowels don't move. So you need both Pepsin to break-up fast that undigested food in your stomach, and Laxative Senna to pull the trigger on those lazy bowels. So be sure your laxative contains Pepsin. That means Dr. Caldwell's famous medicine, because its Pepsin helps you gain that wonderful stomach-relief, while the Laxative Senna moves your bowels. Tests prove how quickly each dose of Syrup Pepsin fortifies your stomach with power to dissolve those undigested proteins which may linger in your stomach, to cause gas, belching, acid condition, nausea and headache. At the same time it wakes-up lazy nerves and muscles in your bowels to relieve your constipation. See how much better you feel by taking the laxative that also puts Pepsin to work relieving that stomach discomfort, too. Guaranteed to contain no Cathartic Salts, does not cause distress. Even finicky children love to taste this family laxative. For a free 60¢ bottle of Dr. Caldwell's Syrup Pepsin combined with Laxative Senna Compound, send your name and address on a penny post card to Box E, Monticello, Ill., before Feb. 18, 1939.

Reconditions as it cleanses

The Truth ABOUT SOAP SHAMPOOS

FITCH'S Dandruff Remover Shampoo will make your hair healthy and beautiful, because it reconditions as it cleanses. It gives the scalp a deep cleansing by penetrating each tiny hair opening. Thus it works as a normalizer against excessive dryness, oiliness and dandruff—actually reconditioning as it cleanses.

FITCH MEANS GOODBYE DANDRUFF
Fitch Shampoo dissolves and washes away every speck of dandruff with the first application—under a positive, Money-Back Guarantee that is backed by one of the world's largest insurance firms. The Good Housekeeping Seal of Approval testifies to the fact that it rinses out instantly in either hard or soft water, and is equally good for all shades of hair. For beautiful, healthy hair, use Fitch Shampoo regularly each week. Get Fitch's today at any drug counter. Professional applications at barber and beauty shops.

After and between Fitch Shampoos, Fitch's Ideal Hair Tonic is the ideal preparation to stimulate the scalp and give new life, luster and beauty to your hair.

Weekly Review of the Experimental Farm

By Bob Becker

A Mystery Duck.

Feb. 11, 1939.

THE flockmaster has a new problem this week trying to figure out who owns a muscovy duck that has appeared on the Tribune's Du Page county farm. This mystery bird was seen in the air, flying over one of the fields. Suddenly it cupped its wings and dropped down into a pasture. The bird immediately made itself at home. It moved into a small nesting house several hundred feet from the flock of muscovys on the farm.

The flockmaster went out to this small nesting house early the following morning, got the visiting duck, and brought it to the barnyard where it could be with the rest of the farm ducks. After taking several counts of the muscovys there isn't any doubt that this bird is a visitor. The flockmaster has contacted several of the farms near by, but so far he has been unable to get any clew as to where this new bird came from. Meantime the visiting muscovy is getting its meals free with the rest of the ducks.

Wild Ducks Still Around.

With three wild black ducks continuing to make the farm ponds their winter rendezvous, the flockmaster has strong hopes that these birds will nest on one of the ponds this spring. It's apparent that these black ducks like the idea of safety, plenty of company, and all they want to eat, so they elected to stay here during the winter rather than fly south.

These wild birds, which do not have their wings clipped, are staying with the other waterfowl that were trapped last fall and now are being kept [by permission of the United States biological survey] for breeding experiments. Although these three black ducks are much tamer than they were last fall, they still won't let the flockmaster get close to them. When he brings feed to one of the ponds the wild birds fly away for a few minutes. Then they return to eat with the others.

The rabbits have found a new source of food supply on the farm. Tracks in the snow show that they have been coming out of the woods and thickets, crossing the pond where the ducks live, and then going into the yard where the geese are kept in order to get some of the grain distributed for the big honkers.

Steal Food from Geese.

Judging by the number of tracks in the snow the cottontails have been raiding the food supply of the geese for some time. The rabbits also are not at all bashful about visiting the flour feeding stations which are on the farm for the benefit of both song and game birds. The animals are supplementing their regular diet with seeds and grain from these feeding stations.

The two muscovy ducks that are staying on Half Moon pond instead of spending the winter in the barnyard with the rest of the fowl certainly are tough birds, according to the workers on the farm. They refuse to come back to the barnyard regardless of weather. Not even the recent big snowstorm made the ducks change their mind. They're still on the pond all by themselves.

REAL ESTATE LOANS, MORTGAGES.

IN 1927 MR. M. HAD BOUGHT A LOT ON CONTRACT for $2,600. In 10 long years he paid off all but $500. Last year he decided to build, went to a bank, got a $7,000 mortgage to pay the cost of the construction and the $500 balance on the lot.

BUT: The bank naturally refused to pay out on the loan until Mr. M. had the title to the lot. To get title he needed $500 cash and since he didn't have $500 he was stuck. Too bad for Mr. M. because:
NO TITLE, NO LOAN—NO LOAN, NO HOME

Finally he came to us. We investigated, took over the mortgage, advanced cash to get him his title to the lot, and in due course his home was completed. Mr. and Mrs. M. are quite happy now, thank you—We, too!

If you wish to buy, build, repair, sell or refinance, SEE US! Our officers are capable and experienced men and are really ANXIOUS to help you. We lend our own Bank, Insurance and Building and Loan funds on homes up to 4 apts. [age limit 30 yrs.] and on large apt., store, factory, and garage buildings in good locations. If you haven't seen your Ford Dealers' big used car stocks in the last few days, you are due for a surprise.

Many "new" used cars come in every day for you to choose from. Never before have Ford dealers had such a wide range of good used cars, especially priced for quick sale, because of the sales of the Mercury 8 and the new features of the fast-selling 1939 Ford "V" Eights.

Remember, only Ford Dealers give you "R & G" protection and the 30-day guarantee in lower priced Used Cars.

USED AUTOMOBILES FOR SALE.

REPUTATION

You can't advertise yourself into a reputation. It must be earned. We have earned ours by serving Chicago faithfully, and we are now offering a new process of reconditioning used cars that makes them entirely different from average used cars.

There is only one way you can prove this statement to yourself, and that is to visit a Community Motors store and see a different kind of used cars than you have ever seen before.

Ask for Our Free Booklet, "WHAT EVERY USED CAR BUYER SHOULD KNOW."

Here are just a few examples of the bargains we have to offer.

"Stop and Go" Lights of Fashion, Chapeaux to Enliven Wardrobes

At right: One of the newest bicornes, cut and fitted to the headline with all the rakish swagger of a Napoleonic dandy. The material is a stitched fabric, and, although the hat perches precariously on one side of the coiffure, it fits securely. A sky-tickling feather is slanted at an oblique angle as the perfect trim. This is a hat to wear with your most sophisticated black dresses, or with a slim dark costume suit.

At right: Gay and flattering, here is the unusual combine of a light felt contrasted with a long bias-cut scarf of plaid silk. The small hat is a perfect accent for dark clothes.

Above: Bold-patterned plaid surah silk was used to fashion this wide-brimmed, high-crowned hat. With the hat comes a capacious bag, also of the same vivid material. This ensemble is designed for resort clothes, but equal to any contrast use with dark outfits.

Above: Colorful netting, yards of the stuff, was used to make this skillfully swathed small hat. It's a perfect example of the newest conceit of milliners, a soft hat without too cluttered an outline, a hat for prints and plain silks and for sheer wools.

At right: One of the spectacular new brimmed hats, this time the brim of supple dark felt swooping down over the face. The conically shaped high crown is of a brilliant print, tied in picturesque knots to the wide brim. Around the back is the softly draped snood of the same print as that used for the crown. A huge bag to harmonize with the print completes the duet. There is infinite dash to the midseason felts, fine sophisticated outline that means a telling contrast to the smartest clothes.

By RHEA SEEGER

HEADLINES of the hour are hats, the "stop and go" lights of fashion! New models to project you into spring weeks before the weather reports give you that prospect, new colors to enliven an otherwise jaded wardrobe, new skylines or outlines to dramatize every passing mood, mark the present showings. Small hats, ethereal hats, scoops in new altitudes, brims that flatter seductively, and clouds of veiling, together with flowers that beggar all descriptive powers of even a botany whiz—these all give the midseason lift.

Excitingly new are the veil sailors, tiny coquettish affairs made entirely of folds and folds of veiling, softly alluring in outline, easy to wear, and obligingly practical, for they'll go with tailleurs of silk or wool, as well as with printed silks. Worn with or without a mist of flying extra veiling, such sailors become the pet of any well planned wardrobe. Dark, odd, and vivid colors are available. Brims are extremely straight, not very wide, and the crowns are the smallest, flattest things in sight. Sometimes there are stiff little bouquets of silk flowers, often a couple of prim little bows of ribbon.

Brims are back, to droop in lovely, graceful shadows across the eyelines, or to draw a smart straight line in contrast to an unusually high-shaped crown. Felt soft as broadcloth, stitched fabric, crêpes, and dull dark straws combined with plaid or printed and plain thick, heavy silks make some rather breath-taking headgear that, matched with a bag, make a costume with a severely smart and uncomplicated dress. High crowns are particularly noticeable, but these are the crowns that are flexible, equal to the trick of being dented, twisted, or folded in any manner that individually flatters the headline.

Plaids in both small and large patterns are used for unusual headgear. Sometimes the entire hat is of plaid fabric, usually heavy surah silk or taffeta. Other models emphasize the bold plaids with a contrast of felt or solid color material. Small, medium, and large hat beauties all are audaciously effective with dark-toned apparel. Very smart hats designed for resort wear are made of plaid nets. Thick jerseys, soft old-fashioned surah silks, thin and stiff taffetas, together with all sorts of novelty fabrics, make deftly fashioned small turbans.

All-flower hats continue to charm, especially effective for all the very feminine afternoon dresses. Such beflowered creations do a grand job of flattery as well as color contrast. Dinner and evening hats also use the exquisite combination of many-colored flowers with perhaps the added lure of velvet ribbon bows or a wisp of colored veiling. All shades of blonde to beige, fuchsia, green, and red are leading in-between-season colors, with particular emphasis on the navy blues for street wear.

From the superb collection of Lilly Daché's midseason showings we've sketched five new and significant models, all made expressly for the winter wardrobes or for resort clothes. Every model is distinctively Daché, different in outline, flattering in color or color combine, daring enough to dramatize every personality, and new enough to satisfy the most demanding but bored shopper. All are original models, all can be modified or adapted to suit the individual, and other colors or contrasts can be achieved.

Patterns by Clotilde

By Clotilde.

The jacket frock never goes out of style. Year after year the designers use it, giving it new details and different lines. This year it is graceful and feminine, and rather full. Such a jacket is used for the daytime costume in the pattern today, No. 3243. This topper has puffed shoulders and rather full sleeves. The jacket itself hangs to the hipline. The frock to be worn beneath it is a paneled model styled for maximum slenderness. It's an utterly simple dress, with puffed sleeves, simple collared neckline, and a belt that may extend only from the side seams or be worn completely around the waist. The skirt is flared and you may have pockets if you like. As to the neckline, we might mention that it may be a simple V with some sort of contrasting trimming. This version is particularly flattering to the rather plump type of figure.

The other dress is one you will find indispensable for afternoon wear. It's just the ideal type of thing for informal social occasions, and it's a slenderizer de luxe. The V neckline is given a soft rolled collar, and the full shoulders give way to flowing short sleeves. From the shoulder seams and high pointed waistline there emanates shirring that lends lovely fulness to the bodice. The skirt is paneled and just wide enough to be graceful.

Style No. 3243 is designed for sizes 16, 18 and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48 and 50 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3⅛ yards of 39 inch material for the dress and 2 yards of 39 inch fabric for the jacket.

Style No. 2990 is designed for sizes 16, 18 and 20, and 34, 36, 38, 40, 42, 44, 46, 48, 50, 52 and 54 inches bust measurement. Size 36 requires 3¾ yards of 39 inch material.

Each pattern costs 10 cents.

Some time ago I promised you a recipe for Napoleons, that delightful bit of French pastry that melts in the mouth. Many women shy away from making puff paste, but I want to take this opportunity now of telling you that it isn't at all difficult. Certain rules have to be followed and with a little practice one can acquire quite a professional technique. When you master the making of a good puff paste you will be able to include in your recipes delicious tarts, turnovers, patty shells, rissoles, vol-au-vents, and, of course, Napoleons.

PUFF PASTE.

Have ingredients cold, work rapidly, handle dough lightly and as little as possible. Butter must be washed for superior pastry and this is accomplished by placing butter in a mixing bowl, holding it under cold running water, and squeezing it with the hands until it is soft and waxy. Puff paste requires a hot oven and should be baked on a tin sheet covered with a double thickness of unglazed browned paper.

½ pound of butter
½ pound of pastry flour
Cold water
6 to 8 tablespoons cold water

Wash butter, squeeze, and fold until all water is extracted. Cut two tablespoons of butter into the flour, add cold water, and knead the dough five minutes. Roll to one-quarter inch in thickness, keeping paste rectangular and corners square. Place remaining butter in center of lower half of dough, cover with upper half, and fold right side under and left side over. Roll to one-quarter inch in thickness. Repeat this process four times. Put paste in cold earthen bowl, cover with a napkin wrung out of cold water, and chill in the refrigerator for at least one hour. Cut into desired shapes, place on papered baking sheet, and bake in a hot oven (450 degrees) for five minutes, reduce heat to moderate (375 degrees), and bake about thirty minutes.

NAPOLEONS.

Double recipe for puff paste. Divide in thirds and roll each third as thinly as possible and of approximate size. Prick each sheet with a fork before baking in hot oven (450 degrees). Bake until sheets are delicately browned. When cool put together as three layers, using a thick cream filling made as follows:

CREAM FILLING.

⅛ cup of cake flour
⅛ teaspoon of salt
2 eggs or 4 yolks
2 cups of scalded milk
1 teaspoon of vanilla

Mix dry ingredients, add eggs slightly beaten, add scalded milk. Cook fifteen minutes in double boiler, stirring constantly until thickened, afterward occasionally; cool and flavor.

CONFECTIONER'S FROSTING.

¼ cup of boiling water
Confectioner's sugar
⅓ teaspoon of vanilla

To the hot water add enough sifted confectioner's sugar to make of right consistency to spread; add flavoring. Spread frosting over top layer of Napoleon, mark frosting to cut Napoleons into pieces of 2½ by 4½ inches, and cut with a sharp knife. Napoleons aren't always topped with frosting, but instead a heavy sprinkling of powdered sugar is used. Puff paste layers are sometimes put together with sweetened and flavored whipped cream. This, however, is a matter of taste. The important thing about Napoleons is the pastry. It must be light and tender.

RISSOLES.

Roll puff paste to one-eighth inch thickness. Cut in rounds three inches in diameter. Place in refrigerator to chill.

FILLING.

1 cup of finely chopped cooked chicken
½ cup of finely chopped cooked ham
3 tablespoons of butter
3 tablespoons of flour
1 cup of scalded milk
Salt and pepper

Prepare chicken and ham. Make a thick white sauce by melting butter, blending flour, and gradually adding hot milk. Bring to boiling point and let boil two minutes. Add finely chopped meat to sauce and season with salt and pepper. Place one tablespoon of the creamed mixture on a round of puff paste, moisten edge with cold water, and lay another round of puff paste on top. Press edges together, place on a baking sheet which has been covered with two thicknesses of brown paper, and bake in a hot oven. Serve with a well seasoned tomato sauce. Smaller rissoles may be made by using one round of puff paste and folding like a turnover.

COMPOTE OF FRESH FRUITS.

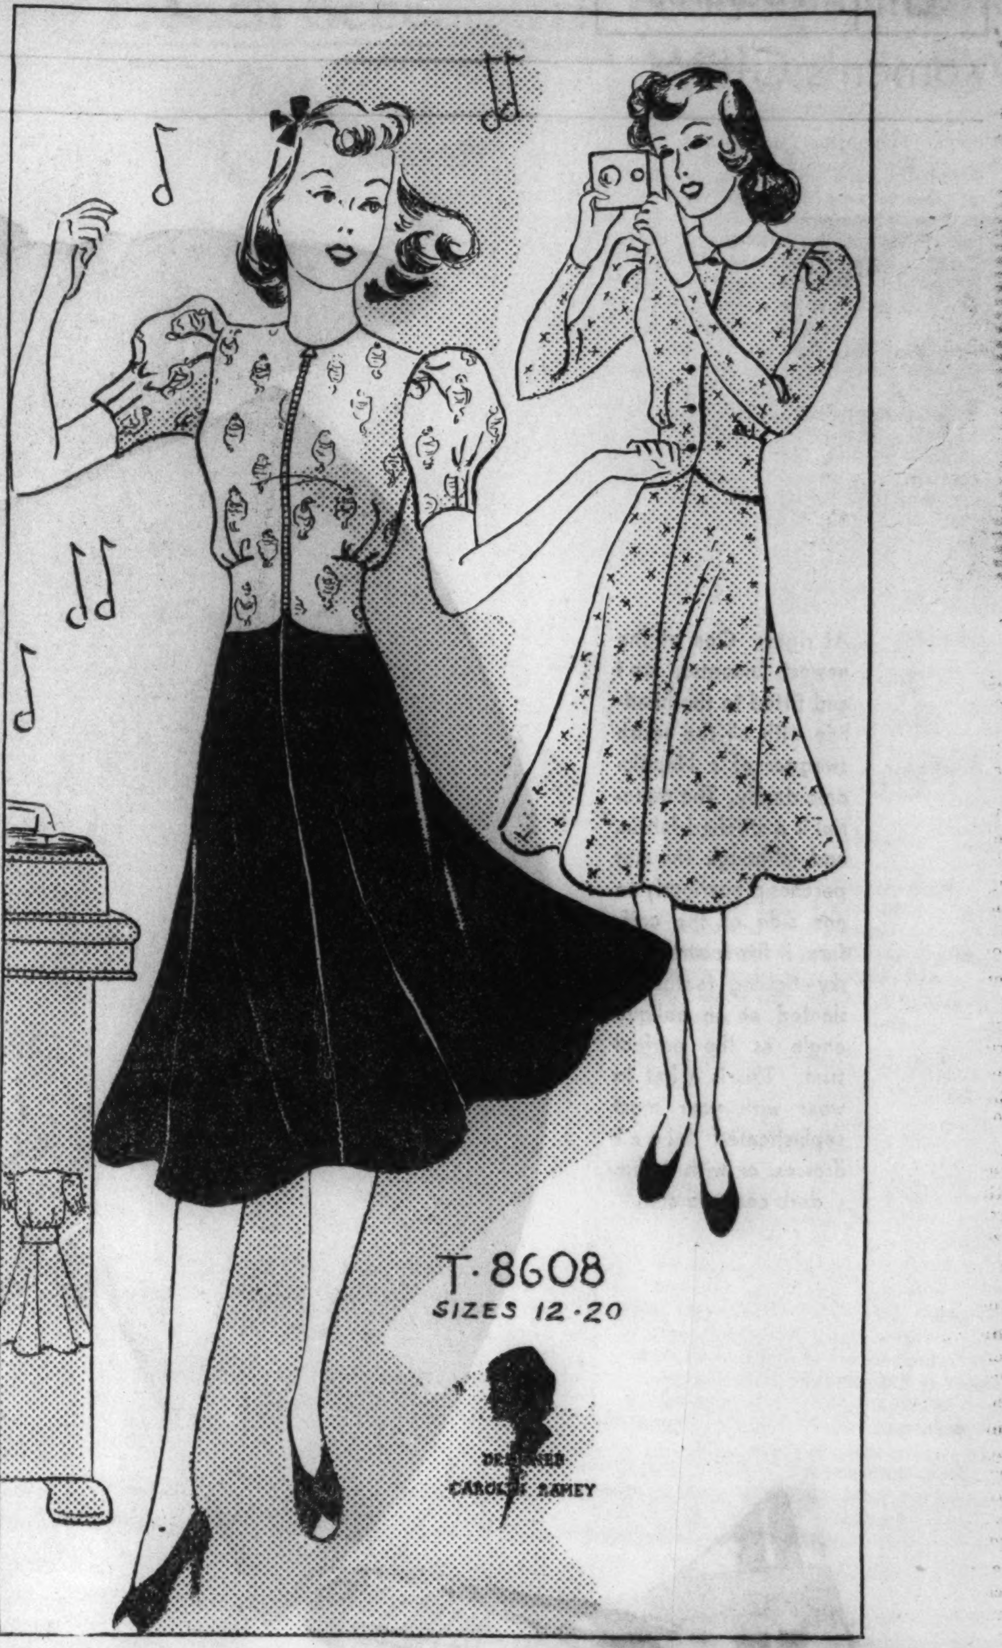
Fresh stewed fruits make an impressive dessert, especially if one takes time to do them properly. When fruits are served as a compote they must be of uniform size, perfect in appearance, and served whole. Peaches, pears, plums, cherries, and blackberries make an ideal combination. Each fruit must be cooked separately (to retain its own flavor and individuality) in a medium sugar sirup which is equal parts sugar to equal parts water.

The sugar and water is boiled together for five minutes before the fruit is dropped in. If a thick sirup is desired then make it with two parts sugar to one part water. The whole pears are carefully peeled, but a little of the stem is left on. They are then dropped into the prepared sirup and simmered until cooked or until easily pierced with a fork. Allow to cool in the sirup.

The peaches are prepared likewise in separate sirup. Plums are not peeled, but are cooked with the skin left on the fruit. They do not require as long to cook as the larger fruit. Cherries are dropped into the prepared sirup and simmered for two minutes; sauce pan is then covered and removed from heat. The retained heat of the sirup will finish cooking the cherries. Blackberries are prepared in same manner as cherries. An assortment of the stewed fruits is served to each portion. A dish of sweetened whipped cream flavored with Kirschwasser is passed at the table.

Make Kirschwasser cream as follows: Beat one-half pint of cream until stiff, gradually adding three tablespoons of powdered sugar and three tablespoons of Kirschwasser.

Campus Modes by a Co-ed



By Carolyn Ramey.

The latest fashion news from Paris, I am informed, is the lower waistline. It isn't an unfitted line, however. It is curved to the silhouette. Personally, I think it's a grand style, a welcome change from the high-under-the-bust fashion. Copy-cat that I am, I've employed this new lower waistline in my latest frock, presented for your approval today.

The neckline may be plain and round or may have a soft shirt collar. The sleeves may be long or short, as your preference demands, and are puffed. Down the front closing you can use either buttons or a slide fastener to carry out the color scheme.

I like the skirt. It flares widely and gracefully, and makes the entire blouse seem even more slender than it really is.

You may make the frock all in one material and color, or use two in combination. The frock for my personal wardrobe employs two fabrics and colors. The top is a pastel printed silk, while the skirt is black crepe.

I think this is a grand model for southern wear. There are all kinds of wear-resistant mixtures, and innumerable linens and cottons that will make up attractively. It's the sort of dress styled for service and comfort as well as smartness.

A FRIEND IN NEED

By Sally Joy Brown.

If you are in need, perhaps I can help you. If you have household articles or clothing you no longer use, please let me place them with needy families. Address correspondence to Sally Joy Brown, The Chicago Tribune, Chicago. Activities of this department are sponsored by the Chicago Tribune Charities, Inc.

Household articles of all kinds seem to be in greatest demand at the present time. There are hundreds of families in the city, on and off relief alike, who have for years been financially unable to replenish or replace any household furnishings. Rugs, linens, dishes, and furniture wear out in spite of best efforts to preserve them.

A caseworker has sent in a request for Mrs. A., the widowed mother of six children, living on a meager pension which provides little more than rent and food. A home visit revealed that the family possesses only four plates and three handleless cups. They have sufficient bedding for only one bed, and all seven members of the family have been sleeping in two, with a division of that bedding, in an effort to keep warm. Surely some housewife has spare dishes and bedding which can be given to this family. The address is on the south side, and the worker will be glad to call for offers.

Mrs. M., also widowed, is the mother of five children. There are three beds in the home, but only one woolen and two cotton blankets. They, too, need dishes, especially plates, cups, and saucers.

Mrs. B. is recovering from a serious illness. The family is on relief and very much in need of a rug for the damp floor of their home. There are five small children in the family. Mrs. B. has only a spring coat, and as it is necessary that she attend a clinic regularly for medical treatment, she is much in need of a warm coat, size 18. The address is on the north side of the city.

A crib or bassinet is needed for the X family. They are a young couple expecting their first baby. The father has made every effort to obtain employment, but without success. They are living in a one-room apartment, and will have no bed for the child unless some reader can assist them. The address is on the south side of the city.

Can some reader supply a crib mattress, 27 by 52 inches, for the P. family? They also need bedding of all kinds. The baby, 11 months old, has been ill and hospitalized for the past several months, and the worker feels that the inadequate sleeping accommodations are partly responsible for the child's illness. There are six children and two adults in the family. They are not on relief, but the father's earnings are inadequate to supply their needs, and he is not willing to consider supplementary assistance. The address is on the north side, and the father will be glad to call for items offered.

Mrs. S. is anxious to obtain baby blankets. She has only one very thin one for her baby's bed and is forced to use coats and other clothing as covering. She is afraid the baby might smother under such bulky covers. They have another child who is much in need of warm clothing, size 2.

We would be happy to have clothing donations from men and women who wear large sizes. We have found it extremely difficult to obtain clothing of that type, and have numerous urgent requests from needy persons. Outsize clothing, underwear, and shoes are much needed. If you have any on hand, write or phone and we will be happy to place it for you.

Bolero Popular for Spring; This Smart One Is Knitted

By Jean Macdonald.

There is no question that the big thing for spring is the bolero. The hand knitted bolero and jacket over a one piece surplice dress, illustrated today, is an example of the spring color scheme of chartreuse and navy blue. Requiring less than 1,200 yards of material for the jacket and cummerbund, the outfit may be knitted in less than one week. The garter stitch around the bottom, sides, and sleeves serves as the only trimming. The cummerbund is done in the stockinette stitch with an inch of single crochet around it to hold it firmly and to prevent stretching.

For instructions for knitting the bolero and cummerbund, No. X-10, send 10 cents in stamps or coin to the Needlework Bureau, Chicago Tribune, 220 Fifth avenue, New York City.

Through the Looking Glass

By Eleanor Nangle

One of the best, and newest, of external aids to hair luster is a nongreasy cream brilliantine in liquid form that accents the color tone and endows dry hair with luster.

It goes without saying that if we women would practice correct scalp hygiene, which embraces cleanliness, scalp massage, and consistent brushing, we wouldn't be in such a dither about acquiring hair luster. We'd have it, plenty of it, and every woman's hair would be a shining, softening frame for her face.

But with feminine inconsistency what it is, there is a definite market for the external aids to gloss. Dry haired women clamor for brilliantines, for dressings that will give the hair at least a suggestion of the luster that is so sadly lacking and so much desired.

It's for these women that we recently hunted up a new product we think is pretty exciting. This is a nongreasy cream brilliantine that serves as a dressing or controling influence for unruly hair and, at the same time, gives it sparkle without greasiness. As with all hair dressings, it's better to use too little than too much. A few drops poured into the palm of the hand and stroked over the hair will do the trick. If you want your hair to be extremely flat, dampen the hair and use the dressing a little more freely.

This cream brilliantine is really a liquid cream, not a solid. You'll find, if you use it, that your hairdress remains suave rather longer than usual, and that your hair looks better groomed and has a better gloss.

Another unusual feature of this cream dressing is that it comes in six shades. Not dyes, mind you, but tints that accent the color tone just a little bit. There is an ebony blue for very dark hair. The dressing for red hair has a copper tinge and that for gray or white hair has a very faint bluish mauve tint. But it is not a hair coloring agent in any sense of the word .

It's a dressing designed to soften and to give the hair shining highlights. It accomplishes these two aims very competently. We predict great popularity for it. The price, you'll be glad to know, is extremely reasonable.

Eleanor Nangle, "through her looking glass," sees everything that is new in the fascinating realm of beauty aids, and tells you about them daily in The Chicago Tribune.

"Bird's Nest" Is Title of Modish Crocheted Beret

By Ellen Bruce.

Crochet berets have hit a new high in style notes with the introduction of the "bird's nest" beret. It is just the simple, old-fashioned beret crocheted with loops and two bands of ribbon attached to hold the hat on the head. There is no question about the charm and pertness of the finished headgear, and most delightful is the fact that it takes little time and a minimum amount of yarn.

Lack of Pourers May End University's Noon Teas

While women have been drinking tea at noon at the women's clubrooms of the University of California for fourteen years, the tradition may be dropped this year. The reason is that there are plenty of tea drinkers but very few who care to help serve it.

It's refreshing to discuss the theme of beauty with a woman who, for forty years, has pursued a career in which she has earned worldwide fame and one who, in addition, has made a great success of wifehood and motherhood.

From such a source you anticipate hearing facts divested of the frivolities attached to this favorite theme of ours as extended by young women born with the beauty spoon in their mouths, so to speak. Here you anticipate a formula [and are not disappointed in Mrs. Lhevinne's] for lasting success as an individual of charm, brains, and talent. Such gifts are not the solaces of age, but the triumphs thereof.

After forty years of successful marital and professional life the pianist, Rosina Lhevinne, believes that trained listening is as important a beauty secret as the right face cream.

Mme. Lhevinne, whose forty years as a successful wife, mother, and very great musician was crowned recently by a celebration performance with her equally famed husband, Josef, is well qualified to speak. She has not alone always kept in splendid condition for her appearances in the public spotlight, but she also raised two fine children and runs her household with charm and tact.

"I honestly believe," she says, "that any great artist, movie, stage, or concert star, retains beauty of face and performance only as long as he or she has some inner beauty to give.

"The great of this world always are modest and always willing to listen. It is only when we do not listen, and become self-satisfied, that we defeat ourselves, and losing interest in others destroys the artist's most important asset.

"For then we lose that important inner love that is our bond with the world. Inner discord follows. It shows in the voice of actors and singers, and the warm melody of violinists and pianists thins out. And, eventually, that discontent shows outwardly in the face."

When she was a vivid slip of a girl and an honor student at the Moscow conservatory, Rosina Lhevinne first learned how to listen. "I was terribly concerned about my career," she says, "and, without realizing it, I constantly used the first person singular. One day another student used an 'I' so much that I felt disgusted. But the first word coming from me was an 'I' and it pulled me up short. That episode always has remained with me."

Just as, when a young girl, Mme. Lhevinne made her first steps toward finding harmony in life, so, too, was it then that she learned the simple beauty habits she has retained through life.

She makes her own liquid shampoos for her hair, for instance, out of a distillation of flowers, mostly roses, from her own garden, plus Castile soap and camomile flowers. And for a hair rinse, the camomile flowers are steeped in boiling water, then strained.

She uses only two face creams, one which is for both cleansing and toning [from an old Russian recipe], and the other a protective cream for her face, throat, and hands.

Although her hands are her stock in trade, she uses them even more than the average woman. She gardens, golfs, cooks, and even drives her own car. "The more you use them the younger and more supple they are," she says. "Wrap them in cotton wool and they lose character."

● ● ●

Her "time out" periods she calls "cat-naps." "I find I don't need a great deal of sleep, but I work better and look better for having 'time out periods."

Consequently Mme. Lhevinne always manages to take a moment for a short walk or just for soliloquy in the middle of each morning. And every afternoon she takes tea.

She believes that we all formulate simple rules for ourselves. Her rules for looking better and working better are: [1] Thinking of yourself in terms of others, [2] immaculateness of personal appearance, [3] time out for relaxation periods, [4] toilette frivolities.

But the first, she believes, is the most important. "It has given me an anniversary and a light heart," she says, vivaciously, with her characteristic warm smile and sparkle. Mme. Lhevinne loves gayety, people, crowds, the excitements that go on around us all.

Bridge and gossiping are not favorite sports of hers, we might add. Nor bargain hunting. The duties of a wife, she thinks, can be dispatched comfortably so as to leave ample time to devote to a career.

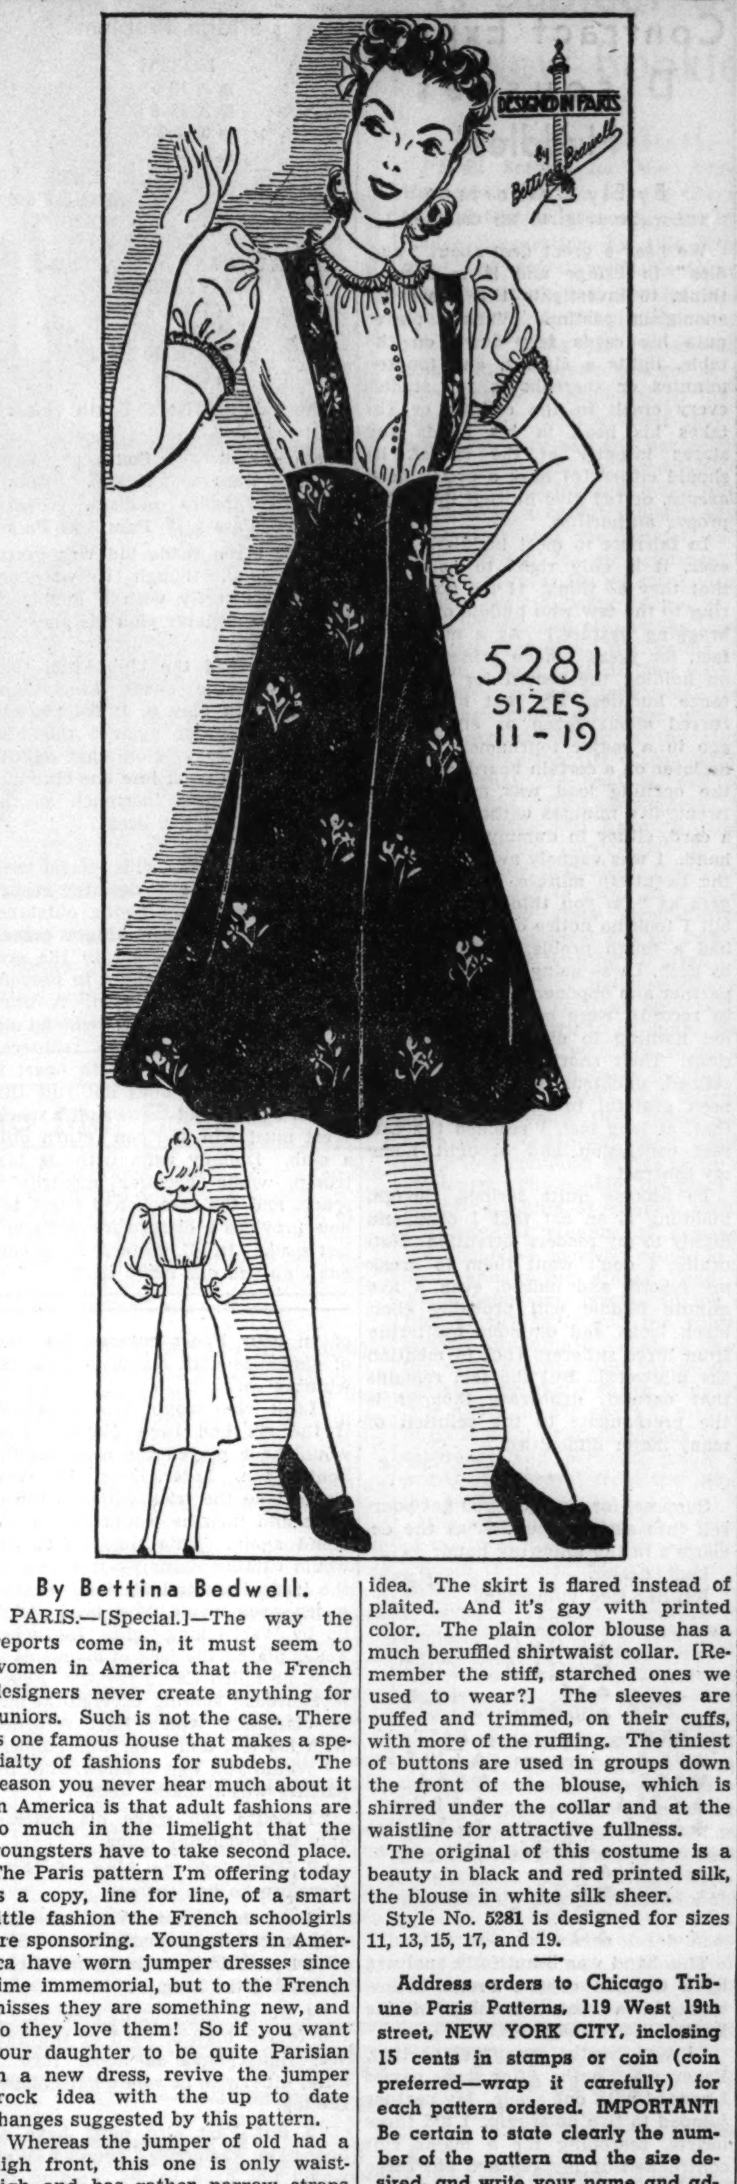
Jumper Frock in Vogue Now with the French Schoolgirls



By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—The way the reports come in, it must seem to women in America that the French designers never create anything for juniors. Such is not the case. There is one famous house that makes a specialty of fashions for subdebs. The reason you never hear much about it in America is that adult fashions are so much in the limelight that the youngsters have to take second place. The Paris pattern I'm offering today is a copy, line for line, of a smart little fashion the French schoolgirls are sponsoring. Youngsters in America have worn jumper dresses since time immemorial, but to the French misses they are something new, and do they love them! So if you want your daughter to be quite Parisian in a new dress, revive the jumper frock idea with the up to date changes suggested by this pattern.

Whereas the jumper of old had a high front, this one is only waist-high and has rather narrow straps instead of the "built-up shoulder" idea. The skirt is flared instead of plaited. And it's gay with printed color. The plain color blouse has a much beruffled shirtwaist collar. [Remember the stiff, starched ones we used to wear?] The sleeves are puffed and trimmed, on their cuffs, with more of the ruffling. The tiniest of buttons are used in groups down the front of the blouse, which is shirred under the collar and at the waistline for attractive fullness.

The original of this costume is a beauty in black and red printed silk, the blouse in white silk sheer. Style No. 5281 is designed for sizes 11, 13, 15, 17, and 19.

Address orders to Chicago Tribune Paris Patterns, 119 West 19th street, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing 15 cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred—wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

Juvenile Party Food Should Be Without Frills

By Mary Meade.

[Copyright: 1939: By The Chicago Tribune.]

It isn't wise, nor does it pay, to make a fuss over children's parties. Frills and fancy foods should be reserved for the bridge club "girls," who will appreciate the originality of the hostess, and the time she has spent upon her menu.

Children care only for well prepared, good food, and find enough party atmosphere in the fact that there are other youngsters present to help enjoy the occasion. Simple foods, easy for the child to handle, foods which are suitable for his age and needs, and foods which in themselves are attractive enough to need no dressing up, are those to serve. Here is a group of sample menus.

Wise to Give Teen Age Child a Dress Budget

By Gladys Huntington Bevans.

Today's column is an answer to the letter published yesterday from a mother who asked my advice about giving her young daughter, 14, a dress allowance.

In writing about allowances as a help to children in learning the wise use of money, and all that is implied for character training as well as practical experience, I have never gone into this aspect of the matter. It is one about which a great deal needs to be said—so we'll take our Sunday space to say it.

As this mother said in her letter, it's quite possible to make out a good argument against her idea of a dress allowance given because her young daughter doesn't like her clothes—but I am far from being the one to say always that, "a mother should be able to make her teen age child do this or that." After all, boys and girls at this age are becoming more and more individuals, also different family situations are equally individual. Each one requires its own treatment worked out in detail.

The mother who puts on her thinking cap and deals with her situation as it is, not as she would like it to be, is the smart one. That is what this mother is doing, instead of inflexibly holding to the idea of disciplining her daughter into wearing the clothes selected for her.

● ● ●

This young girl has shown by her one shopping venture a distinct flair for clothes. This is not necessarily vanity, but a taste and a talent. It can be used to her advantage in several ways by following this dress budget plan. And the advantages are many:

First—She'll feel her mother's understanding under this plan.

Third—She'll learn by intelligent shopping a lot of things. She'll learn to plan. She'll learn to make decisions and stick to them, as in selecting clothes and then having to wear them.

She will, if she's as clever as she sounds, begin to look for quality as shown both in the appearance of clothes and their wearability, too. She will have opportunity to exercise good taste as to color and line.

She will consciously, or otherwise, study what suits her figure and personality, and perhaps become aware of these things in other people. A mother and daughter who were visiting us are an example of what I mean. It had been a busy Sunday morning and when my guests arrived and were taking off their things in my bedroom, and we were talking women-talk while the men talked tobacco and dogs and automobiles donwstairs, I found I hadn't had time to finish my nails, so I got the small bottle from the cabinet.

● ● ●

"Here, let me put on the polish," said young Sue [I'll call her], and she proceeded to do so.

"Yours is so good for your skin tone," I said to her. "What is it?"

"It's heather mixed with natural," she answered.

"Do mine next," said Sue's mother. "I always use colorless, but I'll try yours today."

"No! Moth-er! Your nails suit you just the way they are. The deep polish isn't right for you. Lipstick, okay—but not bright nails." And she was right.

Then, hats came up.

"That close hat you're wearing is good on you," I remarked. "I'm so glad you've given up big brims."

"O, but I haven't," replied my friend. "I can't stand this hat!"

"There, mother!" exclaimed her daughter. "What have daddy and I been telling you? You look wonderful and so—so—distinguished in a brimless hat. I've been begging mother to pass up those casual sports models," Sue turned to me earnestly. And she was right.

Sue is artistic and has a feeling for clothes; she dresses herself well on a tiny allowance. She's learned a lot.

Now to go on. Using a dress allowance is training in economy. And the girl who likes to use her hands may find herself stretching her allowance by making some of her own clothes. Fabrics are lovely, and cheap.

The advantages, as we're seeing, are many. Another is that the friction which arises between some mothers and daughters over clothes is eliminated in this way. And still another is that this experience may uncover a real talent which may influence a girl's choice of work or profession when she is older [true, also, of the following of any young interest or hobby].

But it would be unwise to force a young girl to plan and buy all her own clothes if she had no interest in doing so, or before she became clothes-conscious. This, like other plans, works when the right moment arrives. Of course, it goes without saying that all parents cannot manage a full clothes allowance, but if they could manage even a partial one it might help.

As to the particular mother and daughter in this particular letter. I think it would be well to start her, but on the smaller dress allowance of $3 a week, reserving the buying of a few big items like coats, to be done together. After a year, if she does well, she might be given the allowance needed for all her clothes.

The jealous friend who criticizes this child's clothes is not a good influence in any young girl's life, and it is something which quite often occurs, too. Gently a mother should uncover it, show her daughter that this element exists in the friendship. Both boys and girls must learn to see human nature as it is.

Then, a mother should set herself the task of deliberately widening her daughter's range of association, in this way diluting the strength of the unwholesome and often quite powerful influence of a demanding and jealous friendship. Clubs, jaunts, picnics, little parties, and inviting different boys and girls to supper or lunch on Saturdays—it can be easily done.

Be wise and think out—or as the current patter is, think through—independently the situation in which you find yourself with your teen age son or daughter. It's interesting and most satisfactory to do so.

Contract Expert Discusses 'Huddles'

By Ely Culbertson.

[Copyright: 1939: By Ely Culbertson.]

We hear a great deal about "huddles" in bridge and it is time, I think, to investigate this somewhat anomalous pastime. When a player puts his cards face down on the table, lights a cigaret, and for ten minutes or thereabouts [a] studies every crack in the ceiling, or [b] takes his head in his hands and stares intently at the carpet, he should either [c] have a pretty good excuse, or [d] give himself up to the proper authorities.

In fairness to most huddlers, however, it is only right to point out that they do think. [I am not referring to the few who huddle only as a bragging gesture.] As a matter of fact, for years I have prided myself on holding the record for long distance huddles. My best huddle occurred about seven or eight years ago in a major tournament. I was declarer on a certain board, and after the opening lead was made, I sat twenty-five minutes without touching a card, either in dummy or my own hand. I was vaguely aware, at about the twentieth minute, of such whispers as "Do you think he's alive?" but I took no notice of such trivia. I had a tough problem to solve and, by gosh, I was going to solve it! My partner and opponents [it is only fair to record], were courtesy itself and did nothing to disturb my cerebrations. Their snoring was restrained, refined, unobtrusive. I have always been grateful to them for the fact that, at long last, I reached the correct conclusion and brought home my contract.

To become quite serious, though, huddling is an art that I commend highly to my readers' attention. Naturally, I don't want them to break my record, and indeed, even a five minute huddle will probably elicit black looks and ominous muttering from three sufferers [not to mention the kibitzers]. But the fact remains that earnest, deliberate thought is the prerequisite to the solution of many major difficulties.

Suppose, for example, you get yourself into such a situation as the declarer's in the following hand:

NORTH
♠ K Q 6 4
♥ A Q J 10
♦ J 6

WEST
♠ 9 5 3
♥ 8 6 3
♦ K 8 5 4
♣ A K 4

EAST
♠ J 10 7 2
♥ 9 5 4

SOUTH
♦ Q 10 7 2
♣ Q J 9 8

This hand was beautifully analyzed by a German expert, Bruno Grünewald, in a recent number of the Bridge World magazine:

"I was North; my usual partner, Feuer, was South. After three passes I opened with one spade. My partner jumped to two no trump. I bid three hearts, searching for a major suit contract. But my partner bid three no trump and all passed.

"West played the king of clubs and East showed the discouraging three spot. Now West switched to the four of diamonds and many minutes passed until my partner resolved to take one of dummy's cards. I know that Feuer wrestles with big problems when he meditates for such a long time. And really, this trick showed the difference between an expert and an average player. After a quarter of an hour Feuer covered the four of diamonds with dummy's jack, the winning card!

"Look what would have happened if the six had been played: East would have played the nine, forcing South's ten. Later, inevitably, West would take the trick with his ace of clubs and then he would play a diamond again. This time East's ace would capture dummy's jack and, on the lead of a small diamond, South's queen-seven would have been picked up by West's king-eight. But when Feuer played the jack of diamonds at once, he killed East's reëntry. Feuer, mysteriously smiling, covered the nine of diamonds, which East returned, with his ten, and West was helpless.

"Would you like to know what my partner was thinking about?

"2. West led the king of clubs, therefore he has the ace.

"3. At the utmost West can have only four clubs, probably three, otherwise he would have led a small club instead of the king.

"4. Surely the four of diamonds is the fourth highest card of the suit. West must have an honor [ace or king] otherwise he would have played the top.

"5. But East also must have an honor in diamonds, because West would not have passed, holding the A K of clubs and the A K of diamonds.

"6. West can have only four diamonds. With five West would have attacked with a small diamond at the first trick. He would have saved his club reëntries.

"7. Therefore East has three diamonds. The rule of eleven says that he has two higher ones than the four. One of these is the ace or king, the other one is the five, the eight, or the nine. Besides he has the three spot, because South holds the deuce.

"8. The chief question: What is the middle card in diamonds which East holds? The five? Or the eight or nine? If it were the five, dummy's six would pull the honor and all would be well. But if it were the eight or nine, dummy's jack must be taken at once [as was previously shown].

"9. But taking dummy's jack would be disastrous if West had both the eight and nine.

"10. In this moment Feuer uses the last and finest bit of reasoning: As it is not allowed to squint into the opponents' cards, he simply imagines himself in the position of West. 'What would I play holding A 9 8 4 of diamonds? Not the four; it might cost a trick. I would play the nine, attacking dummy's jack. West is a very good player. I suppose he has not both the eight and nine. Therefore it is necessary to play dummy's jack.'

"There you have the summary of Feuer's thoughts. And perhaps you wish to know why he smiled so mysteriously [you will remember] when East returned the nine of diamonds. My partner found it amusing that such a return, which was absolutely correct, made it possible for him to fulfill his contract. Indeed, if East had returned the three of diamonds, absolutely incorrect, Feuer could not have made three no trump. He would have lost two tricks in clubs and three in diamonds."

Now, I ask you—could a declarer possibly think of all the points described above unless he went into a fair sized huddle? Could he visualize not only the probable club and diamond holdings of both defenders, but also the exact cards in those suits which would have to be placed either to his right or left in order to give him a reasonable chance for his contract? At the second trick, when West shifted to the four of diamonds, 99 out of every 100 declarers in the South position would automatically reach for the six spot in dummy—they would not even give a passing thought to the possible fruitfulness of playing the jack. Yet, as Mr. Grünewald pointed out, the play of the diamond six would make the defense extremely simple. All East would have to do would be to put in the nine spot, forcing declarer's ten. Later, East would capture dummy's diamond jack with the ace and then would be in a position to lead the three through declarer's Q-7 to West's tenace of the K-8. There is just one objection that might be taken to Mr. Grünewald's analysis. He said "... if East had returned the three of diamonds, absolutely incorrect ..." I cannot agree to the fact that the return of the diamond three would have been incorrect and, as a matter of fact, feel that a supermaster in East's position would have chosen to return that card rather than the nine spot. As will be seen, this change of defense would have resulted in a defeated contract. Note: East takes the diamond jack with the ace and returns the diamond three. South must put in the ten, else West will make the eight and king on the spot, which, with his two club tricks, would be sufficient. However, when South plays the ten on the three, West wins with the king and returns the five spot. Now East's preserved diamond nine forces the queen and establishes West's eight. When West regains the lead with clubs, he can cash the diamond eight for the setting trick.

The fact that the contract can possibly be defeated, however, regardless of declarer's play of the diamond jack instead of the six from dummy, does not detract from the excellence of that play nor the profound reasoning that dictated it.

The bidding [North-South vulnerable]:

North	East	South	West
1 heart	Pass	2 diam.	3 clubs
3 diam.	3 spades	4 diam.	Pass
5 diam.	Pass	Pass	Pass

East's three spade bid was pretty terrible and, though it was not punished directly with a double, it helped the declarer plan his play successfully.

West opened the club king, then shifted to the spade king. How should South play to fulfill his five diamond contract against the best possible defense? Note that on the surface South must lose one club and two spade tricks, inasmuch as the heart suit does not break.

Answer: Dummy wins second trick with spade ace and declarer cashes A-K of diamonds, drawing outstanding trumps. The heart king is cashed and a low heart is led to the ace, West splitting his honors to prevent a finesse of the ten spot. A third round of hearts is now led and declarer ruffs. Dummy is reëntered with a trump and a fourth heart is played. Declarer does not ruff this round, but instead throws off a spade. West must win and can return only a club. Dummy ruffs with its last trump, while declarer discards a spade, and the established heart ten now provides a discard for declarer's last spade. In all, declarer loses only one club and one heart trick.

The Stamp Collector

—By Richard McP. Cabeen—

Mr. Cabeen will answer questions about stamps, except concerning values. Do not ask where stamps may be sold, as the Stamps and Coins advertising section adjoining contains offers to buy and sell. Inclose a stamped self-addressed envelope for reply.

In 1874, the Plimpton Manufacturing company took over the contract to provide United States envelopes. The designs were similar to those used by the Reay company, but at the best can be described only as poor imitations. In addition it appears that there was no attempt to keep the dies uniform and the result is a multitude of varieties which harass the beginning collector.

At first the denominations of this issue were the same as used during the Reay issue, but in 1875 the 7 cent value was discontinued and a 5 cent value substituted. The 7 cent value, as in the case of the adhesive stamp, had been designed to prepay letters to certain foreign countries, and became obsolete when the postal rates of the Universal Postal union went into effect in 1875.

The one cent value is found in two major varieties of dies, both being printed in dark blue on white, amber, cream, and orange paper. The second die only is printed in light blue on the same papers and in addition, on blue, fawn, manila, and amber manila paper. These last mentioned colors were introduced rather late in the period. The two cent value is listed in four main dies with four minor variations, making eight varieties in all. Three of these dies and two variants were printed in brown on white, amber, cream, and orange paper, but no more than three paper colors are found with each die.

In 1875 the color of this stamp was changed to vermilion and this color appears in two dies and two variants, on white, amber, cream, orange, blue, and fawn colored papers. The third two cent die was in use when the change was made from brown to vermilion and this die only is found on the complete range of paper colors listed above, while other dies are generally limited to the white and amber papers.

The three cent green value appears in three dies on all papers listed for the two cent value except orange, but only one of the three dies is found on the five varieties of paper. The new five cent value, which shows the portrait of Taylor, is printed in blue and may be had in one die on the five colors of paper and in a second die, on all colors except cream. The six cent red stamp comes from a single die and is printed on white, amber, cream, and fawn paper, and the seven cent vermilion stamp which was discontinued in 1875, also is found in one die only on white and amber paper.

The ten cent brown value shows greater variety having been printed from two dies on a total of six colors of paper. One die is on white and amber only, while the second appears on those papers and on blue, amber manila, manila, and an entirely new shade known as oriental buff. The 12 cent plum, 15 cent orange, and 24 cent purple envelopes are printed from single dies on white, amber, and cream papers, but the 30 cent black and 90 cent carmine, although printed from single dies, use the entire range of papers listed under the 10 cent value above. Of the more than 100 varieties included above, about one-half are uncommon and a dozen are decidedly rare.

John J. Swender of East Chicago has loaned this Voortrekker Centenary cover for illustration. The events which are commemorated by the annual celebration in South Africa are described in an adjoining column.

In South Africa the Voortrekker and Dingaan day celebration is of first importance. On Dec. 16, 1938, occurred the centenary of the historic events which reached their climax when the Boers defeated the Zulus under Dingaan and established the government known as the Republic of Port Natal and Adjacent Countries. This region came under the British crown in 1845 as the colony of Natal. Although the British had occupied the coast of Natal bay, a tide of Dutch emigration came overland from the Cape colony. These were the Voortrekkers, Boer farmers led by Pieter Retief, who brought their families and possessions over the Drakensberg range in wagons drawn by oxen, much in the same fashion as was used by American pioneers to cross the mountain ranges leading into the Oregon territory.

Retief succeeded in obtaining a cession of land from Dingaan, Zulu ruler of the region, in return for recovering cattle which had been stolen from Dingaan by a neighboring chief, but two days later, on Feb. 6, 1838, was murdered with his party of 66 settlers, by Dingaan's orders. The Zulus now set out to massacre all Boers who entered Natal and annihilated a party where the town of Weenen [weeping] now commemorates the spot. Throughout the year the murders continued unabated, but late in the year reënforcements reached the region and on Sunday, Dec. 16, 1838, the white men made a stand against the Zulus near the Umslatos river. Their victory is commemorated as Dingaan's day and the river was renamed Blood river from the gory features of the battle.

The Boers made it plain that they did not recognize the British authority, and the result of this was the military occupation of Natal and the organization of the colonial government. Many Boers who were opposed to British government again trekked over the mountains, this time into the regions which later became the Transvaal and the Orange Free State.

French Style Prophets Chart Fashion Trends

By Bettina Bedwell.

PARIS.—[Special.]—French prophets are charting the course of evening fashions for months ahead. They're forecasting a variety of "fates" for assorted types of womanhood.

The most striking kinds of evening clothes are semi-formal. They look daringly new because they're as slim as the beam of a searchlight, and extreme in the matter of décolletage, being either very high necked and long sleeved, or cut down to new lows around the bosom.

With these clothes real hats, not evening headdresses, are shown, and many of them have veils that are as long as Lady Godiva's hair.

The newest evening dresses all come in quiet colors, or dazzling white. They may be enveloped around the bosom in fichus such as Martha Washington wore. They have little jackets for wraps, or shortish capes. Many of them draw a line around the hips, skip the waistline, and suggest a Renaissance frock. The waistline, if any, often is shifted to a lower altitude on evening dresses. Swaying skirts are very full and horizontal tiers, tucks, and ruffles make them look different and fresh.

"Little Women" evening dresses with fitted, boned and modest basque-like bodices and superlarge skirts come in this group of Paris styles. They're dramatic when they have skirts of boldly striped silk, the stripes running horizontally.

Almost all of these quaint frocks have a freshly starched, petticoaty air about them that's going to please the serious sex most favorably. Chanel's dresses in this class are made of starched white lace. Mainbocher presents a farmer's daughter group made of crisp checked taffeta with lacy petticoats.

Balenciaga presents a real Louisa May Alcott series made of sheer, sparkling, stiffly starched striped frocks. Maggy Rouff gives stiffly flared faille evening gowns swallow-tailed hems so pastel petticoats show. Lelong makes balloon skirts of old-time point d'esprit net and ribbon stripes. These frocks have fitted silk bodices.

Another evening dress silhouette that stems from Paris salons is very much in the early 1900 manner, skin-fitted to the knees and bursting into ruffles from there down to the floor. Schiaparelli is the old master who produces this sophisticated line.

Many ultra-modern girls will be Greeks after dark this coming spring, too. They'll follow Mainbocher's lead that takes evening dresses back to ancient Greece and the divine draperies of goddesses. Hoods often are attached or headdrapes are worn under shepherd hats.

Hooded evening dresses also are part of Paquin's style show. All such dresses come, as they should, in soft crêpes and chiffons that fall easily into column-like folds.

And there is still another evening silhouette that looks like being a star. It is the minaret line with a low-cut bodice, a very fitted corselet waistline, and a slim skirt over which two or three flaring ruffles are put.

• • •

Fascinating side issues are as copious in the Paris styles as mosquitoes in a swamp. Embroidered jackets, cut either bolero or bloused lumber jack, are offered. Schiaparelli makes evening blouses of upholstery embroidery, held by buttons.

Bosom emphasis done by spreading feather wings comes from Piguet. Opulent five-strand necklaces of synthetic jewels fill in deep-cut necklines. Slippers have jeweled soles and heels and very little else. Tiny gloves are bright as gems.

Evening wigs made of pastel colored ostrich are a fancy from Schiaparelli. A dress with an early 1900 silhouette is developed in pastel blue stiff silk. The ruffled shoulder line is prophetic, and so is the frilled lower skirt. Each of these ruffles is mounted on a shirred heading.

Alix's "Little Women" evening dress brings a new color fashion—the two-tone dress. The bodice is in delicate lilac taffeta, and the very full skirt in passion-flower purple taffeta. The very big puffed sleeves also are new.

The very slender evening line is brought in before your beautiful eyes in Schiaparelli's violet satin dinner suit. [Satin dinner clothes are very big style.] The sleeves of the hip-length jacket have godets set from elbows to the armholes. [These godets are triangles made of patchwork puffs of vari-colored satin—red, yellow, green, and pink.]

Molyneux's long-waisted full hipped evening line is one of the big items in Paris styles. It is a super smart color—deep golden yellow. The material is taffeta and the long bodice is encrusted with blue and topaz stones.

Clotilde Children's Fashions

It really isn't a very long time until Easter. We're reminding you of the fact because you should get started on your daughter's outfit for that fashionable day. We suggest that she emulate the little English princesses and wear this coat and frock which, incidentally, are in princess style, a very fitting term for these girlishly regal models.

You don't have to buy two patterns. Both the coat and dress designs are included in the one number, 3306. The coat has a notched rever collarline and a three button closing. The sleeves are squared at the shoulders and just comfortable in width all the way down to the wrists. Paneling creates a silhouette effect for this semi-fitted coat. It may be made in either dark or light woolens.

The dress is buttoned all the way down the front, the buttons to be arranged in a single row or in groups. The collar is a Peter Pan model and may be left plain or be edged with braid or ruffling. The sleeves are puffed and have cuffs to match the collar. If you make the dress of fabric that must go to the dry cleaner, fashion the cuffs of lingerie fabric and make them detachable for laundering. Both silks and cottons make up well in this pattern, and plain shades and prints are equally acceptable. You can make an ensemble of these two models by harmonizing colors of coat and dress.

Style No. 3306 is designed for sizes 2, 4, 6 and 8. Size 4 requires 1½ yards of 39 inch fabric with ⅜ yard of 35 inch contrasting for the dress; the coat requires 1⅞ yards of 35 inch material, with 1⅜ yards of lining.

Address orders for Clotilde Children's Fashions to Chicago Tribune, P. O. Box 537, Grand Central Station, NEW YORK CITY, inclosing ten cents in stamps or coin (coin preferred — wrap it carefully) for each pattern ordered. IMPORTANT! Be certain to state clearly the number of the pattern and the size desired, and write your name and address plainly.

On the House

By Louise Bargelt

There is a new and very inexpensive unit on the market that fills a long-felt need. It is a unit which can be attached to a hot air register in a hard to heat room, and not only will it draw the heated air through the furnace pipe by its suction action, but will circulate it through the room. It can be attached to any register, wall or floor type, in five minutes, and plugged into a nearby socket or outlet when needed. This unit is completely shielded and safe, and will not block the natural flow of warm air when not needed. It increases circulation of warm air into a room in winter. It can be used to circulate cool basement air in the upstairs room in summer, too.

To give that new or remodeled fireplace in your home a very modern effect, there are available highly glazed jet black bricks. These have been given a new, one process ceramic glaze treatment; a treatment less expensive than former ones which achieved the same effect. This treatment offers other colors in the same highly glazed finish: white, cream, blue, green, yellow, and many mottled tones. In jet black, however, many striking effects can be obtained in the modern manner.

Sometimes seen these days, and very attractive, is knotty pine paneling which has been given a rich, rather dark tone by special mixing of color in oil with linseed oil and turpentine solution. Also a "pickled finish" for pine is attractive, and not hard to achieve.

Mix Provincial French Styles with American

French Provincial furniture, now that it is being revived, is sure to be with us for a long time for it is beautiful in itself, it is moderately priced, and it can be combined so well with early American styles. Many women, who like a little variety in their rooms, will delight to find that the simple, graceful chairs of beechwood and of cherry in this French vein mix perfectly with maple tables and chairs.

There are charming upholstered arm-chairs, too, from which to choose, and many handsome little occasional tables, some of the tiered variety, others with sunken receptables for plants, and still others for bedside use and for service for afternoon tea or after dinner coffee.

Whether you are doing an entire room, or are merely investing in a piece or two you'll have no difficulty in finding charming furniture in French Provincial style.

Furniture in Wider Range of Good Styles

By Edith Weigle.

A tour of the two huge buildings here, the Merchandise mart and the American Furniture mart, during the recent winter furniture shows convinced us that excellent merchandise in a number of popular styles is going to be available soon at astonishingly low prices. One line which was attracting retail furniture buyers as a field of red clover attracts honey bees was simply amazing for its values at prices even the slenderest budget of the customer can take in its stride.

This southern manufacturer was exhibiting literally hundreds of pieces of furniture, most of them in the popular eighteenth century English and French periods. The woods were mahogany for the English groupings, and walnut which had been given a lovely, mellow, antique tone, for the French.

And this firm was showing its furniture in good looking room settings, as an inspiration to the retail dealer to go home and do likewise. Chippendale and Heppelwhite dining rooms in color schemes of soft grays, dull greens with floral patterned walls, and pale yellows acted as beautiful backgrounds to the rich, dark tone of the mahogany furniture.

There were half a dozen or more bedrooms showing all the types of beds any one doing an eighteenth century English bedroom could desire. Especially pretty were twin beds with slender, tall posts, and canopies.

The French furniture in this line was representative of the simpler, more pleasing styles of both Louis XV. and Louis XVI. There were two dining room ensembles from which to choose and several bedroom suites.

Modern was being featured in another display. Here again great attention had been given to providing harmonious, smart backgrounds. Woods in light finish were contrasted with bright, clear colored walls and gay accessories. One stunning living room had a fireplace of opaque glass blocks, lighted from behind and casting a glow over everything. Walls had a dado of cane laid over brilliant coral pink, the color showing through.

A card room had wall paper in deep blue with racing scenes depicted on it, and a bow window of structural glass against which were displayed shelf after shelf of pottery and porcelain figures, little vases, jars of ivy, etc. The furniture was in light finish and was a card table grouping, the chairs having cane backs.

A furniture company specializing in distinguished copies of eighteenth century English antiques had two charming little tables that caught our eye. They both had checker boards inlaid in their tops in ebony and satinwood. You could slide these tops off, disclosing a handsome lether backgammon board underneath. One of the tables was made with drop leaves, in Pembroke style.

An Indiana furniture company showed a beautiful collection of mahogany pieces in the Regency period, all of which had an interesting, gray-beige finish. The dining room grouping was exceedingly handsome and so simple in line that it might have passed as modern. The bedroom ensemble was made of pieces that had been copied from unusually beautiful English antiques. Against pale sage green walls the delicate color of the bed, chest, and chairs was exquisite. There was a small fireplace mantel in the room which had also been given this finish.

We liked especially, too, a graceful, curved, black couch in Regency vein, which was covered in a Chinese yellow cotton fabric having a white design. The black, yellow, and white made a picture an artist would love to paint.

The manufacturers at the winter market were all bringing out the following styles: Eighteenth century English, eighteenth century French, modern, early American, and a smattering of Regency and Victorian. It is those periods you'll be seeing at your favorite store soon, for the markets set the trends.

Library Steps

It's a Help to Me, Says—

Mrs. Marion Smith, Chicago: Instead of using rock salt to melt ice on walks and steps in blizzardy weather, I use calcium chloride. This won't hurt the paws of your family dog or cat, and it is effective.

* *

Mrs. Vernon Weinkauf, La Crosse, Wis.: I always add a small amount of baking soda to my cole slaw. I think it improves the taste a good deal and also makes the dish more healthful.

* *

Anna T., Detroit, Mich.: After years of experimenting with ways of setting colors in fabrics, I have found the following solution most effective. I'll pass it on for those who want something surer than common salt in cold water. I make a solution of ½ ounce of sugar of lead to a gallon of hot water. Then I douse the fabric in cold water and soak it in the sugar of lead solution. If the material is a light color I soak it for an hour. If it is dark I let it stand overnight. I always dry the fabric afterward before I launder.

* *

Mrs. T. C. B., Ann Arbor, Mich.: We always keep camphorated oil on hand for various family ills. I have found this same oil is a help in removing that misty cast which can appear on varnished woodwork if a too warm dish has been set down on it, or a liquid has been spilled.

Maid Service Is Subject of New Booklet

By Helen Bartlett.

"Maid Service for the Average Household" is the title of the new booklet that only recently has been under preparation by this department, and now is available to readers. We think this booklet is one you'll like and find useful, whether you are a young girl contemplating going into domestic service, a girl who already is employed in the occupation but with a belief that she can improve herself and her position, or a woman who is faced with the problem of training a maid [either her first or a recent replacement].

We hope that the booklet, as we have written it, accomplishes the twofold purpose for which it was intended, that of being an aid to the maid herself, and also to the woman who employs her. We would like women to feel that, if they have an inexperienced maid who needs training, they could discharge some of their responsibilities in the matter by providing the girl with a booklet, asking that she read it, and take care of her duties accordingly. The mistress still will have to lend a guiding hand, particularly in relation to any individual instructions she may want to give. In a booklet we can only state generalizations, for every household has its own special problems peculiar to itself.

This booklet on maid service goes into problems such as how best to organize the work to be done. There are many girls who are eager and willing to do the tasks pointed out to them but haven't the talent of seeing the work that needs being done or of organizing their time in order to accomplish things easily and efficiently. The booklet discusses the pertinent points of etiquet, such as the accepted manner of answering the telephone, meeting people at the door, announcing dinner. And two whole pages are devoted to the setting of the table and the rules of serving the dinner. That is one of the most exacting and the most important jobs in the entire setup. And it is worth all the effort it may take to do it right, with dividends in self-assurance and personal pride, and words of approval from the lady of the house.

The price of this booklet is 5 cents at the Tribune Public Service offices, 1 South Dearborn street and Tribune Tower lobby, or 7 cents if you wish to order it by mail. Address mail requests to Helen Bartlett, etiquet editor, CHICAGO TRIBUNE.

Politics Inspire New Fashion in Millinery

One way in which women are keeping up with the times is entirely their own. Millinery has gone political. The seal of fame has been set upon Chamberlain, Daladier, and Mussolini by milliners. Smart winter hats are appearing in London named for them.

The new president of the Association of Bank Women is Miss Mildred Roberts of the Citizens' National Bank of Los Angeles.

THE STORY TO DATE

● Joan Armstrong learns that Adelaide Noonan, with whom she'd attended secretarial school, has collapsed with tuberculosis just as she was about to start work as secretary to William Bowen, executive of an export firm. Dr. Deering, friend of Adelaide's father, had gotten the job for her and has now arranged to send her to his uncle's sanitarium in Arizona. Joan has longed to work, but agreed with her parents that she shouldn't deprive some needy girl of a job. She has refused to marry faithful Tommy Emerson, whom she doesn't love. Now Joan offers to hold down the job for Adelaide and send her the salary. With the aid of Bob Deering she wins the chance in spite of the misgivings of Bill Bowen, her employer. Joan moves into an apartment of her own. From Alice Daniels, Bowen's ex-secretary, who left his employment when she married, Joan learns that her employer is married and that his wife is in a sanitarium, insane except at intervals since the birth of her son. Her elder sister takes care of Bill Bowen's child and household. At Christmas time Joan shops for little Bill Jr., as his aunt is ill, and dines with his father in the latter's den, where Joan has decorated a Christmas tree for her employer's son.

INSTALMENT V.

(Copyright: 1939: Faith Baldwin Cathrell.)

IT WAS very hard to get out of bed on the following morning, dress, and consume a glass of orange juice and a cup of coffee at the nearest drug store—Joan was far too sleepy to think of setting a percolator to boil—and to get to the office.

She was tired and drowsy, but firm in her determination not to be one minute late if she could avoid it. For that would be taking advantage of her employer and his chicken under glass, to say nothing of the two glasses of champagne which had accompanied the chicken!

Bowen himself did not get in until late, and Joan was frantic, stalling two important gentlemen armed with appointments. And it seemed to her that her telephone rang incessantly. She did not see him alone until after luncheon when she was summoned to take dictation.

He smiled at her cheerfully.

"Yes, indeed. The taxi man actually heeded your instructions to drive safely and slowly," she told him.

"That's good. But you should have let me——"

"Nonsense!" said Joan briskly. "I was all right. Besides," she added, "I can take care of myself."

"No doubt," agreed Bowen. "Yet I keep wondering if your parents think so."

"They've washed their hands of me," said Joan, laughing.

Last night over their supper Bowen had learned a good deal about her—more than she knew. He had even guessed at the relationship between her and her father and mother, wondered at it—it seemed so unusual these days—and decided privately that the Armstrongs must be very regular indeed. And he had remembered to ask for Adelaide Noonan, too, reproaching himself that he had shown so little interest before. It appeared from what Joan had said that she was seeing a good deal of Bob Deering. Deering, thought Bowen, was a fine chap.

He said:

"The tree is certainly a success. I've the library door locked and virtually guarded. Think of Billy Christmas morning, won't you?"

"Indeed," she said, smiling, "I will."

"You've been more than kind," he said. He turned in his chair and looked at her for a moment. She felt uncomfortable under that searching regard. Then he said:

"When the letters are done I suggest you take the rest of the afternoon off. I'm going out and shan't need you. We're all closing shop as early as possible. You'll have things you want to do, I'm sure."

That was nice of him; she glowed under it. And there weren't many letters.

● ● ●

WHEN she brought them in to be signed he was standing, as she often saw him stand at the windows, his shoulders hunched and his hands in his pockets. He swung his big body around at her approach and took the letters from her. Presently he signed them—and then went to his desk and opened the drawer. He took a little package from it and held it toward her.

"I thought," he began—and she saw that for some reason or other, obscure to her, he was embarrassed—"well, anyway, merry Christmas from Billy and his father."

Joan took the package, startled and touched.

"Thank you," she began, and turned it over, shook it, like a child. Bowen burst out laughing, watching her. "I can't help it," she said defiantly. "I'm curious as a cat. But I've been well brought up. I promise not to open it until tomorrow morning. Or—at least—midnight."

"That's a good girl," he approved. He added haltingly: "I didn't know what you'd like—you can always change it," he added, falling back on his masculine way out.

"Of course I'll like it," she said.

He was thinking that when he remembered Alice Daniels at holiday seasons it had been different. She hadn't much, only what she earned so well. But this girl had everything. Queer, wasn't it, having a girl in your office, taking dictation, seeing people for you, answering your phone, clattering her pretty fingers over the typewriter keys, who had everything, whose father could buy and sell you?

He held out his hand. "Merry Christmas," he said solemnly.

He wouldn't see her until Monday, he remembered. But——

He said, "I don't suppose you could come up and see Billy and his tree?"

She cried, "I'd love to!" She was due at the Emersons' on upper Park avenue at noon. But before that she would be free. She suggested, smiling, "Shall we say eleven?"

"That will be fine," said Bowen.

He left the office shortly before she did, and Joan walked home with her little package clutched tightly in her hand. There was plenty of time now before dinner to do all the things she wanted to do without rushing. The flat, when she went in, was full of flowers. "I put 'em in vases, Miss Joan," reported Lily. "I was afraid they'd fade. But maybe you'd like to do them over?"

Lily's idea of decoration was to jam large quantities of flowers in whatever vase would hold them.

Joan, pulling off her hat, read the card which had come with the big box. Tommy, of course. Sweet of him—and the flowers were gorgeous. She rearranged the vases and then put Bowen's package in the pile on the card table in the corner of the living room. It was growing. Her mother and father had sent an enormous carton of separately wrapped gifts, and her many friends had remembered her.

She had bought a little tree to stand on the table, and now she trimmed it. There was holly at the windows and mistletoe over the mantel. She thought, This is the first year I haven't hung up a stocking. It made her feel odd and lost and rather forlorn. She'd always hung up her stocking . . . it was a little ceremony, generally attended by her parents, no matter how late she might be on Christmas eve at some party or other. Growing up hadn't changed it.

On the table was her gift to Bob Deering, some books he had mentioned that he wanted to read. And there, too, something Adelaide had sent her and asked her to give him. "If I mail it to him he'll open it sure as shooting," Adelaide wrote from the sanitarium.

Joan had a scented, leisurely bath and dressed in one of her slim dinner frocks, tailored lamé—very becoming—and was putting the finishing touches to the table when the phone rang.

"Joan? . . . This is Bob." His voice was tired and harried. "I'll be a little late, I'm afraid. Half an hour. Can you manage?"

"Of course," she said instantly. "Don't worry; come when you can."

She went out to instruct Lily to hold things back and to put the cocktails she had mixed back in the icebox. Then she sat down to wait.

He came in three-quarters of an hour later, looking very worn. But his face lighted when he saw the brave little tree and the packages heaped under it, the candles on the table, the fire flickering on the harth, and the holly. He said, drawing a deep breath: "It smells good. It is good."

"What happened?"

He disposed of his outdoor things, cast himself in a chair while Lily served the cocktails and appetizers. "I've got a very sick man on my hands," he said. "Pneumonia. But he'll make the grade, I think. I'll have to stop in again this evening—late——"

"Perhaps on our way to church," she said. "We'll leave early. It's all right; do try to rest and relax. You look just dead."

"I am," he admitted, "but I'm coming to life again."

They had their dinner, and afterward sat together at the fire and talked. They spoke of Adelaide. "I hope she had her things all right," said Joan anxiously. And Deering smiled at her, his fine, tired face less fatigued now, the lines all smoothed out. "I suppose you sent a carload," he said. "Tell me about it."

"O, just the things I thought she'd need," said Joan, "and some very frivolous gifts to amuse her. It's horrid to have all practical presents when you're ill, I think. I sent some silly bed jackets, and a lot of books, and some perfume, and—well, I can't remember——"

He said slowly: "You're more than generous, my dear. So much of you goes into the things you do."

She said: "Look, after church we'll come back here for a while. I'm going to open my things."

"But it won't be Christmas."

"Yes, it will. Besides, we're phoning Adelaide. It won't be too late, with the difference in time."

She went with him in his small, shabby car to the house in the dull, dreary district where he was to make his call, and waited for him outside. The night was clear and lovely and very warm for the 24th of December. Joan sat with her hands folded in her lap and thought of Deering's work and the exactions it asked of him. She liked him very much; she admired him as much as she liked him. Adelaide, she thought, was a very lucky girl.

When he came out he looked years younger. There was no need to ask him if his patient were better and had turned the corner. She knew that he had. That would be, she thought, Deering's real Christmas present—the knowledge that he had fought death successfully.

They went on to the church which the Armstrongs attended and sat together in the radiance of candles and listened to the choir singing, the ringing of joyous bells, the throbbing of the organ. There were tall, lighted trees and a scent of pine. There was peace and hope and a serenity of heart which both felt and acknowledged in a glance. And when they left Deering said: "Thank you for that, too. It's been a long time since I was in church. And it did me good."

● ● ●

BACK at the flat, with Lily gone, laden with her Christmas gifts, there was a moment of embarrassment at being alone together. But it passed very swiftly and Joan went to the telephone and put in her call for the sanitarium and Deering's uncle. If they reached him they might be able to reach Adelaide.

They sat and waited till the bell rang shrilly, and Deering took the call.

"Uncle Jim? This is Bob. Yes. And a merry Christmas to you, sir. How are things?" He listened a moment and then said: "We—Joan Armstrong and I—want to talk to Adelaide. Can it be managed? But first will you tell me how she is?"

A moment later he turned from the instrument, smiling. "She's fine," he said, "and they've gone to plug a phone in her room. It won't take a minute." Then he looked horrified. "When I think of what this is costing!" he said.

"Don't think," advised Joan, laughing.

But her father had been right. She liked having people in for cocktails and dinner, simple but excellent little meals. And she liked long-distance telephoning. She called her parents at least once a week, and she could not have done it on Adelaide's forty—that much was certain!

Now Bob was speaking again. "Adelaide . . . Merry Christmas to you, my dear, and how are you, anyway?"

He listened for a while and then gave the telephone to Joan. "She's as excited as a kid," he said, and Adelaide's voice came to Joan over the many miles, clear as a miracle. "This is really Christmas," said Adelaide. "It's so good to hear your voices."

It wasn't Christmas yet out there in the southwest, but it was Christmas in New York. When Joan had hung up she turned and held out her hand. "Compliments of the season, doctor," she said solemnly. "And now let's open things."

She gave him her bulky package, laughing at his expression. And fell to her own. . . . The things from her parents, the perfume she liked best, lingerie, a new silver fox scarf, a lapis necklace. "I'm saving some things for tomorrow," she told Deering. But she opened Bowen's package.

It was a charming compact in the heavy, beautiful Danish handmade silver. She held it in her hand and said slowly, "That was very kind of him."

"Of whom?"

"Mr. Bowen."

She explained more fully than she had intended. All about Billy and the tree. But Deering's quiet face made her feel that perhaps an explanation was called for. He said later awkwardly:

"I haven't much for you, Joan. . . . You don't know how I appreciate the books. But remember you told me you wouldn't hang up your stocking this year. So I—brought you one of mine."

He went to his overcoat, produced it—a golf stocking, rather the worse for wear, and crammed with various odd-shaped packages. Joan took it in her hands, laughing. But she felt more like crying. The time he had taken, and the trouble . . .

She said: "I'll save it till tomorrow. Today, really."

"Good." He beamed down at her. "Have a good day. And thank you for everything."

They were standing near the fireplace. She said, "Well, I know it isn't according to Hoyle, but there's mistletoe and everything." She drew his head down to hers and kissed his cheek lightly. "And a very merry Christmas, Dr. Deering," she said.

She thought a moment later as the door closed after him that she shouldn't have done it. She had involuntarily spoiled a very happy, friendly evening. For he had stepped back, looked so strange, said, "Don't!" in a strangled voice—and then he'd laughed and said: "I didn't mean that. Thank you again."

But he had meant it. He hadn't wanted that friendly, impulsive salute. But she'd meant it. He looked somehow so lonely. Even when he was laughing. And Joan had kissed a dozen men as lightly, in just such a spirit of friendliness. It didn't mean anything but that nowadays.

You ran into some one you knew and liked, and you cried, "Well, Joe, for Pete's sake, it's been a million years," and you went right up and smacked him soundly because you liked him and were glad to see him and he was a right guy. And Joe—or whoever he was—didn't mind. But Bob Deering did.

"Well," she thought ruefully, "I'm no proxy for Adelaide there."

Tommy'd kiss her tomorrow. But it wouldn't be lightly, and she wouldn't be able to escape. She had given up bestowing careless caresses on Tommy some time before. Not that she minded Tommy kissing her. On the contrary, she liked it very much. So that was the reason she couldn't permit it or participate any more, because it wasn't fair to Tommy. You couldn't go around marrying men just because their technique in kissing was pleasing to you.

She looked at the tossed Christmas wrappings and the presents as yet unopened. They could wait till tomorrow, but she carried the silver compact to her bedroom and put it on her night table, and right beside it the stocking that Deering had filled for her.

It was a strange awakening for Joan that Christmas morning. Sunlight slanted in on the floor, and there wasn't a sign of snow outside the windows. Nor were there voices calling outside her bedroom door: "Wake up, wake up; it's Christmas."

She sat up in bed and rubbed childishly at her eyes with the back of her hand. Absurd and pretty picture. Five foot three of lithe, satin-skinned youth in a pale blue chiffon nightie, the honey-colored curls tousled and the blue eyes wet—crying a little on Christmas morning because she missed her father and mother. . . . Five foot three of sophisticated young woman of Manhattan, with a successful debut and a string of broken hearts in her past. Five foot three of Business Girl who was making good despite her handicap of too much money.

The telephone rang.

JOAN reached for the instrument and uttered a choked, inquiring "Hello . . . ?" And then Evelyn's voice came back to her, clear and sweet. "O, hello, there," cried Evelyn's daughter, "and merry Christmas to you, too."

So that was all right. At the end of ten minutes she replaced the instrument, smiling, having talked to both parents. And then she reached for the stocking Bob Deering had filled for her.

Silly little gifts, clumsily wrapped. A pencil with various colored leads, a tiny notebook, a pin of wood carved into a ridiculous dog, a very small bottle of perfume, three handkerchiefs, children's size, with fairy-tale legends stamped on them; a match box that wound up and went off, two rubber packages of chewing gum—a dozen such things—all in white tissue and tied with red ribbon. He had taken so much time, gone to such trouble, and he was the busiest person she knew. Her eyes were misty again when the last little package was unwrapped.

She picked up Bowen's beautiful compact and held it in her hand—heavy to hold, smooth to the touch. Then she looked at the clock on the bedside table—and shrieked aloud. "Holy mackerel!" exclaimed Miss Armstrong. "It's nearly ten!"

Out of bed and into the kitchenette. Coffee to perk and the orange juice to pour out of the thermos in which Lily had left it; back to the bathroom to run a bath . . .

At precisely eleven she arrived at the Elsworth, a sprig of holly pinned to her furs, laden with packages for the Emersons, and her face flushed with hurrying. She went on up to the larger of the Bowen apartments, and Bowen himself opened the door. He was laughing, and his hair was decidedly mussed. Billy Junior was with him.

"Merry Christmas!" he greeted. "And this is Billy, who's so glad you came."

Billy advanced and offered his fragile hand. He was handsomer awake than sleeping. He had an air of dignity which was strangely touching, and he was, she saw at once, far too grown-up for six years. He wished her the compliments of the season gravely and smiled fleetingly when his father explained:

"Miss Armstrong is the lady who helped Santa Claus select your gifts, son—and added a few of her own. You remember, don't you?"

Billy remembered and said, "Thank you very much," in his sober, almost stilted way. And Joan's heart yerned over him. He was a dear infant—but not at all like the little boys she knew. She thought of her Cousin Anna's children—one of them Billy's age—stout-hearted, sturdy, mischievous youngsters, with good manners but a twinkle in their eyes—jolly, full of the devil.

"Won't you show Miss Armstrong your tree?" asked Bowen.

Billy nodded and took her hand. They went into the living room and through to the library. There the tree stood, glittering and gay, with the toys released from their wrappings all around it. And Billy asked solemnly, "Isn't is beautiful?"

It was beautiful, Joan admitted. She smiled at Billy's father and then remembered Billy's aunt.

"How is your sister-in-law?" she asked.

"Much better. She'll be up in a few days." He hesitated, looked boyishly confused. "I hope," he said, "that you will do us the honor of dining with us when Anita has quite recovered. She will want to thank you personally for all you've done for Billy."

"Which reminds me of my compact." She opened her big flat suede bag, the lether exactly matching the bench-made shoes on her small feet, and took the compact from it. "It is so very lovely," she told him. "I'm most grateful——"

"I'm glad you like it—we both are, Billy and I——"

Billy looked up. He was on his haunches, winding up a little toy. The key slipped in his small fingers and he frowned and shook his head. A muscle in his face twitched. He was obviously an extremely nervous child.

"Here, let me," cried Joan.

Down on her knees, her furs cast aside, her hat and packages on the floor, laughing, explaining. "You can do it perfectly," she said. "You just haven't got the knack of it yet. Look. There. Away she goes. Let's take it off the rug. It will go better on the floor."

Here was some one who didn't patronize him, fuss over him, keep protecting him or talking down. She knew he could wind it up once he knew how. Billy regarded her with the utmost gratitude.

● ● ●

AT A QUARTER of twelve Joan rose from the floor and cried, "But I'll be late!"

Bowen, smoking in a big chair, was watching her. He rose, and Billy scrambled to his feet and took her hand. "Must you go?" he asked earnestly. "Couldn't you stay with us?"

"I wish she could," said his father instantly, "but she's going to a party."

Joan patted Billy's shoulder. She wanted to hug him, to kiss the soft, delicious curve of his cheek, just passing from the uncertain contours of babyhood into the more clearly defined lines of little boyhood. But she knew too much for that. She said softly: "Perhaps some Saturday your father will let me take you to the zoo. Would you like that?"

He said: "I'd like it very much. I'm a little afraid of the elephants," he confessed gravely, "and the lions. But I like the little animals."

Bowen went with her to the door. He said: "Have a good time. I wish you could stop and eat Christmas dinner with Billy and me!" His eyes added, We are lonely, but did not say so. He went on after a moment: "I'm going away right after dinner—flying to Boston and then driving on——"

She understood. He was going to see his wife, to spend an hour or so with her at the twilight end of the Christmas afternoon. She thought, O, I hope she knows him!

But Alice had said such times were the worst.

She shook hands at the door, smiled, and went on downstairs to take a taxi to the Emerson apartment. They were waiting for her there with vast, complimentary impatience. Mrs. Emerson, pretty and witty; Mr. Emerson, large, slow, rotund, jolly, and Tommy, all of them greeting her simultaneously with outstretched arms from which she extricated herself with difficulty.

She went presently into a guest room to lay her hat and coat aside and came back to deliver her various packages—a pipe for Tommy—he said she was the only woman he knew who had common sense about pipes; a clipper ship print for Mr. Emerson, who doted on clippers and was seasick on a ferry; and a gold bangle for Mrs. Emerson, who collected charms. Then she had her own things under the Emerson tree.

Packages in plenty; a plethora of perfume and lingerie and the newest candid camera as Tommy's contribution. "Thought you might get a few really good shots around the office," he told her. But after a while he drew her aside. "I have another present for you," he said guiltily.

● ● ●

THE older Emersons had vanished discreetly and Tommy and Joan were alone. Joan took the little tooled lether box in her hand and shook her head, smiling. She had seen it before, as it had been offered to her every Christmas, Easter, and birthday for the last few years. The box was worn with handling. But the big solitaire diamond inside was as dazzling and perfect as the day Tommy had bought it. Diamonds don't wear out.

She said: "Tommy, you great idiot! Well, I'll admire it—as usual. My triannual glimpse." She looked at it, snapped the box shut, and gave it back to him.

He put it in his pocket, resigned. "Well, there's no harm trying," he told her. "Some day you'll weaken. This is the case of the stone wearing out the drop of water."

"Charming comparison," she said. "I suppose you think you'll bludgeon me into acceptance."

"I'm acting on that premise," he informed her. "How are my hated rivals?"

"Who are they—at the moment?"

"They change season by season," said Tommy sadly. "This time it's that hard-working doctor of yours and, I presume, your handsome boss."

"Bob Deering . . . but he's spoken for, I think," she said, laughing. "And why should you assume Mr. Bowen?"

"O, it's routine, he told her gloomily. "Beautiful secretary, handsome employer. Just one of those things, darling."

She said, "Mr. Bowen's married."

"Yep. I know all about that, too. I took pains to find out. But his marriage——"

"Is pretty sad," said Joan quickly. "Tommy, show me what you drew for Christmas."

"So saying, she changed the subject," he murmured. "Well, come view the loot. It includes a set of golf clubs which is a honey. I'll break eighty with 'em. . . . Heard from your family?"

The rest of the day was pleasant; an enormous dinner from which every one recovered slowly and in almost complete silence, a drive for fresh air and digestion in the cool, sunny park, and before supper a walk with Tommy along almost deserted streets. He took her gloved hands in his and swung them.

"You see," he said seriously, as if they were continuing a conversation, "we could have such a good time together. We like the same things, our people like each other and us. Joan, don't be so darned stubborn. First thing you know you'll be a hundred years old, with a gold-headed cane and a bath chair, and I'll have a long gray beard and partial paralysis. But I'll still be faithful."

"I'll still be a stubborn," she prophesied, laughing. "Tommy, snap out of it. You've known me so long you are just confusing affection with something else."

"Is that so? Shall I demonstrate the difference here?"

"No, don't, for heaven's sake; we'll be arrested. Darling, do have sense. There are so many other girls——"

"I don't want 'em. Think I'm an oriental? Woman, you horrify me!"

"Do I? It's become a matter of pride with you, Tommy. Talk about being stubborn! You've set your mind on conquering my obstinacy, that's all. I bet you've seen a dozen blondes, brunettes, redheads, what have you, and cast many a wishful look at 'em and wished that I weren't in your mind, holding you back. You just sort of set yourself a task, that's all. You'd feel terribly flat if I said yes—as if the race were over and there wasn't as much in winning as you thought. I wish, just for fun, you'd give up!"

"That's a fine thing to say!" he told her indignantly.

"Well, it's true," she argued. "You've always had everything you wanted. Except me. And so I've become a sort of—of symbol!"

"The kind of thing you clash?" he inquired.

"Don't be an idiot!" They were both laughing as they turned homeward, where supper waited for them. Mrs. Emerson's servants want out after supper for themselves. There were a half dozen guests coming in besides Joan, and they invaded icebox and kitchen, sliced turkey, shook cocktails, and had a generally uproarious time.

● ● ●

ONE of the guests was an extraordinarily pretty girl, the niece of an old school friend of Mrs. Emerson's. It gave Joan great pleasure to put her in Tommy's path whenever she could, as the child obviously admired him—with an extravagant southern accent.

"Three drinks and one look at her," whispered Joan to Tommy, "and you're gone with the wind."

"More like a hurricane," said Tommy, regarding the southern girl with respect. Every man in the room was waiting on her except himself, and he was en route to her side with an order of aspic.

After things had been cleared away, and only two glasses and a plate broken, they went to the library, where a screen and projector had been set up, and Tommy ran a couple of comedies for them. It was late when the party broke up and Tommy drove Joan home. On the way it occurred to him to inquire:

"By the way, what happened? I mean, why did you change our plans? I was to come for you this morning."

"I found I had something to do beforehand," she said evasively.

"What?"

There wasn't any sense in making a mystery of it. She told him about Billy and the tree. He commented after a moment:

"Making a nursemaid out of you already, eh?"

"Don't be silly," said Joan sharply. "I was glad to do it . . . Billy's a dear little boy."

"But you didn't know that when you went up there. He might have turned out the world's worst brat for all you knew."

She said: "O, Tommy, you are being stuffy. After all, I am working for Mr. Bowen."

"Worse luck," said Tommy.

So in a way the day ended on a note which was slightly off key. And at her door he insisted on kissing her—"for Christmas"—with or without permission, and the salute was the reverse of fraternal. She pulled herself away, sighing.

"I thought we'd fought this all out," she said.

"We have; you have a lot of nice, logical reasons why I shouldn't kiss you, damn it. But this is a holiday."

"Not any more," Joan reminded him, and shut the door.

But she hadn't minded the kiss, she'd liked it; she'd been lonely all day, after all, and it was pleasant to know that some one loved her very much. Or did he? Had she been, was she only a symbol? She didn't know, and, suddenly tired, she didn't care.

Walking into her room, she wondered what Bowen was doing, if he had stayed up in Massachusetts. Standing by her bedside table, looking down at Bob Deering's little stocking toys, she was thinking not of Bob, and not of Tommy, who had just kissed her—not too much against her will—but of Bowen, and realizing with a tightening heart that it was a long way until Monday until she saw him again.

'Bachelor Born' Opens at Selwyn Tonight

By Cecil Smith

The Selwyn theater is not being allowed to lie idle this winter. Tonight, only twenty-four hours after the premature departure of "Our Town," a new comedy called "Bachelor Born" takes over the Dearborn street playhouse. The play arrives with the recommendation of excellent and sustained patronage in the east. Its New York run lasted a year and necessitated the use of no less than six different theaters.

One of the houses of an English boys' preparatory school provides the milieu for "Bachelor Born." The action stems from the conflict between a sympathetic housemaster and a cold, remote headmaster. The boys in the school find life complicated enough because of the opposing attitudes toward discipline held by the two men. Then, to complicate matters still further, three young girls—godchildren of the sympathetic bachelor housemaster—enter upon the scene to confuse their godfather and to set the boys in a complete whirl.

The mood of "Bachelor Born" is that of light and gentle comedy, touched with pathos and human warmth. It tells its tale without recourse to dirt or undue sophistication.

Marcella Swanson

Ian Hay, the author, is better known as Maj. Ian Hay Beith. At one time he himself was housemaster of Fettes college, Edinburgh, Scotland. He also found time then and later to turn out some twenty successful novels, from one of which (originally entitled "Housemaster") the play "Bachelor Born" is derived. Probably his best known book is "The First Hundred Thousand."

'Jeremiah' Draws Respectful, but Unenthused Response

Theater Guild Stages Zweig's Anti-War Play

By Burns Mantle.

NEW YORK.—[Special.]—As you very well know, the prophet Jeremiah was a discouraging fellow. A prophet of doom was Jeremiah, a persistent thorn in the flesh of the militarists and the jingoists. There was never a victory in war, said he, even the victors inevitably being the losers. Why did foolish people continue to flout so obvious a truth? And why, O why, did the good Lord not reach down from his heaven and clear the earth of its intriguing war lords and clarify the minds of the people? But even as Jeremiah continued to cry peace, peace, there was no peace.

In 1917 a young Austrian who hated war, by name Stefan Zweig, by calling a writer, by happy accident a friend of Gustav Rolland and other leading pacifists, determined to do what he could to replace the passion for war that was sweeping Europe with a passion for peace. He first thought to base his story on the dire prophecies of Cassandra, the unpopular prophetess of the Trojan war. Then Jeremiah came into his mind and he saw himself as a sort of modern Jeremiah standing in the market places trying to reason with a war mad people and being pushed around for his pains.

The play "Jeremiah" that resulted was, curiously enough in the light of present day condtiions, permitted publication in Germany and was produced in neutral Switzerland in 1917, at the very height of the war, by a German company. After the war it was frequently given in both Germany and Austria. Now, of course, it is ruthlessly burned and banned.

Last week the New York Theater Guild, as its third subscription offering, gave the first English spoken production of "Jeremiah" and drew a respectful but not an enthused response from its subscribers. This may be traced to several things. For one, in "Jeremiah" it is the people who clamor for war. Today it is not the people but the militant and self-absorbed war lords who are the sword rattlers. For another, this is a time of general lamentation, and in the midst of so many prophecies of doom it is contrast, rather than duplication, playgoers seek in the theater.

In "Jermiah" the prophet opposes the people in their demand that King Zedekiah promote a war with Nebuchadnezzar and the Assyrians to determine world supremacy. They ride him down and go to war. When the siege of Jerusalem is at its height he pleads for peace and is again repulsed. When Jerusalem falls the people turn to him as a true prophet and would make a hero of him, but still he is powerless to help them because their hearts are not cleaned of the war lust. He has cursed God in his failure, but comes again to the faith at the play's end.

It is somber, depressing drama, well done, which is the type of drama that starts arguments and dies at the box office. Arthur Byron, the Zedekiah, and Kent Smith, the Jeremiah, carry the best scenes of the tragedy with dignified and forceful reading. The settings, costuming, and stage pictures are impressive.

Maurice Evans, that gifted young English actor who had to come to America to be properly appreciated, has added another Shakespearean character to his stage studies and another hit to his imposing list. This is a quite perfect portrait of Sir John Falstaff, Shakespeare's fat knight, known to most playgoers as a sometimes dull, sometimes amusing fellow who figures chiefly in "The Merry Wives of Windsor."

The story goes, and has gone for a couple of hundred years, that Shakespeare, having put Sir John into the first of his chronicle dramas, "Henry IV.," as an aid to comedy relief, was afterward induced by Queen Elizabeth to write him also into "The Merry Wives" as a fat man in love. If the story is true, Master Will failed to improve the fat one's attractions by the move. He is much more fully rounded, physically and mentally, and a much more interesting human in "Henry IV." than he is in "The Merry Wives."

Evans, who is comparatively slight of build, as you may recall from his Richard II., manages, with the use of a trick suit in which crinoline and inner springs figure largely, to assume a massive physical build without breaking out of the picture frame. His cheeks are as round and solid as were Helen Hayes' the time she grew stout as Queen Victoria, and there is a fat man's amiable humor flashing from his eyes.

He is a jolly old liar, braggart, roisterer, and general waster. He may be as wide as a church door, but he is not as deep as a well, and there is not enough to him as a character to make him anything more than a repertory item in any actor's list, which is probably the reason he has never been popular with the players. James H. Hackett was about the only American actor who ever made much of him. Otis Skinner played Sir John at a Players' club benefit in 1926, but Mr. Skinner was too instinctively the gentleman to get full value from the characterization.

Evans fairly revels in the rôle. His gentle speaking voice [he was a singer of parts in his youth] has taken on a fat throat's huskiness, he rolls as he walks, he is slyly humorous. When he comes to the battle scenes he galumphs about the stage with the grace of a small motor truck, carrying a campstool and a flag of truce. And when he takes his ease in his inn he takes vast delight in his tankards of sack and his goings on with Mistress Quickly.

Margaret Webster has done the staging and it is splendidly done. The supporting troupe includes a couple of young and little known actors, Wesley Addy playing a fiery and impressive Hotspur, and Edmond O'Brien a gentle and likable Prince Hal. Mady Christians has a scene as Lady Percy, Charles Dalton is again the Northumberland, as he was in "Richard II.," and Irene Tedrow the Mistress Quickly.

We have had "An Evening in Cathay," which is being promoted by a Chinese cultural mission in the hope of raising funds for medical supplies that are to be sent to the war torn sections of China. It is an entertainment given by gifted amateurs from Shanghai, the equivalent of our Junior Leaguers, I understand.

The enteptainers include several professors from schools of music in Shanghai and they play the instruments of an ancient China most beautifully. In place of the raucous and squealing music that we naturally associate with the Chinese, these classicists are able to produce a soothing and unusual series of harmonies that become fairly fascinating before the program is finished.

If it should happen that the Chinese cultural mission should come your way, and I understand the plan is to tour in the interest of raising funds for China, I hope you will be able to see and hear these entertainers for the experience as much as the pleasure you will derive. And I particularly hope you will take note of Prof. Wei Chung-loh as he plays the "pqxi pqxa," a lutelike instrument of four twisted silk strings that was imported into China from Tibet a thousand years and more before the dawn of the Christian era. The professor has acquired an amazing dexterity in thrumming and picking this instrument and the music he produces is both restful and dramatic.

There is also considerable acting in the Chinese manner by pretty Chinese socialites, a scene from "Lady Precious Stream"—done here in English a few years back, which is dramatically eloquent—and several songs and dances.

Jepson in "Thais."

The first performance of the current revival of "Thais" at the Metropolitan in New York is starring Helen Jepson and not Marjorie Lawrence as originally announced. The former soprano has sung the title rôle of Massenet's opera with the Chicago City Opera company.

IN SWING "MIKADO"

The Yum-Yum of the all-Negro cast of "The Mikado" at the Great Northern theater is Gladys Boucree. For five months the Gilbert and Sullivan operetta has been gaily "swung," and it is still going strong.

Notes of Music and Musicians

For a second time this season Eugenia Buxton, the young American pianist, will be heard in Orchestra hall. Only two weeks ago she was a soloist there on the Civic orchestra's second concert, and today she will give a recital in the same place. Between the time of her Chicago debut in 1937 and her recent appearance here, this Memphis-born artist has been touring Europe, playing in cities from Geneva to Oslo. This afternoon she will present Bach's Toccata in D major; the Bach-Hess "Jesu, Joy of Man's Desiring"; Seven Bagatelles, by Tcherepnin; the sonata in B-flat minor, a nocturne, and a polonaise by Chopin, and shorter pieces by Wiktor Labunski, Griffes and Poulenc.

The University of Chicago Symphony orchestra, conducted by Siegmund Levarie, will present its first concert of the season next Friday evening in Mandel hall, 57th street and University avenue. The program lists as the first number Rossini's Overture to "La Gazza Ladra." This will be followed by a Passacaglia and Fugue by David Van Vactor, winner of the $1,000 New York Philharmonic society prize last year. Concluding the first portion of the program will be the rarely played Fifth symphony of Schubert.

The entire second half of the concert will be devoted to the first performance in America of a cantata, "Admonition to Youth to Study Music," which is a portion of the "Plöner Musiktag" by Paul Hindemith, noted contemporary German composer. The University choirs, directed by Mack Evans, will join with the orchestra in the presentation of this work. Roy Schuessler, baritone, is to be the soloist. Both Hindemith and Van Vactor are expected to be present.

The concert is open to the public without charge for admission.

Jean Fardulli, Greek baritone, and Fred Berndt, violin virtuoso, will appear in a joint recital at 3 o'clock today in the Medinah club ballroom. The entire proceeds of this concert, sponsored by Mrs. Michael Gesas, are used for assisting the blind, supplying eye glasses to needy school children and aiding in rehabilitation programs for the sightless.

Ignace Jan Paderewski will give a recital at the Auditorium theater on March 19, at 3:30 o'clock. The great pianist and statesman will be making his twentieth visit at this time, although his tours have been spread over forty-seven years. The pianist's last concert in Chicago was on March 12, 1933. Henry E. Voegeli is the local manager.

"Four Musicales Uniques" will be held at the Joseffer-Bendix studios, 2633 Hampden court, this spring. They will fall on the third Sunday afternoon of every month from February till May. Anna Thelma Joseffer, violinist, will be the first recitalist, playing next Sunday.

A new activity of Chicago's Federal Music project now in progress is the presentation of "Ten Musical Matinées for Young People." This is a series which began yesterday afternoon at the project's concert hall, 632 North Dearborn street. Featuring the American Concert orchestra, under the direction of Ralph Cissne, the programs are given every Saturday at 2 o'clock. They are designedly short, and contain biographical and explanatory remarks regarding the composers and compositions represented. Since the concerts are for the benefit of grammar and high school students, the admission charge is very small.

'Bachelor Born' Opens Tonight at the Selwyn

Although his rôle in "Bachelor Born" is not a leading one, Jack Merivale, 21 years old, will be an object of special interest to admirers of his father, the illustrious Philip Merivale. Jack first tried out his wings on the stage of Rugby, the celebrated English public school. His parts here ranged from Drinkwater's "Abraham Lincoln" to Lady Macbeth! His only American stage experience previous to "Bachelor Born" was in "Lorelei," a short lived anti-Nazi play recently produced and ignored in New York.

Another interesting member of the cast, more than three times as old as young Merivale, is Richard Temple. He inherits a celebrated name, for his father, also named Richard Temple, created many famous Gilbert and Sullivan parts with the D'Oyly Carte company, including Dick Deadeye in "H. M. S. Pinafore" and the pirate king in "The Pirates of Penzance." The present Richard Temple has sung most of his father's rôles in this country. He has also played a number of nonsinging parts, notably with Margaret Anglin in "A Woman of No Importance" and "A Woman of Bronze."

The Erlanger theater will be relighted on Feb. 26 with "What a Life," a successful comedy by Clifford Goldsmith, produced by George Abbott. Full details of the cast are not yet available. Some of the players, however, are said to have appeared here in "Brother Rat," an earlier Abbott production.

"Angela Is Twenty-Two," the domestic comedy by Sinclair Lewis and Fay Wray, will defer its visit to Chicago for a few additional weeks. Its presence may still be counted upon as an adornment of the spring theatrical season.

"I Married an Angel," the long awaited musical, will take possession of the Grand Opera house on Tuesday, March 7. Now that Dwight Deere Wiman has brought his newest lyric product, "Stars in Your Eyes," to Broadway, it is time for him to send his earlier success on tour. Mr. Wiman seems to have committed himself to the notion of turning ballerinas of the Ballet Russe into musical comedy stars. "I Married an Angel" placed the name of Vera Zorina in the white lights for the first time opposite Dennis King. Now, in "Stars in Your Eyes," he is glorifying Tamara Toumanova, who was the darling of the Chicago balletomanes during the first tours of the Ballet Russe de Monte Carlo.

Later in the spring, in April or May, we are likely to see "Knickerbocker Holiday." This is a quasi-historical musical play, numbering among its characters various personages of the Dutch days of New York. The book and lyrics are by Maxwell Anderson, the music by Kurt Weill. Walter Huston is starred.

Last Tuesday Clare Boothe, quick-witted author of "Kiss the Boys Goodbye," passed a few hours in Chicago. Giving the local cast of her comedy the once over at the evening performance in the Harris theater, she expressed her agreement with the high praise generally bestowed upon Lucia Lull, the leading lady.

Unless another last minute extension is still to be announced, "The Copperhead," starring Ian Keith, ends its run at the Blackstone theater tonight. There will be an extra Lincoln's birthday matinée this afternoon.

Meanwhile the Federal ballet has its new bill in the final stages of preparation, and proposes Saturday, Feb. 25, as a probable opening date, at a theater not yet decided upon. Ruth Page and Bentley Stone are the directors of the Federal ballet. Together with Bettina Rosay and Walter Camryn, soloists, they will dance in the three items composing the program: [1] "Love Song," a revival of the ballet to Schubert music, orchestrated by Wesley La Violette and Rudolph Ganz, originally performed by the Chicago City Opera company ballet; [2] "Guns and Castanets," a modernized version of "Carmen," danced to Bizet's music, amplified by Jerome Moross' settings of poems by Lorca; [3] "Scrapbook," a retrospective glance over earlier compositions by Miss Page and Mr. Stone.

David Ogren is playing the title rôle in "The Little Lame Prince" at the Civic theater Saturday morning. On Feb. 18 and 25 the part will be acted by Cleveland Towne. Both boys are members of the Jack and Jill players, whose Saturday morning children's plays, directed by Marie Agnes Foley, have been well received in their first major downtown venture.

GOLD COAST FAVORITE

Mildred Fenton, who doesn't look her twenty years, is winning the hearts, and applause, of Gold Coast room patrons at the Drake with her specially arranged vocal numbers.

Current Music News

The program of the Illinois Symphony orchestra is limited today to three items, each of special interest, which Izler Solomon is conducting. To open the concert in the Great Northern theater there will be the American première of Benjamin Britten's "Soirées Musicales." The composer is an Englishman who, although born in 1913, has already had his works played in the 1934 and 1936 festivals of the International Society for Contemporary Music. The "Soirées" are based on original tunes by Rossini, found in two little known volumes of piano and vocal numbers published during the last years of Rossini's life in Paris. A suite in five movements, the work contains a March, Canzonetta, Tirolese, Bolero, and Tarantella.

Commemorating Lincoln's birthday, the Illinois Symphony will next offer a work of Robert Rusell Bennett—"Abraham Lincoln, a Likeness in Symphonic Form." The American composer's piece was introduced here in April, 1937, by the orchestra.

Following the intermission Jenska Slebos, principal cellist of the Illinois Symphony, will be featured in Dvorak's concerto in B minor, opus 104. Miss Slebos was presented in her Chicago debut two seasons ago by the Musical guild, which is sponsoring today's concert.

Adabelle Gross, young Chicago pianist, will be a Wednesday evening recitalist in Kimball hall this week. The first half of the program will be devoted to Harold Bauer's transcription of Cesar Franck's Prelude, Fugue and Variation; Beethoven's Sonata in E flat major, opus 27, No. 1, and "Acht Stimmungsbilder," by Nicholas Medtner. After the intermission will come Debussy's Suite Bergamasque, Casella's "Pièces Enfantines," and four pieces by Poulenc: Nocturne in C minor, "Intermède," and two novellettes.

A new lyric-coloratura soprano will make her debut tonight at the Civic theater. She is Maria Karelas of Decatur. Her voice studies have been pursued for the last six years in her home town, Cincinnati, and Chicago. The Young Ladies Philomusical Hellenic society is sponsoring the recital.

At the Abraham Lincoln center, 700 Oakwood boulevard, today's program will be shared by Talley Beatty and the Center singers. The former is one of the outstanding members of Katherine Dunham's dance group. The latter is Lincoln center's new chorus, trained by Forestine Neal and John Greene.

For the tenth successive year the Augustana college choir of Rock Island, Ill., will appear in Orchestra hall. As part of their spring tour the choir will sing there on Sunday, March 19. Henry Veld will conduct.

Feb. 28 is the date for the Saidenberg Symphonietta's final concert in the Goodman theater this season. The tentative program includes a concerto grosso by Handel, symphony by Vivaldi, concerto for piano and strings by Bach, suite from "Dido and Aeneas," by Purcell, and Milhaud's Fourth Symphony. Daniel Saidenberg will, as usual, conduct, and the soloist will be announced shortly.

Bissell Padgitt will present an hour of piano music in the Auditorium recital hall today at 3:30 o'clock. Three pupils will give the program—Marilyn Ryun, Amy Pfeiffer, and Margaret McKee.

In Orchestra hall this morning the Central Church chorus, directed by William Hughes, will sing "Father of Mercies," by Waddington, and "Be Not Afraid," by Mendelssohn. Evan Evans will sing a tenor solo by Seaver, "Just for Today," and Archer Lambuth will play organ compositions by Silver, Bairstow, and MacDowell.

The Sunday Evening club choir holds forth in the same place in the evening, singing anthems of a patriotic character. Edgar Nelson will conduct the group in Parker's "Union and Liberty," Lester's "Sail On, O Ship of State," and Willan's "In the Name of Our Lord." At the 7 o'clock service the Metropolitan Church choir, directed by J. Wesley Jones, will be featured.

Omega chapter of Sigma Alpha Iota will hold a musical tea at the Woman's University club in the Fine Arts building today at 4 o'clock. Marjorie Coupe, soprano, and Jane Van Dreese, and Roberta Hayes, pianists, will perform, while Anna Fitzu will be the guest of honor.

Concluding the first Mundelein college musical art series, Frank Sheridan will present a recital in the college theater, 6363 Sheridan road, at 3 p. m. next Sunday. The eminent American pianist comes to Chicago on a busy day for this city's concert goers. For Feb. 19 has on its schedules the following events: Yehudi Menuhin, violinist, at the Civic Opera house; the Chicago Dance council's first concert at the Goodman theater, featuring Berenice Holmes, Leyah Lucatsky, and Vera Mirova; Serge Tarnowsky, pianist, at the Studebaker theater; Izler Solomon conducting the Illinois Symphony orchestra at the Great Northern theater, with Aveah Kogan as piano soloist; the Chicago Business Men's orchestra under George Dasch in Orchestra hall, plus Robert Quick and Milton Preves, violinist and violist, and performances of "Cavalleria Rusticana" and "Rigoletto" in Kimball hall by the American Opera company.

N. Y. Body Sees Peril in State School Control

By the Rev. John Evans.

Federal control of the public school system which is predicted by educators as a result of proposed government grants under bills now before congress, has been condemned by many agencies. The most incisive and far reaching implications against federal appropriations for education may be derived from a report of the board of regents of the university of the State of New York, published under the title, "Education for American Life."

[The University of the State of New York is an educational accrediting body without any institution or buildings.]

Two bills are now before congress proffering federal aid in terms of hundreds of millions of dollars. One is the Harrison-Thomas-Fletcher bill; the other was introduced last week in the house by Representative William H. Larrabee [D., Ind.]. Larrabee was among the congressmen who voted against continuing the Dies committee for investigating un-American activities.

It is interesting also to note that among the nine study directors of the regents' inquiry, the basis of the report, is Floyd H. Reeves, formerly of the Tennessee Valley authority. Dr. Reeves wrote the report of the President's committee on education which advocated huge federal grants to public schools.

The motivating idea of "Education for American Life," which has obtained international recognition, is "that a great number of youths each year, with and without diplomas, not adequately educated, are being turned out by the schools of New York state.

This fact is probably true for every state in the union, but gigantic expenditures would be no solution. In the past, the report points out, there has been far too ready an assumption that "educational expenditures translate themselves directly into educational accomplishments," and that a system which spends $200 per child yields twice as good results as the one that spends half that amount, but in reality educational achievement is too elusive so simply to admit of quantitative measurement.

The problem facing American education today is caused by the fact that the system of education has not kept up with the expansion of life, physical frontiers have disappeared, and social frontiers have now taken their place. Education cannot be static if it is to make good citizens able to comport themselves in a democracy; it must grow with each advance in civilization and it must, at the same time, fit those who are to be educated.

The underlying causes of the educational lag are thus summarized in the report:

"1. The educational system has not yet adjusted its program to carry the new load imposed by the coming into the schools, particularly into the secondary schools, of all the children of all the people, with their many new and different needs.

"2. The school work for boys and girls has not been redesigned to fit them for the new and changing work opportunities which they must face in modern economic life.

"3. The school program does not sufficiently recognize the increased difficulties of becoming and being a good citizen.

"4. The educational system has not caught up with the flood of new scientific knowledge about the natural and social world which has been made a part of life in recent decades, and fails to give boys and girls a scientific point of view and an understanding of the world.

"5. The educational system has not been replanned to meet the new conditions of modern life and the new ways of living, in which the family, the church, and early work now exercise less influence, but in which increasing leisure in later life calls for, and makes possible, a rich and growing inner life."

The methods suggested by the report for the revamping of the educational system — personnel, material, and finance—have been made under the postulate that the entire policy must accord with the traditions of American democracy. Under the New York state's commission on common schools of 1812, which laid the foundation of the present public school system, the central responsibility for the leadership, but not the detailed management, of the entire educational system is placed with the regents of the university, a body created in revolutionary days.

At present, one-third of the costs of administering the schools, about $120,000,000 annually, is borne by the state. The report is definitly against any increased state appropriation for the very reason which would make federal control of education so perilous.

"The great danger of state aid must not be overlooked," says the report. "It is always easy to spend other people's money. Therefore, it is never safe to divorce responsibility for expenditures from responsibility for raising the tax. The two should go hand in hand wherever the effort is made to maintain responsible representative government. Safety is found in combining responsibility and power."

As matters now stand in New York state, about 50 per cent of per capita pupil costs is met by the state, the balance by the local taxing bodies. But in certain areas that state aid rises as high as 80 per cent.

Vaudeville

The Chicago theater's stage show this week features the apache dance team of Lucienne and Ashour, songs by Yolo Galli, a novelty and comedy act by Ross Wyse Jr. and June Mann, Alf Loyal and his dogs, and a Valentine interlude with the Singing Sweethearts. The feature picture is "They Made Me a Criminal," starring John Garfield, the "Dead End" kids, and Ann Sheridan.

The 24 Chester Hale girls, with other RKO acts, are being held over for a second week at the Palace theater, as is the film attraction, "Gunga Din." The latter features Douglas Fairbanks Jr., Victor McLaglen, and Cary Grant.

"Café Knights" is the title given to this week's State-Lake theater stage show, which features headliners from eight local night clubs. Headed by Henry Youngman, late of the Hi-Hat club's revue, the bill includes Alphonse Berge and his models, Barr and Ester, the Stanley brothers, the Three Reddingtons, Robey and Abbott, and John Gallus. On the screen Glenda Farrell and Barton MacLane hold forth in "Torchy in Chinatown."

A trio of screen, radio, and stage celebrities are to be seen on the Oriental theater's stage this week. Dixie Dunbar, Hollywood starlet; George Givet, radio comedian, and Jean Sargent, musical comedy star, head a vaudeville bill which also includes Peggy, Claire, and Helen, skaters. The two films accompanying the stage program are "His Exciting Night" and "North of Shanghai."

Howards in "Scandals".

Willie and Eugene Howard, standbys in the "Scandals," have been signed for George White's new edition, which is expected to enter rehersal in April.

Stock to Present Gitta Gradova as Symphony Soloist

Pianist to Play Twice in 5 Day Concert Series

By Edward Barry.

Whoever else is resting this week, Frederick Stock and his Chicago Symphony orchestra certainly are not. From Tuesday to Saturday, inclusive, they have Orchestra hall concerts every day.

First in point of importance, although not of time, are the two programs scheduled for Thursday night and Friday afternoon. At these two sessions Mr. Stock is presenting Gitta Gradova, a Chicago pianist whose reputation extends far beyond the city of her birth and residence. She will be heard, not in one, but in two works—the Beethoven First Concerto and the Paganini Variations of Rachmaninoff. It was in a Rachmaninoff piece, by the way, that Miss Gradova made her last major appearance in this district. She played the Russian composer's Second Concerto at Ravinia Park last July with the Chicago Symphony orchestra. Eugene Goossens conducted.

Beethoven's First Concerto, an early work full of unassuming beauty, has been played only twice before in the long history of the orchestra's subscription concerts. The Paganini Variations were introduced here by Mr. Rachmaninoff himself three years ago. He has since played them at a Chicago concert of the Cincinnati Symphony orchestra. By a curious coincidence, his other offering that evening was this very same First Concerto of Beethoven.

The purely orchestra music Thursday night and Friday afternoon consists of the Seventh Symphony of Miaskowsky and Strawinsky's "Fire Bird" suite. Miaskowsky is an immensely prolific Russian composer. In his fifty-eight years of life he has so far found time to complete at least seventeen symphonies. This Seventh Symphony is a short work in one movement.

Igor Strawinsky, high ranking Russian composer of about Miaskowsky's age, wrote his ballet, "The Fire Bird," at the behest of Serge Diaghileff, the forceful impresario who introduced Russian ballet to western Europe and who is largely responsible for its phenomenal present popularity.

Although the Tuesday afternoon concert promises no soloist, the opportunity which it offers of hearing Frederick Stock conduct the Brahms Fourth Symphony will more than make up for such a lack. Mr. Stock is one of the top living exponents of Brahms. The long exalted lines of the Fourth Symphony will be preserved by him in all of their original grandeur.

The intoxicating suite from Zoltan Kodaly's "Hary Janos" also finds a place on the Tuesday program. Such wonders as a musical clock and such prodigies of valor as a one man victory over Napoleon's army are here described and narrated with aptness and humor. The music's instrumental dress is always rich and sometimes highly exotic as well. Kodaly is a living Hungarian composer. The program opens with the "Fingal's Cave" overture of Mendelssohn and closes with the Stock Symphonic waltz. The idea for the former piece came to the composer in the course of a trip to Scotland.

Frederick Stock, although known principally as a conductor, has done his mite of composing as well. Only his own opposition, born of a delicacy which in turn is born of his position as program czar, has kept his works from better representation at concerts of the Chicago Symphony orchestra.

Saturday night's popular program is a light hearted two hours of music. There are Dvorak's "Carneval" overture, the Mozart D Major Symphony, Rimsky-Korsakoff's "Capriccio Espagnol," and the Dohnanyi orchestral suite. A highly serious note will be struck in the Sibelius "Finlandia," with which the program is scheduled to close.

This Wednesday afternoon comes another of the young people's concerts—monthly functions which fill Orchestra hall with the symphony subscribers of 1950. This week's program offers the Sarasate Gypsy Airs, with the solo violin in the hands of Aaron Rosen, 11 year old Chicagoan. Von Reznicek's "Donna Diana" Overture, a movement of the Beethoven Fifth Symphony; Bloch's "America," and the ballet music from Massenet's "Le Cid" compose the remainder of the program.

Find Piccinni's Remains.

The remains of the composer Nicolo Piccinni, famous rival of Gluck for the favor of the Parisian operatic public in the middle of the eighteenth century, have been found in the garden of an old house in Passy, at one time a suburb and now a part of Paris. When the composer died in 1800 he had been a victim of paralysis for some time. Piccinni's birthplace—Bari, Italy—has requested that his remains be sent there for sepulture.

Holmes for President.

Although George M. Cohan will leave the company of "I'd Rather Be Right," its tour will continue. When Mr. Cohan gives up the rôle which proved so congenial to him—that of Franklin D. Roosevelt—Taylor Holmes will step into his place. Mr. Holmes will be remembered for his satirical portrait of the secretary of the treasury, Mr. Morgenthau. "I'd Rather Be Right" at present is revealing its antics to the New England states.

IN RECITAL TODAY

Orchestra hall houses a piano recital this afternoon by Eugenia Buxton, who played there only two weeks ago as soloist with the Civic orchestra.

Actress-Director

It is reported that Margaret Webster will appear in as well as direct "Family Portrait." The significance of the announcement arises from the fact that this will be the second appearance on American stages of a woman who at 34 has become one of the theater's outstanding stage directors.

Miss Webster is the daughter of two famous English actors, Ben Webster and Dame May Whitty. Oddly enough, she was born in New York City in 1905—her father was then playing in "The Marriage of William Asche" in that city. But she returned to England for her upbringing, her education, and her theatrical training. After her professional debut in 1927 she appeared in innumerable plays on London and English provincial stages, and every once in a while she would turn her hand to directing.

In 1936 she was brought back to the United States by Maurice Evans to stage his Shakespearean revivals. These included "Richard II.," the full length "Hamlet," and "Henry IV"—the first and third of which were seen in Chicago last year. The critical and popular acclaim given to these productions immediately threw the spotlight on Miss Webster. During this period the director only once turned to acting, playing Masha in the Lunt-Fontanne revival of "The Sea Gull." The new play, "Family Portrait," is the work of Lenore Coffee Cowen and William Joyce Cowen, and is a study of the Holy Family. It is due on Broadway in March.

2 Top Ranking Violinists Play Here This Week

Two decades ago, or even one decade ago, an American forced to name the three top ranking violinists would probably have chosen Kreisler, Elman, and Zimbalist. Now, the matter would be very much more difficult. A new crop of sensational young fiddlers has grown up.

Nathan Milstein.

It so happens that Chicago's music schedule brings two of these younger men into town within the next week. Nathan Milstein appears in the Auditorium theater today, Yehudi Menuhin in the Civic Opera house next Sunday.

Mr. Milstein, a 34 year old Russian, burst on the American scene in 1928. Earlier he had toured extensively in Europe and played with such orchestras as Amsterdam's Concertgeblouw and the Colonne of Paris. His success has been immense, and he now averages about 100 appearances a year.

This afternoon's recital, which is sponsored by Northwestern university, but open to the public as well, promises a Vivaldi and a Beethoven sonata, a Bach Partita, a Paganini Concerto, and two Etudes by Franz Benda and Niccolo Mestrino. Arthur Balsam will play the piano parts. Mr. Milstein uses a 1710 Stradivarius.

Yehudi Menuhin was born in New York in 1917. Despite his youth he has to his credit such sensational achievements as a round the world tour in which he made 110 appearances in 73 cities.

Other out of the ordinary experiences of young Menuhin have included a debut with the San Francisco orchestra at the age of 7 and a New York recital three years later. After a short period of intensive study in Europe he played the Beethoven Concerto with the New York Symphony orchestra. This was two months before his eleventh birthday.

After such a busy childhood, Menuhin retired for nearly two years. He reëmerged last season.

Next Sunday's program is built around the Mendelssohn Concerto. Preceding this work are a Handel Sonata and a Bach Partita; following it come a miscellany of shorter pieces, including the Persinger transcription of Dvorak's "Songs My Mother Taught Me."

NewO'Casey Play

Sean O'Casey, the Irish playwright, has completed his first play since he wrote the allegorical "Within the Gates," five years ago. "The Star Is Red" is its name, and it discusses labor conditions in the contemporary world in straightforward prose and dramatic incident. What has been occupying Mr. O'Casey's time in the last few years is a nautobiography to be called "I Knock at the Door." The first volume of the three which comprises the work will be published in England shortly. O'Casey, aged zero to twelve, is its theme.

Empire Floor Show Loaded with Dancing

Jack Williams, a lanky, good natured chap with a lot of rhythm in his feet, taps out an entertaining series of difficult steps. He is followed by the Maehle twins in a graceful ballet number to the tune "Easy to Love."

The climax of the show comes when Miss Franklin Crawford and her partner, Joseph Caskey, weave two great individual talents into one exciting and beautifully balanced series of dance presentations. Waltz, rhumba, fast tap, and a nimble and good natured imitation of a Fred Astaire routine are in their repertoire.

Orrin Tucker and his musical family join the Abbott girls in the final ensemble number, a slightly swingy Polka featuring old fashioned costumes, old fashioned facial adornments for the glee club, old fashioned songs for Bonnie Baker and finally an old fashioned dance with the musicians becoming chorus boys.

The outstanding feature of the mid-evening "little show" is a musical creation by Roger Burton, violinist with Tucker, called "The Fly and the Fiddle." Melba Cordes, toe dancer, assists Burton in the interpretation, a well liked number. Gil Mershon, Bonnie Baker, the swinging, harmonizing Bailey sisters and the glee club, complete an all-Tucker show that could rate top billing as a floor show almost anywhere.

When Wayne King turns tough mugg and stooge to a wooden head, you can be sure there is novelty afoot. Only in this case it is a-knee, for that is where Reginald J. Trickpuss, the Dwight Fiske of ventriloquists' dummies, sits during his act in the Gold Coast room of the Drake hotel. The knee belongs to Bob Neller, straight man for the leeringest dummy on the boards. Reggie can curl his upper lip, wink, roll his eyes, tilt his nose, flap his ears, and wonder of wonders, wave his forelocks at you. When Reggie induces Wayne King to pinch hit for him as Neller's dummy it is the laugh hit of the evening.

The darling of the show still is Mildred Fenton, whose superb singing of superbly arranged songs has endeared her to the Drake's patronage. Bob Rich, the rangy baritone from Northwestern, continues his popular debut as a professional singer, and Horton Spurr, the man who dances on his shoulder blades remains to keep this deservedly popular show intact.

Chez Paree, deprived of Lupe Velez by a set of ailing sinuses, offered instead Benny Fields and Helen Morgan, two Chicago veterans who are always Chez favorites. Paul Haakon, young ballet star, Everett West, Gloria Day, and Harris and Shore, comedy dance team, complete the show. Complete, that is, except for the Fred Evans production numbers featuring the Chez Paree adorables.

The Colony club countered with another top-flight name: Libby Holman. Libby, of the throaty, "moaning low" style of singing, is on the comeback trail. In addition, the Colony club has imported a new band to alternate with José Manzanare, Lew Fidler's.

The reason the hep cats have that ecstatic look on their faces is Bob Crosby. The Dixieland band has returned to the Blackhawk after a three month absence and picked up where it left off without missing an off-beat. Featuring the Bob Cats, the All-American four, Marion Mann and a new singer, Dorothy Claire, Crosby's band puts on its usual exciting show. This time it is assisted by two dance teams, the youngsters, Orrin and Betty Lou, and the familiar comedians, Terry and Walker.

Eddie White slipped into the Royale Frolics sooner than expected. His well liked comedy has stiff competition in this most elaborate of Dennis Cooney's recent shows. Dolly Kay is back, and popular as ever with her very personalized songs. Mark Fisher scales new vocal heights with "Thanks for Everything" and a nice bit of musical comedy acting in the ensemble number "Sally." This number, with its sparklingly lavish costumes is the highlight of the show. Close second is "I've Found My Scarlett O'Hara" in the midnight show, featuring the singing of Jackie Hilliard. Individual acts are uniformly expert. Evelyn Farney is little, attractive, and a grand tapper. The Bartell Hurst foursome have an adagio routine that requires the trite word "breathtaking" to describe.

Night notes: Orrin Tucker receiving a four foot by three postcard covered with the names of fans in hometown Naperville. . . . Jay Mills, dancing, singing, band leading with the broad-A accent, coming back to the Marine room of the Edgewater Beach hotel March 1. . . . Art Kassel moves out of the Walnut room of the Bismarck before long, probably to a nearby and popular hotel spot. . . . Dwight Fiske, late of the Colony, writes eight new numbers a year, four for each opening in New York. . . . Anita O'Day could stand and let the customers be happy just looking, but for good measure she swings the hottest songs of the new Off-Beat club at Three Deuces north state. . . . Rod Drigo, of the dance team now so popular at the Stevens, is really Rodrigo. His brother is also in the business, so to avoid confusion the Continental room half of the family split the name and added the second "d." . . . Another double feature at the Aragon ballroom tonight, with Red Nichols competing with Dick Jurgens. Next Sunday night Jurgens will have Dean Hudson and his Florida Clubmen as co-entertainers. Bill Carlsen, who holds forth alone at the Trianon tonight, shares the bandstand with Hudson next Saturday evening.

LIBBY COMES BACK

The "moaning Low" girl is back in town. Libby Holman, whose theatrical star rose spectacularly in the "Little Show," is singing her blue specialties at the Colony club these nights.

Good Morning!

Well, folks, I had a perfectly lovely time watching "Pygmalion!" It's a grand movie!

This is the first full length film from the pen of George Bernard Shaw and introduces a delightful new star [Wendy Hiller will remind you of Katharine Hepburn. It is full of brilliant talk that never gets tiresome, and provides Leslie Howard with a rôle that's right up his alley.

The story was, of course, suggested by that of the mithological Pygmalion who "sculped" a Galatea after his own ideals and then fell in love with his creation.

Higgins, a professor of phonetics, bets his friend, Col. Pickering, that in six months' time he can make a lady of a little cockney flower girl, Eliza; a lady who will fool the most astute of the social élite and be clasped to the bosoms of duchesses. . . .

[It's a dangerous thing to play God, you know.]

The professor wins his bet. But—what of the girl! When he would drop her cold as just another finished experiment he discovers that a person of intelligence, beauty, and soul has, indeed, emerged from the flower girl crysalis. A thinking, loving, tortured human being who, finding herself lost between two worlds, cries:

"What is to become of me NOW . . . !"

What does become of Mr. Higgins' and Mr. Shaw's Eliza I shall let the picture show you.

I could go on and rave for paragraphs, I suppose—but why——?

Anyway you look at it, "Pygmalion" is one grand movie—and I've told you THAT before!

See you tomorrow!

Chicago Dines and Wines the French Envoy

By Cousin Eve.

The Casino made a third great success last week with a dinner for the French ambassador, Count René de St. Quentin. Only members of the Casino were eligible for the party, with a list of important friends of France invited by M. René Weiller, retiring French consul.

The delightful club in East Delaware place was decked largely with flags and attractive humans in grand regalia. It was a very white tie and diamond tiara occasion, and those who had French orders wore them.

There was a little ruffle of drums from the Mexican orchestra when the ambassador arrived and proceeded into the Fountain room where the reception took place. Standing at the head of the line was Mrs. Frank Hibbard, president of the Casino, lovely in a most chic dinner dress, cerise rose, with jacket embroidered in faint Persian colors. She presented the guests to the count, who looked most amiable considering the way he had romped about our large widespread city during the day.

A tall man with dark mustache, black hair and the high color of the Normans, he is the most dignified ambassador I have met up with in a long time. His is an impassive face, and, trying to see behind the curtain of regular features and slightly veiled eyes, one feels that nothing would surprise him. He has seen about everything in his years of diplomatic life. Charles S. Dewey wearing the collar of the Legion of Honor, and Consul General and Mrs. Weiller also received.

After the aperitif and much conversation among the two hundred guests the march into the dining room began. At the top table, which ran east and west and was backed by handsome flags, Mrs. Hibbard had the ambassador on her right and Mr. Weiller on her left. Mr. Dewey sat on the ambassador's right, having Mrs. Weiller beside him, and then Joseph Ryerson, an officer of the Casino. The other tables were candle lighted and heading them were Carter H. Harrison, Walter Cummings, Huntington Henry Robert Hall McCormick, Robert Cabell, Bowman Lingle, Orville J. Taylor, Arthur Meeker, Ambrose Cramer, H. Crompton Bangs, John Chapman, Robert J. Dunham, Col. Ralph James, and Charles D. Wiman.

To relate the story of the delicious dinner which went the way of all dinners, the champagne, the toasts, the speeches, the playing of the "Marseillaise" and the "Star Spangled Banner," the rising, the sitting, would be a long, long story. Count de St. Quentin read, for the most part, his speech. It was about the middle west. Once he referred to Charles Dewey as "the reverend," which astonished every one at first, but upon mature reflection it was because of Mr. Dewey's ancient priory in Normandy, of which he might well be abbot were it not for his charming wife and family. Mrs. Dewey's lovely decorations intrigued everybody. Her black tulle dress with garlands of black velvet flowers was quite divine, and at one side of the décolletage the brilliant crosses and stars winked and glittered.

Lots of women looked fascinating, particularly those in gray, which is one of my favorites for evening. Mrs. James Hutchins, Mrs. Lawrence Meeker, Mrs. William Nitze, Mrs. Arthur Meeker, Mrs. Walter Kirk, and Mrs. William Scudder in blue satin, Mrs. Arthur Dunham in flesh satin with crimson gloves were among the most effective.

After dinner there was bridge and dancing until after midnight. In the afternoon a very splendid reception was staged at the Arts club by the Alliance Française in honor of Comte de St. Quentin. Here the line in the beautiful lounge was headed by Robert Hall McCormick, president of the alliance; then the French envoy, and Mrs. Ralph James, who wore a lovely springlike costume and hat; then M. and Mme. Weiller.

It was certainly the most crowded party of the year, all most beautifully arranged by Mrs. John Storrs and Mrs. Milan Hulbert, who had the charming young things, "les jeunes," of the alliance pouring tea to the multitudes upstairs in the dining room. Here huge bouquets of many colored feathers decked the tables and I saw Monique Storrs, Carolyn Chapman, Eleanor Litsinger and a dozen others at the tables.

Ambassadors do not come often, but when they do we turn out in glad rags or in galoshes.

The Antiquarians of the Art institute are an old and honorable society, founded many years ago when Chicago was younger. The members are women and the name of the earliest president is swallowed up by time, but the first I remember at the grand annual January reception was an awe-inspiring character, Mrs. John M. Jewett, who stood at the head of the receiving line in purple velvet and point lace.

Then as now there was a strict membership committee, and members and guests were of Chicago's most exclusive social circles. The object of the Antiquarians' society was to present works of art to the Art institute. But it became, before the days of the White Elephant in Ohio street, a blessed repository for family heirlooms, and a good place to leave relics in one's wills.

The early receptions were held upstairs in the large galleries, but the time came when the Art institute decided to make a chic place of its basement and built a beautiful open court in the rear, with a noble fountain and barbered trees, and stone lions and things. So one goes down now to the Antiquarian teas, not up.

This year the annual party will be held Feb. 21 and the head of the receiving line will be a charming young matron, Mrs. Philip Miller, once Florence Lowden, eldest granddaughter of the late Mrs. George M. Pullman. The exhibition to be shown is the Greek collection of Miss Elizabeth McCormick brought to this country in October. Mostly it is 18th century needlework of ecclesiastical design found in the isles of Greece, curious and handsome. The whole plan of the party is to be Greek. A table with laurel wreaths, Greek sweetmeats and a Greek slave who will pass goblets of hot mulled Grecian wine. The rooms of the society are superb and worth a visit, lined as they are by magnificent rugs, furniture, and mirrors of the past. They are on the same level with the Chinese and Japanese collections, which are something for Chicago to be proud of also.

Speaking of the orient reminds me that an interesting person likely to pay us a visit soon is Mme. Wellington Koo, wife of the Chinese ambassador to France. I met her in Paris last summer and was stricken with admiration for her allure and style.

She was present at the Quai d' Orsay party for the king and queen of England in marvelous embroidered Manchu dress and a bandeau of diamonds holding her sleek black hair in a long childlike bob. Chinese women are enchanting in their eel-like costumes with slit skirt, high neck and short sleeves. Mme. Koo has taken New York by storm this winter.

Going there to arouse popular interest in her besieged country, Mrs. Cornelius Vanderbilt paved the way with a brilliant reception in the Fifth avenue Vanderbilt house. The whole of smart society followed suit with luncheons and dinners, and even dances, for Mme. Koo loves to dance, and steps out with professionals at the fashionable night clubs. She is not the most serious minded woman in the world, but she has caught the fancy of New York and is now visiting the Vincent Astors at Nassau. In March she will lecture for China throughout the country.

The Wellington Koo house, with its gardens dating back to the Mings, is one of the sights of Peking. It is called a national monument for its protection, and I wandered there once, having the permission of the government.

The house is under several roofs and there were quantities of servants and even a squad of soldiers billeted on the estate. The rooms had been entirely vacated.

The garden alone was interesting. There were no vestiges of flowers or shrubs or cooling fountains. Only queer little hooped stone bridges, winding paths, ancient stone statues, and a dear little miniature mountain built of rocks, topped by a pagoda. Weeds grew high as my head; it was dry and the sun-baked earth looked tired and sad. I did not blame the Wellington Koos for staying on in Paris.

I lunched the other day in the beautiful silver dining room of the Woman's Athletic club with a group who make up the board of the Vocational Shut-ins. To me this is one of the most effective and worthwhile of Chicago's smaller charitable boards. They have a roll call of ninety shut-in members unable to cope with life from physical disability, and marvelous reports were read describing this charity. The shut-ins' work is sold and is more than self-sustaining. The invalids are taught to make beautiful and practical things having a ready sale. And the money they earn with the feeling of being busy makes them happy and contented. Two visiting directors gave reports full of interest about progress among their patients, and Mrs. Laird Bell gave an account of ten successful out of town sales. Five thousand dollars was netted by this means.

A very quick and painless election took place when Mrs. Daniel Peterkin Jr. retired as president. Mrs. L. Edward Hart Jr. took over that office, and Mrs. Edward Robbins and Mrs. John R. Hurley became vice presidents. Mrs. Ludwig Plate is now treasurer, Mrs. Edwin E. Tullis is corresponding secretary, Mrs. William Hunt recording secretary, and Mrs. Frank Gordon head of publicity. Mrs. Kenneth Carpenter and Mrs. Joseph E. Otis Jr. were made board members.

After luncheon was a nice thrill when Mrs. Bell prepared behind a screen for one of her famous monologs, while the audience sat rapturously. The scene found Mrs. Bell abed, looking too chic in pink negligee, pillow and bed cover, ringing a bell for Anne Tullis, who presented herself in maid's dress. All the props and costumes were shut-in work.

Two women I know have taken up painting of late. Mrs. Edward Hasler seems to have much flair for it, and so has Margaret Fisher, who staged a January show in Del Quest's gallery. Miss Fisher attended Harald Kreutzberg's rehersals with Ruth Page, and some of her dancing figures are done Japanese way with a few brush strokes. Her sea and landscapes were painted at Cape Breton Island and along the rugged shores of Nova Scotia. They have much style and appear to be basically a broad and beautiful manner of seeing things.

Another form of art to break loose is that of being a band leader. When Newton Perry Jr. was a student at Yale he organized a band, joined the union, and played for holiday parties in his home town, which is Chicago, this year. Before that, his career had seemingly smouldered. Once the family chauffeur reported to Mr. and Mrs. I. Newton Perry Sr. that their heir was keeping "irregular hours" downtown. Then it was that as "Anthony Harmon" he was leading an orchestra in a Michigan avenue café nightly during the summer vacation. While being a band leader is a deviation from normal in the eyes of society, Newton has made a success and has a grand band. Everybody says so. It played at Jane Cheney's Christmas debut at the Indian Hill club and at the Casino ball given for Carolyn Chapman and Sally Perry.

Finds Phoenix Naive, but Not a 'Hick' Town

By India Moffett.

PHOENIX, ARIZ.

Phoenix is a naïve place, but perhaps its naïveté is one of the component parts of its charm. Perhaps when it is older, this Arizona winter resort will lose the freshness, or simplicity that makes it seem so much less sophisticated than its California and Florida counterparts, but coming of age may not make this happen.

It may be that Phoenix always will preserve its attitude of aloofness—childish aloofness it is, too, not snobbish stand-offishness—that makes it an independent city entirely apart from the winter hotels and ranches. It is not that the city isn't friendly and glad that middle westerners and easterners find its environs a pleasant place in which to spend the winter, it's only that Phoenicians are busy themselves leading normal lives.

They are pleased to have the winter visitors trade with them, mingle with them socially, use their attractive country club, and enjoy whatever the city has to offer, but it is for year 'round Phoenicians that the stores and shops buy their stocks, that booking agents bring noted musicians to the city, and that the country club is run. It is only the big hotel, the Arizona Biltmore, and the smaller inns and ranches, all outside the city, that are closed on May 1.

The Phoenix goes on, just as it has all winter, oblivious to the fact that the resort places are boarded up and that the winter people have gone home. The markets and groceries must notice a bit of difference in their revenue, and perhaps, the riding stables, but we'll wager nothing else in the city suffers when "the season" is over. Most of the strings of horses move on to summer hotels and ranches, however, just as "the help" in the hotels and ranches do.

Nobody in Phoenix has started exploiting the winter visitors yet. It does not cost any more to buy a riding hat, or a knitted suit, or some Indian jewelry today than it will on May 2. The society sections of the newspapers occasionally mention some of the winter visitors but there is none of the exploiting of them that one would expect to see, considering the hundreds of people who are here whose names make the best social copy in their home towns.

No one has published a social register, listing all the people who come west every winter. We don't mean the sort of social register the Social Register association with headquarters in New York publishes in many American cities; we mean the kind that is gotten up for Palm Beach and Miami. It is a local by-product entirely and lists only the winter people, a convenient publication for anyone in business in either place for it really is a sort of telephone book, smaller, but no more exclusive.

Do not infer from this that the managers of Arizona's winter resorts are not wide awake and on their toes, for they are among the best resort people in the country. Nowhere in the world are there finer hotels than the Biltmore and the San Marcos; nowhere are there better small inns and guest ranches.

The prices rank with those of Florida's best, too; there's nothing cheap about wintering in Arizona unless you come west with a trailer or a tent. You pay well for the privilege of enjoying the clear, invigorating air, the warm noon day sun, the glorious sunsets, the incomparable nights when the moon and stars seem so close that one could pick them from the heavens if only one were a little taller, or on a nearby mountain top.

Neither do I mean that the ctiy of Phoenix is a "hick" town, for it isn't that. It has a cosmopolitan population. Why shouldn't it with New Yorkers, Philadelphians, Clevelanders, Chicagoans, St. Louisians, and thousands of others whose homes were elsewhere until they came west, saw the desert and were conquered by it, among the 119,000 residents of the metropolitan area of Phoenix? It is only that Phoenicians haven't begun to realize what a gold mine they have, a gold mine that so far has been touched only on the surface.

Before long a smart press agent may turn his talents towards publicizing Arizona in the way in which, say, Miami Beach was press agented and then—half the charm of Arizona will be gone for sure. It's a vast place though, and there is plenty of space for expansion, so it will be years before any real harm can be done.

There is no more beautiful place in the southwest than the San Marcos hotel in Chandler, about thirty miles south of Phoenix. The hotel and town are both monuments to a former Canadian, Dr. Alexander John Chandler, who came to Arizona over fifty years ago as a veterinary for the state. He was working to get enough money to complete his education to doctor people instead of animals, but he became so interested in the problem of irrigating the desert that he never practiced as a veterinary nor studied any more medicine.

He studied engineering in his spare time and it wasn't many years until he saw in reality what he had dreamed of when he first arrived and saw what one rainfall could do to the desert. Irrigation canals and dams brought life to the desert and made it possible for great herds of cattle to roam the ranges without danger of dying when there was drouth. Where once only cacti and other desert vegetation grew, there now are acres and acres of citrus bearing trees and date palms.

Twenty-five years ago Dr. Chandler decided to build a hotel, a first class hotel, in the desert. "He's crazy," said the natives, "what is there in Arizona that any one would come here for?" "The climate," answered this pioneer, and how right he was has been proven by the success of his hotel and of the dozens of others that have been built since then.

The San Marcos is a quiet place, a Garden of Eden sort of place. A vista of unbelievable beauty is seen from the hotel as one looks down an avenue of clipped orange trees between attractive bungalows over the lush green of the golf course to the desert and mountains beyond. Chandler really is an oasis in the desert.

Former Gov. Frank O. Lowden and his son-in-law and daughter, Dr. and Mrs. Phillip Miller, are there now. They have been coming to the San Marcos ever since the three Lowden girls . . . Mrs. Albert F. Madlener Jr. and Mrs. John B. Drake Jr. are the other two . . . were little children. Mrs. William F. Burrows and her daughter, Miss Louisa Burrows, who came to Chandler last autumn, recently moved on to Pasadena for the rest of the winter.

Some of the residents of Chicagoland now at the San Marcos are Mr. and Mrs. Chester A. Cook of Evanston; Mr. and Mrs. Ira C. Darling of Kenilworth; Mr. and Mrs. J. Horton Fall Jr., and Mr. and Mrs. Charles R. Glover of Evanston; James E. Gorman and his daughter, Mrs. Daird A. Hack of Chicago; Col. and Mrs. Nathaniel L. Howard and Mr. and Mrs. Samuel A. Lynde, Winnetka; Mr. and Mrs. E. R. Hurlburt of Evanston; Mr. and Mrs. William Z. Jackson and their son-in-law and daughter, Mr. and Mrs. Russell T. Stern; Dr. Brown Pusey, Mr. and Mrs. Robert E. Ross, and Ralph D. Stevenson.

Mr. and Mrs. Francis R. Dickinson arrived last Monday and so did Arch W. Shaw of Winnetka. Mrs. Shaw will arrive at the end of the month. The Charles Renshaws are expected Wednesday and among others who will be at the San Marcos a bit later in the season are the George Olmsteds, the Frederick H. Scotts, Mrs. Harold C. Smith, Mrs. William H. Bush, John McKinlay, and the Walter E. Millers.

Driving back to Phoenix from Chandler, near Mesa, our eyes were hypnotized by a large roadside sign, "Kay and George Gillespie's El Rancho Grande," with an arrow pointing to a side road. Up the side road we went to another crossroads where an equally large sign directed us on to "Kay and George Gillespie's" ranch.

Kay Gillespie is the former Katharine Thorne of Chicago and Lake Forest, one of the five daughters of Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne. For five years the Gillespies lived on the ranch, a fascinating small place in the foothills, but now they live in Phoenix and the ranch is run as a guest one by the popular and attractive Don Hunter.

Last summer Ranchman Hunter went to Cleveland and married a charming young widow with two children who had been a guest for a short time on his summer ranch, a real cattle one, as well as a ranch on which "dudes" spend vacations. The Gillespie-Thorne romance was the same sort, Chicagoans will remember, but Phoenicians will not, for so many eastern girls come west and find romance that "Eastern Heiress Weds Cowboy" is not an exciting headline out here.

Remember that out here every one who comes from east of Arizona is an easterner; that every young man who can rope a steer or twang a guitar and sing a song is a cowboy; and that every gift whose father can afford to pay her way at a guest ranch is an heiress.

Mr. and Mrs. Gillespie often are at the ranch, although it is not their home now, but they weren't there when we visited it, for they had gone to California to visit the former Glee Louise Viles and her husband, Redmond Stephens Wright. Mrs. Gillespie's cousin, Mrs. Hubbell Thorne, was paying a brief visit to the ranch on her way to California from her home in Iowa.

A little later in the winter Mrs. Gillespie and her sister Mrs. Alexander B. Spence [Laura Thorne], are going to have as their guests at their respective homes in Phoenix their parents, Mr. and Mrs. Robert J. Thorne, and their cousins, the Niblack Thornes. The younger Thornes are coming on Wednesday and the older ones on March 1.

WILL BE BRIDE IN MAY

Mr. and Mrs. B. M. Weisberg of Minneapolis, Minn., have announced the engagement of their daughter, Ethelois, to James Gordon, son of Mr. and Mrs. Louis Gordon of Chicago. The wedding is planned for May 7.

Lincoln to Be the Subject of Talks to Clubs

By Betty Browning.

Perhaps the numerous links that bound Lincoln to the rising metropolis on the shore of Lake Michigan are responsible. Perhaps it is the proud knowledge that they, too, are citizens of the sovereign state of Illinois, but whatever the cause, Chigoans seem to produce more than their share of Lincoln authorities.

The oldest and the youngest of these will be among the many speakers who this week will recall for Chicago audiences the words and deeds of Illinois' most illustrious son.

Lincoln's definition of democracy which William D. Saltiel came upon at a Sterling, Ill., inn where Lincoln had stayed will be the keynote of Mr. Saltiel's address on "Democracy" before the Chicago Woman's club at its eleventh annual Lincoln celebration tomorrow afternoon. Miss Muriel Jeanne Ranney, the young Hyde Park High school senior whose essay on "Lincoln the Statesman" won the club's annual essay contest and a $100 scholarship award, will read her essay at this meeting.

● ● ●

"As I would not be a slave, so I would not be a master. Anything that differs from that, to the extent of the difference, is not democracy," Lincoln wrote in a letter preserved by the Sterling innkeeper. Mr. Saltiel noted that statement as the perfect definition of democracy when he read the letter several years ago. Never published, the letter since has been lost.

Mr. Saltiel has studied Lincoln's life over a period of years, and has visited every place associated with Lincoln, and he will draw on this background for his talk. A former city attorney of Chicago, and before that a Chautauqua speaker, Mr. Saltiel has lectured on Lincoln in virtually every state.

Mrs. Eleanor Gridley, 92 year old erstwhile campaigner for Abraham Lincoln, and Horace Sanders, another Lincoln scholar, will share the program when Aaron Miner chapter, Daughters of the American Revolution, meets Wednesday afternoon at Mrs. Gridley's home, 1549 East 61st street. Mrs. Gridley is an active member of the chapter.

Eleanor Gridley was 8 years old when she persuaded her father to take her to the founding of the Republican party under the oaks in Jackson, Mich., on July 6, 1854. Six years later she was a member of the Wide Awake Girls' club that marched and sang "Uncle Abe, Uncle Abe, he's the man, beat him if you can!" during Lincoln's campaign for the presidency.

For two months in 1891 Mrs. Gridley lived in a log cabin built by Lincoln and his father in Coles county, near Charleston, Ill. Here she heard from contemporaries of Lincoln stories about him which she incorporated in a book, "The Story of Abraham Lincoln—from Log Cabin to White House." Mrs. Gridley will discuss much of this material in a talk, "At the End of the Road." Mr. Sanders will speak on "The Love Affairs of Abraham Lincoln."

Much fresh evidence concerning Lincoln's assassination, to be incorporated in a new book, is discussed by Otto Eisenschiml in a series of lectures which is taking him all over the state and to the east this month.

His book, "Was Lincoln Murdered?" published several years ago, first called general attention to Mr. Eisenschiml's theory that Lincoln was assassinated, not by southern sympathizers, but by "inside" persons, radical members of his own party, who feared that Lincoln would grant the south too generous terms of peace. His theory hinges on the fact that Grant refused to accompany Lincoln to Ford's theater on the night he was shot.

Although Mr. Eisenschiml, chemical engineer and business man, was born in Vienna, his father, also an Austrian, was a civil war veteran, who inculcated a hero worship of Grant in his son. After he came to Chicago in the early 1900s, Mr. Eisenschiml discovered that Grant had refused to accompany Lincoln to the theater. Mr. Eisenschiml's curiosity was aroused. Resultant study led to the development of his theory. He is seeking proof of it through additional research.

The Rev. Norris L. Tibbetts of the Hyde Park Baptist church also is lecturing on Lincoln this week. He will address the Chicago women's division of the American Jewish congress on "Lincoln's Contribution to Democracy" at 2 o'clock Wednesday at the La Salle hotel.

Haym Salomon, another great American whose contribution to his country is less well known, will be the subject of a talk by Barnet Hodes, corporation counsel of Chicago, before the National Council of Jewish Women, Chicago section, tomorrow afternoon at headquarters, 185 North Wabash avenue. Mr. Hodes has made a study of Salomon's life, and has been co-chairman of a committee to commemorate his work in a monument to Washington, Robert Morris, and Salomon.

The French ambassador recently wrote Mr. Hodes that it is doubtful whether the French government could have lent the struggling colonies the financial aid so essential during the revolutionary war without the intervention of Haym Salomon. Mr. Hodes' research also has revealed the vital part played by Salomon in obtaining aid from Spain.

Salomon was associated with Robert Morris in financial transactions of the young government and gave his entire personal fortune to the revolutionary cause. These sums never were repaid. He was twice imprisoned by the British for his activities.

Catholic Society to Install Its President Today

Miss Marie F. Scanlan, recently reelected president of the Chicago assembly, Catholic Daughters of America, will be installed at a meeting at 3 o'clock today at the Palmer House. Miss Elizabeth M. O'Brien, state regent, will officiate.

Sister Vincent Ferrer of the international relations department of Rosary college, will discuss "International Disorders" Miss Sade Phelan and members of Damen court, Catholic Daughters of America, will be hostesses.

New Names Are Listed in Art Institute Show

By Eleanor Jewett.

If you visited the last three Chicago artists and vicinity exhibits at the Art institute you have seen the present exhibition which opened last Thursday in the east wing galleries of the museum. It is cut on exactly the same pattern. A few of our well known artists passed the jury, but there are many, many new names in the catalog [this exhibition has come to be a practically no jury show so far as the younger element is concerned] and on the list of prize winners Art institute graduate students have an enviable lead.

This year the Mr. and Mrs. Frank G. Logan Art institute medal and $500 went to an academic piece of work, the portrait of L. L. Valentine, a sculpture in plaster, by Maeble Perry Edwards. Mr. Valentine is a prominent Chicagoan, well known for his deep interest in art and in the welfare of boys.

The Mr. and Mrs. Frank H. Armstrong prize of $300 went to "At the Dressing Table," by Grace Nina Stocklin; the William H. Bartels prize of $300 to Harry Mintz for "Spring Landscape Near Galena"; the Mr. and Mrs. Jule F. Brower prize of $300 to Louis Ritman for "Sadie Bell," a delightful portrait of a little girl; the Clyde M. Carr prize of $100 to "Summer Park Scene," by Nicola Ziroli; the Joseph N. Eisendrath prize of $100 to "Young Girls," by Malcolm Hackett; the Municipal Art league prize of $100 to C. Warner Williams for his charming "Study of Children," a bas-relief.

The Art institute announces the eighteenth international exhibition of water colors will open March 23 to continue to May 14. The last day for the return of entry cards is Feb. 23. The days for receiving exhibits at the Art institute are from Feb. 23 to March 2. The jury will meet March 7 and March 8. The jury of selection this year is composed of Joseph W. Jicha, Grant Wood, and Hubert Ropp.

An exhibition which will be greatly missed for its fine quality and great number of stirring paintings, pictures of both strength and beauty, is the Hoosier salon, which closed last night in the Marshall Field galleries. Prizes here were very wisely distributed. One of the loveliest of the prize winning canvases was the painting of a spring road by C. Curry Bohm. It won the Daughters of Indiana purchase prize and will hang at the Oak Park High school with the delightful group of paintings owned by that society. Another intriguing prize winner was "November Hills," by Karl C. Brandner of THE TRIBUNE, which was awarded the Butler memorial prize of $200 for the outstanding landscape in the exhibition, a choice hard to make in this show so many and important were the landscapes.

The superb painting of the dunes, "The Hills of Arcady," by Frank V. Dudley, was one of the highlights of the show, as were the exquisite "The Church, the Cardinal, and the Angel," by Paul E. Beem, and the very fine "Self-Portrait," by Marie Goth. The "Red and White Flowers," by Edgar Forkner, was brilliant, inescapable, and the "Slave Block," by Edmund Brucker, which captured the first prize, was an unusually fine piece of story telling and a strong piece of painting. This is one of the most satisfactory prize pictures we have ever met with; indeed, if the truth must be told, all the prize awards in the Hoosier salon this year were well given. In each case the merits of the work were obvious and reasonable.

We hate to leave this exhibition, even in thought. It was one of those rare shows filling the needs of eye and mind and soul which today we only know, as a rule, through hearsay. May the 1940 salon be as good!

A current exhibit, which continues the refreshing work begun by the Hoosier salon, is that of paintings by Edward Grigware, Rudolph Ingerle, and Nina K. Griffin at the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue. This is a tremendously exciting show with brilliant paintings by three of Chicago's most important artists. Chicago still claims Mr. Grigware, though last spring he moved his studio and belongings to Cody, Wyo. This is his first exhibit since going west.

Mrs. Griffin shows a number of water colors, beautifully done. She gets amazing effects on a large canvas. Her pictures are thrilling in technique and composition. She has an unusual flair for color and a brush of such fine accuracy that rarely does she retrace a step; perhaps one had better say "never," for water color does not lend itself to a stumbling or uncertain hand. Water color is fast; one must be right all the time to be successful. One need not draw the moral more clearly; enough that Nina Griffin does paint a stunning picture, decorative, balanced, fresh, and stimulating.

Rudolph F. Ingerle has won an enviable reputation as a landscape painter. In recent years he has done a great deal of painting in North Carolina, and his superb mountain landscapes have captured the imagination and heart of an enormous public.

In the present exhibition Mr. Ingerle's pictures are hung in the first gallery. They should prove the Mecca of every lover of good painting in the city. Here are strength, beauty, charm, skilled technique, magnificent craftsmanship, a thorough knowledge of a countryside, and the evidence of an eye which finds splendor in humble things, divinity in a beggar. A great painter and a good painter, our Rudolph Ingerle.

Edward Grigware shares the large gallery with Mrs. Griffin. Here again there is nothing but praise to be offered to another of Chicago's important painters. These pictures of the west bring the smell and sign of far places with them. They tell in vigorous speech of the splendors of canyon, rock, plain, and desert. Early mornings and dusky twilight, hot sun and sudden shower, Indians, cowboys, cattle, ponies, spring, summer, and winter—all of these are elements in a panorama that never lessens in interest and thrill the longer you look. The exhibition will continue through February and no one should miss it.

At the Arts club is a comprehensive exhibit of prints by Georges Roualt, whose larger oils resemble to such an intriguing extent the appearance of stained glass. The prints cover a considerable period of time and are decidedly interesting. The six enormous canvases by André Derain are absurdly obvious. He is more subtle when he has less space to cover.

The water colors by Raoul Dufy in the Quest Art galleries, 810 North Michigan avenue, strike a pleasant and cheerful note. They are gay in color and whimsical in atmosphere. "O, this Paris playboy," you sigh, and with reason.

"THE CHINESE HORSEMAN"

Nina K. Griffin is showing a stunning group of brilliant water colors at the Chicago galleries, 215 North Michigan avenue. Dividing honors with her are Rudolph Ingerle and Edward T. Grigware, both painters listed among the foremost of contemporary American artists.

Minerals in Food.

Mineral salts in some foods are much better utilized than in others. The calcium in milk, scientists find, is considerably better assimilated than that in vegetables. If digestion of fat is faulty, or if there is too much fat in the food eaten, the absorption of calcium will be less efficient. Mineral elements in foods which have an acid reaction are not so well assimilated as those with an alkaline reaction. Milk is in the latter category, while eggs, meat, fish, bread, and cereal are in the former.

Club to Have Birthday Fete on Thursday

Only illness or absence from the city will keep a member of the Chicago Woman's club away from the club house next Thursday. That entire day is to be given over to the organization's 63d birthday celebration.

Many advantages enjoyed by Chicago women and children today were pioneer experiments undertaken by the Chicago Woman's club and developed to a point where the public authorities or special groups sponsored them permanently. The organization can point to fifty years of continuous service to the School Children's Aid, thirty-five years of aid to the Park Ridge School for Girls, forty-six years of assistance to the Sarah Hackett Stevenson Memorial refuge for women and children, and to thirty-one years of infant welfare work.

• • •

Little of this, however, will figure in the birthday celebration. It is to be a play day, with impersonations and music in the morning, a birthday luncheon, and a technicolor film, fortune telling and a tea in the afternoon. There will be a sale of gifts and bakery goods. Miss Rose Price, dramatic reader; Maref Johnsen Hattstaedt, singer, and Joan Alitzer, 10 year old child pianist, will be on the morning program. Mrs. Willett H. Cornwell, president, and three former presidents, Mrs. Ralph W. Webster, Mrs. Ozora S. Davis, and Mrs. Harvey Fox, will pour at tea. Mrs. Edward C. Higgins is general chairman of the party.

St. Valentine's day is a delightful occasion for parties. The American Daughters of Sweden are celebrating the holiday Tuesday evening at the La Salle hotel with a program of magic by Bert A. Gustafson. Mr. Gustafson is president of the Chicago assembly of the Society of American Magicians.

Some 1,200 crippled children at the Spalding school, the Martha Washington home, and the Sabin school branch of Tully High school will be given a Valentine party Tuesday. Ruth lodge No. 139, Free Sons of Israel, will be hostess. Mrs. A. Meyers is president.

The Catholic Club of Chicago will hold a St. Valentine's day dinner at 6:30 o'clock Tuesday at St. Thomas' church, 38th street and Wabash avenue. The Rev. Paul Severance, O. S. B., will describe the work of the Benedictine order in the Anglican communion. Father Severance is searching for a suitable location for a branch monastery of this order in the United States. The Rev. John M. Young Jr., pastor of Christ church, River Forest, will preach at the service following.

The Credit Women's Club of Chicago will have a Valentine dinner and party Tuesday evening at the Chicago College club, 196 East Delaware place. The General Aid of Chicago is holding a Valentine social and card party Tuesday afternoon at the Midwest Athletic club. Its first card party in two years is planned by the women's division of the Electric association for Saturday afternoon at the Palmer House. The Central Eleanor club will give a card and games party Friday evening under the Eleanor league's auspices at headquarters, 16 North Wabash avenue. The little girls who live at the home maintained by the Eleanor club at 22 Maple street will hold open house this afternoon for members and their friends.

The Illinois Colony Club and Home for the Aged will hold its annual dinner dance Tuesday evening in the College Inn of the Hotel Sherman, with Mrs. Louis B. Reitman in charge. The annual dance and card party of the Illinois Order of Job's Daughters will be held Friday evening at the Stevens hotel. Louis Schwartz is chairman.

• • •

The annual card party of the Bohemian Woman's Civic club will be held Wednesday afternoon in the Cameo room of the Morrison hotel. Mrs. John Tancl is general chairman, with Mrs. K. V. Janovsky Johns, 10011 South Hamilton avenue, in charge of ticket sales. Gifts and baked goods will be on sale.

Mrs. Helene Matejka. [Marie Ort Photo.]

The Bohemian club also will meet tomorrow afternoon at the Great Northern hotel to hear a safety talk by Judge John Gutknecht and Indian songs and dances by Clear Water. Mrs. Helene K. Matejka is president.

A "don't you remember?" session will be combined with cards, games, and dancing next Saturday evening at the annual party of former residents of Clay county now living in Chicago. This dinner will be held at 6:30 o'clock at the Eat shop, 6 East Lake street.

A Frolic night is scheduled for the Kymry Society of Chicago Tuesday evening in room 405 of the Auditorium building, 431 South Wabash avenue. Ernest John heads this thirty-five year old Welsh organization, which coöperates with the Chicago Welsh Woman's club to maintain a room at the British Old People's home. Mrs. Kate M. Thomas is in charge of the party.

When Chicago Was Young: Fanny Locke Was Married to John Kenneth Mackenzie

By Herma Clark

Chicago, October 2, 1890.

Dear Julia: Such a brilliant wedding was celebrated last night at Grace Episcopal church! Fanny Locke, daughter of Dr. and Mrs. Clinton Locke, was married to John Kenneth Mackenzie, a fine looking and popular young man of Scotch descent. I think she is doing well. As Martha Junior says, the Scotch have their faults, but they do make good husbands.

Mrs. Fanny Locke Hatton.

Every branch of church activity strove to do honor to the daughter of the beloved rector and his wife and the decorations were most beautiful, all green and white, the colors of the groom's clan. In the center aile four ex-choir boys in white surplices held white ribbons. In the south aile some young men of the church, among whom I saw the handsome gentlemanly Burton Holmes, were helping in this way.

At 8 o'clock seventy-eight members of the choir, which is the largest vested choir in America, entered, singing the thrilling chorus from Lohengrin. The ushers followed. Arthur Laflin, William H. Beall, Frank Cramer, N. K. Honoré, Frederick B. Tuttle, Malcolm Mackenzie, Will Keep, and Charles MacAvoy. These men are really the cream of Chicago society, and they looked the part in their handsome evening clothes.

Of the bridesmaids I knew only Marion McKay, superbly beautiful, and the attractive Gertrude Ackerman. The others were, I think, from other cities. All were lovely in their silk muslin gowns, with green stockings and slippers, with a knot of the green and white Mackenzie plaid colors on their shoulders. The maid of honor was Miss Della Bailey.

In white tulle, the bride was a vision. She is more than pretty, for she has charm and spirit. Talented she is, too, and if she hadn't married I should think she might have been a writer, but as it is I presume she will devote herself to her husband and her home.

She came down the aile on the arm of her brother, Dr. Robert Locke, as her father was waiting at the chancel rail to pronounce the words that took her from the rectory, where she has been such a joy to every one. Dr. Locke was much moved, I could see. At times his voice was choked with emotion so that he couldn't be heard.

At the conclusion of the service the choir sang the Westminster Abbey anthem, its first performance in America: "We wish you good luck in the name of the Lord." Then, after the register had been signed and the procession was moving down the aile, they gave a chorus from "The Rose Maiden." I found myself crying as the strains of that lovely music floated after the white robed figure. Why are women so silly as to cry at such joyous occasions?

Well, enough of weddings. I was interested to see a notice in one of our papers that an eastern publisher is about to bring out Eugene Field's verses in book form. It is to be called "A Little Book of Western Verse." I hope I shall find "Wynken, Blynken, and Nod" in it. I cut that out of his column and often read it to little Esmond and Baby Julie when they come over. Will says he hopes to see "The Little Peach" in the new book. That has small merit, from a literary standpoint, but the public loves it.

And now, my dear, I must close.
MARTHA FREEMAN ESMOND.

Fanny Locke, after the death of John Kenneth Mackenzie, married Frederick Hatton, dramatic critic, with whom she collaborated on a successful play, "Years of Discretion." The Hattons are now living in California, where they have written for the movies.

"Kildare" of Joliet sends us, apropos of hair bracelets, an advertisment from the Will county directory of 1859.

Mrs. John E. Wilder [Fanny Morse], Mrs. Herman Bulkley [Mary Granger], Mrs. George Shirk [May Pearson], Miss Essie Myers, Louise Martin, and Martha and Annie McChesney.

M. Campbell's Premium Hair Jewelry Manufactory.

81 South Clark Street, Chicago.

Ladies and gentlemen having hair of friends as mementoes can have it worked into ornaments of the newest and most fashionable patterns, such as bracelets, chains, pins, ear jewels, rings, and charms of every variety, as I receive the latest designs from New York and Europe every month. I have in my establishment [sic] a first class wigmaker and am, therefore, enabled to manufacture wigs, toupees, fronts, and curls to order and warant satisfaction; also constantly on hand, braids of every description for ladies' headdresses.

"Kildare" also sends old sayings: "A fine old Irish lady picked up for a ride to church, on arrival, was unable to manipulate the lock on the car door and gracefully gave up, with the characteristic expression, 'Them that aren't used to saddles can't understand spurs.'"

A number of readers have written us about Frederick W. Root, whose name was omitted in an account of his father's birthday celebration. Among these friends is Miss L. C. Thumser, who includes a number of programs of Frederick Root's musicals—an especially interesting one was presented in Central Music hall in 1887. This program was given for the benefit of a créche at 1901 Clark street and for the Kitchen Garden association. Pupils of Frederick Root participated, for he was a famous teacher, like his father.

Pasadena Jams Music Hall for Eddy Concert

By Ruth Billheimer.

PASADENA, CAL.

It is hard to say whether Nelson Eddy was more popular as a concert artist, a film favorite, a radio star, or a bridegroom when he opened his 1939 concert tour in Pasadena Monday night.

Needless to say, the house was packed to its 3,000 capacity and hundreds were turned away, although the concert was not on Elmer Wilson's regular, subscription course.

Mrs. Eddy, blonde and petite, sat in the tenth row. She looked almost frightened as she followed a burly attendant back to the stage door through a crush of autograph seekers at the close of the concert.

Spring weddings are suddenly on the increase. The fourth son of Mr. and Mrs. Joseph Foster Rhodes, David Eaton, claimed as his bride on Feb. 4, Miss Margaret Davison Dashiell, daughter of Lieutenant Commander and Mrs. G. W. Davison Dashiell at a simple home ceremony attended only by the two families.

Patricia Wilson, daughter of the William Wilsons, will become the bride of John Bockee Deuel, son of the late Rev. Charles E. Deuel of Santa Barbara and Chicago, on the 25th at the Church of Our Saviour.

There is another Chicago name in the soon-to-be-weds, that of John Wilson Burnham, son of Mr. and Mrs. Ralph S. Burnham [née Wilson of Chicago], whose fiancée is Mrs. Sherman Cornwall [Marian Fells]. The engagement has just been announced.

For another pair of newlyweds, Mr. and Mrs. Brandt Walker [Carolin Alger], the latter's sister and husband, the Albert Buckingham Sturgeses [Molly Alger], entertained with a wedding supper at their Linda Vista home on the eve of Feb. 4 rites, also a home ceremony.

Miss Helen Hunter, daughter of the Robert E. Hunters, entertained with dinner and bridge at her South Orange Grove avenue home recently for Mr. and Mrs. Alfred Gwynne Vanderbilt. A bit of news in the households of Hunter and Rowan is the birth of a daughter to Mr. and Mrs. Robert Rowan [Louise Hunter], Mrs. Rowan being a sister of Helen Hunter.

Romanies Will Sing Saturday in Palm Beach

By Helen Van Hoy Smith.

"Glamor night" will be celebrated in Palm Beach next Saturday when the Romanies give their annual concert at the Paramount theater with Helen Jepson as guest artist. Long ago this resort succumbed to the charm of the Romanies and their lilting gypsy melodies.

PALM BEACH, FLA.

After a John Charles Thomas concert some twelve years ago the baritone was practically buried beneath an avalanche of letters from ambitious young singers who asked advice. Arrangements were made by Mr. Thomas and his parents-in-law, Mr. and Mrs. George A. Dobyne, to hold auditions with a view to forming a chorus. From fifty applicants fifteen were chosen. The only instruments available then were a piano and violin. Today the chorus has fifty members and the orchestra about sixty. Emerson Buckley is director.

Valance Board Adds Colorful Note to Window

One simple way of giving a peasant accent to a room which you have decorated in the Swedish or Swiss manner is by installation of cut-out wooden valances attached to the inside of your windows. These can first be painted with some colorful floral design in the peasant manner or can have stencils applied. Then, you may repeat the pattern and color note on the inside of your cupboard doors.

Finish Your Furniture to Suit Yourself

If you're looking for an attractive piece of furniture and want to keep within the limits of a small budget try one of the many good looking items to be found in the unfinished furniture sections of the stores. Here you can find a practical, nicely styled drop leaf table for dining or reading purposes, any number of pretty little side chairs, dressing tables and powder tables, not to mention beds, chests of drawers, hanging shelves, and book-cases.

It's easy to do the paint job yourself. Or you can apply one of the attractive light finishes that are so popular, nowadays, by simply using colorless shellac and waxing the surfaces. If you prefer maple, or walnut, or mahogany tones use a stain in any of those wood colors.

Hungary Is Giving Bridal Loans to Promote Marriage

Hungary is giving bridal loans in an effort to increase the number of marriages and to raise the birth rate. The government lends 400 pengoes [about $145] to each newly married couple. The loan must be repaid within ten years, unless the couple have four children within that time, in which case the loan is canceled.

Two Theaters in London Are Facing Oblivion

By Ann Whittingham.

Two of London's most interesting "little theaters" are in danger of vanishing from a town

One is the New Arts Theater club which has already landed in the bankruptcy court. It has, or had, a fine modern theater and very spacious clubrooms with an impressive entrance. Its members consisted largely of theatrical people who could see the unusual plays presented there, either on Sunday night or, occasionally, on weekday nights beginning at midnight. The club was fairly expensive to belong to, but apparently not quite expensive enough.

The other "little theater" is the Players' theater, whose future is jeopardized not by financial troubles but by the untimely death of Peter Ridgeway, its founder, producer and man-of-all-work. This was a fascinating enterprise and quite unlike the New Arts. To reach Peter Ridgeway's amusing little hole you had to thread the narrow, congested streets of Covent Garden and take an elevator to a floor above a fruit merchant's place. There you found yourself in a large room, half theater and half clubroom, with bars for drinks and coffee, and a lively cabaret show which specialized in "guying" the Victorian and Edwardian theater.

It was crowded every night by a quarter past eleven o'clock. The ebullient founder was 44 and had been invalided off the regular stage by illness.

Whether anybody can be found to replace him seems doubtful. The theater was an unpretentious place, but it contributed plenty of amusing ideas to the night life of London.

Chicagoans on Cruise Ships to the Tropics

Due to erroneous information furnished the Travel editor the names of passengers listed in last Sunday's Tribune as sailing on the Georgic and on the Brittanic were incorrect. They should have been reversed.

The wild and lonely island of Tristan da Cunha will be visited by the Carinthia, which sailed yesterday on a 75 day cruise to Africa under the combined auspices of the American Express and the Cunard White Star line. Leaving for Mediterranean ports yesterday the Rex has on board Mr. and Mrs. H. W. Cardwell and their daughter, Jane, of Chicago, whose itinerary includes Egypt, an airplane flight to Palestine, Bagdad, the Persian Gulf and Arabia. On the same ship are Prof. and Mrs. J. M. Valerio, also of Chicago, who are taking their car over for a year of travel in Egypt, the Holy Land, Greece and the islands in the Aegean sea, the Dalmatian coast and other scenic places throughout Europe. Other Chicagoans on board are Mr. and Mrs. A. A. Andrews, James Mallars and Gus A. Boosalis.

Mr. and Mrs. G. W. Thatcher of Chicago sailed yesterday on the Paris for a trip to France, Germany, and England. Other Chicagoans on the Paris are Miss Ruth McNeill, who is going to study music in Paris and London; Mr. and Mrs. Jack Corliss, en route to London, and J. S. Schureman.

DETOUR By FREDERIC BABCOCK

"The human mind is full of misconceptions. At least, we have found ours to be. And sometimes you must have been fooled, when your mental images exceeded or underrated the actuality of a scene. No one place is more subject to misconception than the lands under the Southern Cross. The very words, 'tropical islands,' carry a host of romantic associations. . . . From our own faulty visions, and those of our friends, we've made a list of these imaginary tropic islands. Usually they are coral strands with a few palm trees, a deep blue ocean creeping up to white sands. In direct contrast, they may be steamy jungles which are all but impenetrable, and festooned with deadly serpents. The stock characters are beachcombers and brown maidens, and perhaps the white man in a pith helmet, lording it over his sweating coolies."

● This is set forth by two Chicagoans, Mr. and Mrs. Heath Bowman, in their new book, "Crusoe's Island in the Caribbean." . . . The volume, fascinating to travelers and would-be travelers, does a great deal to clear up the mistaken ideas concerning at least one tropical isle: Tobago, out far from Trinidad, at the southern end of the West Indies. . . . The two young authors deal with the place frankly. Instead of sentimentality, and they relate that, even though Tobago is no paradise, there is plenty of romance to be found there.

● "Tobago in the Atlantic and Juan Fernandez in the Pacific contend for the honor of being Crusoe's island," the book relates. . . . "His adventures were largely inspired by those of Alexander Selkirk., cast away on Juan Fernandez. But the original title page of 'Robinson Crusoe' describes his island as being 'at the mouth of the mighty Oroonoka,' near Trinidad. . . . Man Friday is clearly labled a Carib. And Defoe did a remarkably convincing job, though there are certainly no penguins on Tobago and when Robinson was marooned from 1659 to 1686 there were Dutch and Slavic colonies on the island and many a French and English caller."

Railroads to Start Circle Tours of Fairs

Unusually low "grand circle" railroad fares, affording an opportunity to see both the New York and the San Francisco world's fairs, as well as to visit many points of scenic interest throughout the country, will be inaugurated April 28, J. J. Pelley, president of the Association of American Railroads, announced this week. The new grand circle fares are the first of their kind in the history of American railroads and represent a substantial reduction from standard rates.

Under this plan an individual can purchase a grand circle coach ticket for $90, or a first class ticket for $135 plus the regular sleeping or parlor car charges for space occupied. These greatly reduced fares apply from all cities and towns in the United States.

Purchasers of grand circle tickets may travel from their homes to the world's fair at New York, thence to the Golden Gate International Exposition at San Francisco and back to the starting point without retracing of routes. Or the traveler may go to the Pacific coast first, thence to New York and return to the starting point. Moreover, without extra cost, a choice may be made of many attractive routes, and stopover privileges at all points will be allowed in both directions. Baggage will be checked as usual.

"The manner in which the plan operates can be seen from one illustration," declared Mr. Pelley. "A person living in Dallas can go from this Texas city to the San Francisco exposition, cross the continent, take in the New York World's Fair and return to his home, having stopped off to see many of America's scenic wonders—all at a transportation cost as low as $90. On these grand circle trips, passengers will travel from 6,300 to more than 8,000 miles by rail, depending on the starting point and the route selected."

Grand circle tickets will go on sale April 28, and can be purchased until Oct. 28, Mr. Pelley said. They will be good for two months from date of issuance. In addition to these tickets, special round trip fares to each of the two expositions will be offered by all the railroads, Mr. Pelley added.

Desert Sun Calls to Snow Dodgers

The annual trek of America's sun worshippers to the southwestern desert oasis is under way. It began slowly as always, in early December, gathering weight as the holidays approached. It is now reaching its peak.

In winter the desert does something to human beings. It lays hold of them, makes them its own, and calls them back year after year. It doesn't take one long to learn why. The southwest is the sunniest area in the United States. And that makes it one of the most attractive of the winter vacation lands.

GOING SOMEWHERE?

The City of Baltimore will make a special sailing to Europe on Feb. 21, replacing the Washington, originally scheduled to sail on that date. As announced by W. C. Lancsweert, district passenger manager of the United States Lines in Chicago, the entire ship will be devoted to tourist class, with all accommodations in outside rooms. The City of Baltimore will call at Southampton, Havre, and Hamburg on both the east and westbound voyages, sailing from Hamburg March 8 on the return trip.

Paul G. Delaporte, of the faculty of the New Trier High school in Winnetka, has completed plans for leading another students' tour through Europe this summer. The group will sail July 1 on the Bremen, visit England, Holland, Germany, Italy, France, and Switzerland, and meet a number of foreign student organizations. Much of the time is to be spent in motoring and hiking. The tour, arranged in coöperation with the Hamburg American Line-North German Lloyd, will last seven weeks. Mrs. Delaporte will act as chaperone.

The travelogue for Friday at the Fair Store will take its movie travelers on a "Campus Tour" of Europe, visiting England, Holland, Switzerland, Germany, Italy, and France. This trip will be illustrated in color and will accompany a talk by Harvey S. Olson, president of Campus Tours. Time, 11 a. m.; place, seventh floor.

Continental Europe joins the resort colony in the sun of Miami with the arrival this last week of the season's first three cruise ships from foreign ports. Several thousand visitors came on the De Grasse from France, the Empress of Australia from Southampton, and the Milwaukee from Hamburg, Germany. During this month, March, and April eight additional European cruise ships will berth in Biscayne bay.

On Tuesday resorters in Miami will see the start of the sixth annual yacht race to Nassau, in which Robert W. Johnson's boat, Stormy Weather, will defend the title she has held for two consecutive years over the 184 mile course.

King Carnival will hold court at Lake Placid from Feb. 17 to 22, and his retainers will be out in force on the bobsled run, the ski jumps and hills, frozen Mirror lake, and the ice of the indoor Olympic skating arena. Swing Time, the thirteenth annual figure skating carnival, will pack the arena to the roof on the evenings of Feb. 17 and 18, when Hazel Franklin, diminutive English ice star, leads a large cast through an array of skating numbers, presented in a modern night club setting.

Two of the most coveted crowns in the bobsledding world will be placed on the line Feb. 19 and 22, when two and four man teams will race it out at the Mount Van Hoevenberg bob run for the North American titles. Interest in the meet will be heightened by the appearance of most of the sledders chosen for places on the 1940 American Olympic bob team at the tryouts over Lincoln's birthday week-end. The North Americans, held annually in February, have been in the habit of producing the fastest times of the year at the tortuous run, which twists down the slopes of Mount Van Hoevenberg.

To the southwest what the Pendelton rodeo is to the northwest, the annual Fiesta de los Vaqueros will be held in Tucson, Ariz., from Feb. 23 to 26. This rodeo and celebration will bring together the world's best rodeo and wild west performers and will present to the visitor a graphic picture of the southwest as it was during the period of Spanish colonization.

With an entry list headed by such golfers as Eddie Driggs, C. Everett Bacon, T. Suffern Tailer and J. W. Nicoll, the Mid-Ocean club at Bermuda is preparing, with the opening Feb. 20 of its sixth annual invitation tournament, to usher in a week of gay winter festivities. Bermuda annually puts herself out to entertain the influx of United States and Canadian golfers who flock to the tournament. From the time the party sails from New York, Feb. 18, until the day of departure, March 1, it will be escorted on a round of resort fun by Bermudian hosts.

The Mid-Ocean club forms a part of a natural park hundreds of acres in extent, located at the eastern end of the main island of the Bermuda group, with grounds fronting on Harrington Sound, Castle Harbour, and the Atlantic Ocean. Offering some of the finest bathing beaches on the islands, and magnificent floral and ocean views, the grounds of the club have been utilized by club members for a guest house community.

An all expense rail tour of the south will take place next week when the Dixie Flyer of the Chicago and Eastern Illinois Railway company leaves Chicago on a trip that will cover key vacation spots. Most timely stopping off place on the tour will be New Orleans, just at the time when this famous old French city celebrates its unique and picturesque Mardi Gras on Feb. 21.

Leaving Chicago Feb. 17, tourists will have been transported from a wintry area to the spring atmosphere of Nashville, Tenn., over night. There they will visit the Parthenon, exact replica of the ancient Greek edifice, and the Hermitage, home of Andrew Jackson. Sunday will be spent at Pensacola, Fla., and from there the trip will continue to the Mississippi gulf coast. A day will also be spent at Hot Springs, returning to Chicago Feb. 24.

A. V. Moore, president of the Moore-McCormack Lines, reports the total passenger trafic on American flagships operating from the Atlantic coast of the United States to the east coast ports of South America during the month of January was nearly 150 per cent greater than the number using the American flagships in the same service in the same month last year.

Winter Cruises Take Miamians to Other Ports

By Clarissa Greene.

MIAMI, FLA. With horse tracks of the Miami area slashing at each other's throats and lids being clamped noisily on to night club casinos, the social world during the week turned attention to winter cruises. By private, chartered, and commercial airplanes and yachts visitors are off to Jamaica, Porto Rico, Mexico, and other nearby foreign shores, where such interruptions do not annoy.

Chartering one of the huge Pan-American planes last Monday, Sonja Henie took her family and friends to Havana for a week. Arthur Wirtz and Arthur Freedlund were in the Henie party.

Miss Sonia Sharnova, contralto with the Chicago Opera company, arrived Wednesday, coming especially to sing before the Manna Zucca Music club, outstanding musical organization of southern Florida. She will sing a new Manna Zucca composition, the six hundredth, "Two Little Shoes," at the home of the composer, Mazica Hall. Joseph Rueff, tenor, who soon will be the house guest of the Albert Picks of Chicago, will be guest artist at the Manna Zucca club on March 14.

The Guild Operatic Singers will present scenes from "The Bohemian Girl" at the Hollywood Beach hotel tonight. An audience of almost 2,500 attended the presentation of "Carmen" last Sunday night. Manna Zucca has expressed the belief that this series is a forerunner of a permanent winter opera in the south, at the same time referring to the many years that Jules Falk toyed with the same idea in Atlantic City before he finally was awarded the Baldwin medal for outstanding promotion of music in America.

Much interest surrounds announcement of the engagement of Miss Helen Wigglesworth, daughter of the Albert W. Wigglesworths, to Cyrus Leland MacKinnon of Cambridge, O., formerly of Kenilworth, where the Wigglesworths have a summer home. A cocktail party last Sunday for their daughter was also a house warming for the Wigglesworths' new Lagorce Island home, Casa Chapulin, where the wedding will take place Feb. 25.

Charles W. Hills, former Chicagoan, will open his Prairie avenue home Tuesday night for the annual Valentine party of the fashionable Miami Beach Community church. Living pictures from the family album will be presented in an old-fashioned frame by members of the congregation. A musical program, refreshments, and dancing will be included.

The youthful Theodore S. Gary Jr. and his nurse will arrive from Chicago Feb. 20 to visit at the home of his grandparents, the Hewett Browns, in Coral Gables. The following Wednesday his parents, the Theodore Garys, will arrive for six weeks at the Brown home, where they will be joined by Mrs. Gary's brother, Avritt L. Brown of Chicago, in March. Theodore Jr. will remain until spring with his grandparents.

If Chicago business men could adopt Fred A. Poor's plan for insuring full attendance at board meetings, they, too, would have no interruptions or absentees. Mr. Poor, president of the Bath club, called the governors together Wednesday. Walter O. Briggs of Detroit, a governor, took the party for a cruise on his yacht Bidou while business was being transacted. There was no show.

The Donald Hoffmans of Chicago and W. C. Gray of Purdue university, recent visitors at Mr. Poor's home, have returned north. Lewis Taylor of Chicago and V. C. Armstrong, vice president of Mr. Poor's company, from New York, arrived Thursday to be guests at Mr. Poor's Bay road estate and he will entertain for them with a dinner party at the Bath club dinner-dance next Thursday night.

The B. L. Atwaters arrived Thursday after enjoying the Gasparilla festival at Tampa. They will spend the season with their daughter and son-in-law, the Junior Mr. and Mrs. George F. Getz. Mrs. Getz entertained a group of friends on the Getz yacht, returning Wednesday. Among her guests were the David Annans of Chicago and the H. P. Dunlaps of Decatur, who are guests at the A. E. Staley home on the south bay shore, near Cocoanut Grove.

At Kindergarten

Bips made a valentine for mother,
Drew it on a red, red card—
Took her pencil with a sharp point,
Licked it very, very hard;
Drew a heart (or something like one),
Pasted on a cupid too,
Put a dove and arrow sideways—
Dropped, well, just a little glue;
Wrote in printing very clearly:
"To my mother": now, what's this;
Ink? a blot? O, Bips, how could you?
Bips said: "SHE'LL know! That's a KISS."

Folk Crafts of Hungary to Be Lecture Topic

Picturesque folk crafts and customs of her native Hungary will be described by Sári de Hajek in a lecture at 3:30 o'clock this afternoon at the Art institute. It is her second lecture at the institute and one of several to be given before Chicago organizations.

Miss Sari de Hajek.

Miss de Hajek, a Vassar graduate, is the only Hungarian woman ever to become a theatrical producer, a distinction achieved by only one other European woman. Her work in adult education brought her into contact with the peasants of her country. From them she garnered her store of colorful data about their arts and folk ways.

Miss de Hajek will lecture next Saturday night at a benefit program and dance of the Women's World League for Hungary, at International House, 1414 East 59th street. This world-wide organization is dedicated to the furtherance of Hungarian culture and to the revision of the treaty of Trianon by which two-thirds of Hungary's population and almost three-fourths of her territory were ceded to neighboring countries after the world war. Mrs. William A. Fuzy of Hammond, Ind., heads the organization in the Chicago area.

Tomorrow morning the Renaissance will make its annual visit to the exhibit of artists of Chicago and vicinity at the Art institute. This organization for the study and encouragement of art divides its time between studies of music, architecture, sculpture, drama, and painting. The club also sponsors a fund through which a scholarship to the Art institute school is awarded annually. Following the tour, under Florence Arquin's leadership, members will lunch at the Piccadilly tea-room. Mrs. R. Hosken Damon is in charge.

Hollywood.

IF YOU were a Hollywood columnist, at this time of year you'd receive in the morning mail an envelope from Los Angeles bearing on its left-hand upper corner the imprimatur: "Academy of Motion Picture Arts and Sciences, Suite 1201 Taft Building, Hollywood, Cal." Inside the envelope you'd find two pamphlets, one of nine pages, the other of twelve pages. The nine-page pamphlet would contain the rules for the conduct of balloting in the contest for the eleventh annual awards for distinguished achievements in motion pictures during 1938. The twelve-page pamphlet would serve as a reminder list of eligible achievements in the 1938 award year. I quote from the nine-page pamphlet:

"Awards of merit shall be conferred for the following achievements:

"Production: For the most outstanding motion picture of the year.

"Acting: For the best performance by an actor. For the best performance by an actress. For the best performance by an actor in a supporting rôle. For the best performance by an actress in a supporting rôle.

"Directing: For the best achievement in directing "Writing: For the best written screen play. For the best original motion picture story.

"Art direction: For the best achievement in art direction.

"Cinematography: For the best achievement in cinematography of a black-and-white picture, 80 per cent of the release footage of which must have been photographed in America under normal production conditions.

"Sound recording: For the best achievement by a studio sound department.

"Short subjects: An award shall be given jointly for the outstanding productions selected in three classifications: Cartoons, 1,000-foot subjects, subjects betweeen 1,000 and 3,000 feet."

Pamphlet two, that of twelve pages, which serves as a reminder list, is an alphabetical array of productions that are eligible for the 1938 awards, so I'm going to set all of them down here and you can make your own selections and see how your final decisions compare with the Academy awards, which will be announced at the March banquet:

The Story of Lincoln's Years in New Salem

By JOHN A. MENAUGH

SOME TIME in the middle of April, 1831, four men set forth in a flatboat on the Sangamon river from a point near Springfield, Ill. The boat was loaded with farm and forest products, and its ultimate destination was New Orleans.

The four men were Denton Offutt, trader and owner of the craft; John D. Johnson, John Hanks, and 22-year-old Abraham Lincoln.

The flatboat swung leisurely down the stream with the current for about twenty miles, then suddenly it came to a halt, stranded on the top of a low dam at the little village of New Salem. It was difficult work prying the boat over the top of the dam, but finally the task was accomplished, owing in the main to the strength and energy of muscular young Lincoln, 6 feet 4 inches tall and weighing more than 200 pounds.

After the boat had been tied safely to shore the four boatmen took the opportunity to løok over New Salem. Offutt, the trader, was so pleased with its location and the hospitality of its inhabitants that he decided to locate there as a storekeeper. He would need a clerk. After the river voyage Lincoln would need a job. So then and there the two came to terms. Lincoln was hired.

And that is how it came about that there settled in New Salem the man whom the whole nation is honoring today on the 130th anniversary of his birth.

New Salem, the forlorn backwoods village in which Lincoln dwelt for nearly six years, has been recreated.

In the spring of 1831, when Lincoln first visited it, it was scarcely three years old and an unimposing community indeed. In July, 1828, the Rev. John M. Cameron and James Rutledge had selected a site about a score of miles northwest of Springfield for a combination sawmill and grist mill. The village grew up near the mill. In October, 1829, it was given the name of New Salem, and on Christmas day of that year a postoffice was established there.

The village boasted several stores and some twenty-odd cabins in all, every structure built of roughly hewn logs. In the verdant spring, in the long, bright summer, and in the crisp and invigorating autumn it must have been not an unpleasant place in which to dwell—much like roughing it today in a cabin in the north woods. But when winter settled down upon forest and prairie New Salem surely had its drawbacks. Cold winds blew in through the chinks in the cabin logs. The open fireplaces smoked but did not warm the cabins. Wood had to be chopped for the fires.

The people who lived in the village—the Armstrongs, Berrys, Burners, Clarys, Gulihers, Herndons, Lukinses, and all the rest—were plain country folk, unlettered in the main, but warmhearted and friendly.

• • •

In August, 1831, Lincoln was back in New Salem awaiting the return of Offutt. When the trader arrived in the following month the two set to work errecting a log cabin to be used as a store. The land on which the cabin was built cost $10. The building itself was sixteen feet long and fourteen feet wide and contained two rooms. A fireplace of native brick occupied one whole end of the front room. In the rear storage room Lincoln slept on a hard, narrow cot which he shared with William Green, his assistant.

Denton Offutt proved to be a poor business man. Despite the energy and honesty of his clerk, Offutt's mercantile business failed within six months, and Lincoln was left without a job.

Still wanting to be a business man, Lincoln then established himself as a merchant in his own right, with William F. Berry as a store partner. At this time much was transpiring that has been seized upon by historians and biographers as influences on his later life.

Almost from the start of his residence in New Salem he was interested in politics. His popularity came from his good nature, his joking ways, his honesty in dealing with his store customers, and his prowess as a wrestler. When he first reached New Salem a group of young roughs known as the Clary Grove boys attempted to haze him, but after he had thrown their best wrestler, Jack Armstrong, they became his devoted admirers and friends. These young men and others in the community supported Lincoln when he first was a candidate for the state legislature in 1832, but he did not win.

At the outbreak of the Black Hawk war in the spring of 1832 Lincoln enlisted. Records show that he served in the war from May 27 to June 16, 1832, as a private—in Capt. Elijah Iles' company. He saw no fighting.

The new mercantile venture with Berry as a partner started out auspiciously. Whereas Offutt's store had been poorly located for business, the Berry-Lincoln store was in the heart of the community. There were three other stores then in New Salem, but in the course of a few months two of these sold out to Lincoln and Berry, leaving them with only one competitor, Samuel Hill. Hill was a shrewd old trader. He saw that the partnership of Lincoln and Berry was going into debt and didn't try to buy it out.

Lincoln and his partner occupied two different stores while they were in business. Lincoln read all the books he could obtain, argued politics, had a good time in general, and let the debts pile up. In the spring of 1833 he sold out his interest to Berry, taking promissory notes, and then managed to have himself appointed postmaster of the village. The postoffice was in the rear of Hill's store.

Lincoln had debts besides those incurred as a merchant. His scant income as postmaster, supplemented by his fees as a surveyor and for other jobs he could find, did not enable him to reduce his debts. To make matters worse, he indorsed notes for friends. Although he was elected to the legislature in 1834, when he ran again, and reelected in 1836, he made little progress in meeting his obligations. Berry died in 1835. His notes in Lincoln's possession proved worthless.

Lincoln stayed on in New Salem until April 12, 1837, studying law by the light of burning shavings in Henry Onstot's cooper shop, eking out an existence by working as a surveyor, and wrestling and talking politics as diversions. He boarded for a while in the tavern of James Rutledge, sleeping in the loft with the Rutledge boys.

Rutledge had a daughter, Ann, and it was with her that Lincoln had his first love affair, if we are to overlook that infatuation of his boyhood for a mysterious girl whom he saw back in Indiana in a covered wagon—a dream girl whose memory seems to have followed him for years and until he met Ann Rutledge.

When Lincoln first arrived in New Salem to become Offutt's store clerk he took his meals at the home of the Rev. Mr. Cameron, who had eleven daughters. The Cameron girls called Lincoln "plain old Abe," so he escaped from their clutches without becoming involved matrimonially or even amorously. But it was different when he met Ann Rutledge. Tradition has endowed her with every possible feminine charm. She is said to have had auburn hair and a remarkably fair complexion. She was about 19 years old when Lincoln met her.

There is a story to the effect that Ann had been in love with a man by the name of John McNamar, and that her father had objected to this suitor because he originally had appeared in New Salem under an assumed name. At any rate the girl did not become McNamar's wife. Instead she fell in love with Lincoln. They were engaged to wed.

But on Aug. 25, 1835, Ann Rutledge died.

Lincoln was distraught. The death of his sweetheart plunged him into a state of morbid depression. New Salem folk thought he was losing his mind. For weeks he went about in a daze, no longer the Lincoln of jokes and funny stories.

Then suddenly he recovered from this condition and again took an interest in life. In the summer following the death of Ann, Mrs. Bennett Able, one of the village housewives, told Lincoln that she was going back to her old home in Kentucky and that she would bring her sister, Mary Owens, to New Salem on her return on the condition that he would marry the girl. Lincoln remembered Mary as an attractive young woman who had visited New Salem three years earlier. It was not hard for him to promise to marry her, although, of course, the promise was extracted by Mrs. Able merely as a joke.

Mary Owens was a lively girl, tall, robust, and with dark curls. She had no little wealth in her own name, as wealth was counted in those days. When she arrived in New Salem in the autumn of 1836, Lincoln, obviously forgetting that he had been only joking when he promised to marry her, began paying her ardent court. While he was attending a session of the legislature in Vandalia in 1836 he wrote to her, pleading with her to write to him.

He returned from his second term as a legislator moderately successful as a politician. He had managed to put through a measure providing for the removal of the state capitol from Vandalia to Springfield.

The affair with Mary Owens overlapped Lincoln's removal to Springfield in 1837 to become a lawyer. When he left New Salem he still was ridden by debts (these eventually were paid), but no longer madly in love with Mary. By the spring of 1838 it was definitly understood that there would be no Lincoln-Owens wedding.

Although Lincoln's New Salem days were over and New Salem itself was rapidly losing its place on the map, giving way to a new town, Petersburg, two miles distant, the man who later was to find his place among the supergreat of America still was unattached.

It is another story, however, that has to do with how he came to fall in love in Springfield with Mary Todd, a beautiful young woman of social standing and high spirits, how he failed to appear on the day set for their wedding, Jan. 1, 1841, and how he subsequently married Miss Todd on Nov. 4, 1842.

Also another story is that of Lincoln's mild flirtation with 17-year-old Sarah Rickard.

New Salem in the years that followed passed out of existence. Its cabins were torn down or dragged away on skids to Petersburg. Nature in the form of trees, bushes, and prairie grass slowly erased all reminders of the village where Lincoln had spent six years of his life.

And then in 1906 was made the first move toward restoration of New Salem. Today a large part of the old community has been recreated. Eighteen cabins have been rebuilt as nearly like the originals as possible. Henry Onstot's original cooper shop has been brought back from Petersburg and reërected on its first site. The whole village, rebuilt with great accuracy of details, lies in New Salem State park—a Lincoln national shrine.

GEORGE FREDERICK WRIGHT

The two portraits of Abraham Lincoln painted from life by George Frederick Wright now are reproduced in colors on page one of the Picture Section of this issue. ● Wright, a distinguished American painter, was born in Washington, Conn., in 1828, and died in Hartford, Conn., in 1881. He studied art in Europe and in the National museum in New York. In 1860 he was in Springfield, Ill., shortly after Lincoln's election to the presidency, and was among twenty artists who worked simultaneously at painting portraits of the President-elect. It will be noted that in this picture Lincoln appears without a beard. Lincoln's friends selected it as the best of those executed by the twenty artists. There is a story that this portrait was purchased by Lincoln himself and presented to his friend William Butler. However it came into possession of the Butler family, it remained with them until 1911, when it was purchased by Edward W. Payne, a Springfield banker. The University of Chicago, which now owns it, procured it from the Payne estate in 1934. ● The second portrait was painted in 1864, during Civil war days, and shows the President wearing a beard—the Lincoln with whom most folk today are familiar. The painting was in the collection of Daniel Huntington until acquired recently by the University of Chicago.

I MARRIED A NAZI!

Marching Shadow of Hitler Darkens U. S. Girl's Strange Honeymoon

By
MARGARET PORTER REINKE
(Copyright: 1939: The Chicago Tribune.)

● The author of this story became the bride of Karl Reinke, a German. When she first met him on an ocean voyage he was a resident of the West Indies, tolerant and charming. They visited the homes of each other's families, and in 1937 they were married in Miami and went to Haiti to live. Later Karl gave up his business connections in the West Indies and the couple journeyed to Germany for a belated honeymoon. It was after their arrival in Germany that Karl began to subscribe to the Nazi creed. Rapidly he fell under the spell of Hitlerism, and just as rapidly he became irked with his bride's American ways. The shadow of Naziism between them became an ominous cloud when one day at a party a harangue by a Nazi official provoked a protest on the part of Mrs. Reinke.

WALKING HOME after the tea at which the uniformed Nazi had lectured all the guests, my spirits were low. Karl had been so unnecessarily brusque when I suggested leaving early; he had been flat with his command that I remain quiet until all the others were ready to go.

He was not happy, either. Perhaps he was remorseful. When all the anger within him had burned out he spoke wearily.

"We should never have come together to Germany," he said.

Silently I echoed the sentiment. The thought made a bond between us.

As Christmas approached I began to look forward to pleasant things. But I was to learn that this season, too, had its political significance in the Reich.

There is an ancient holiday celebrated on the day of the winter solstice. In prehistoric days the Teutons marked it by bonfires on the mountain tops, so that from one end of their country to the other there was a chain of light. This festival has been adapted to Nazi purposes.

In Hamburg the celebration took place in the park near our little apartment. With true Germanic efficiency the plans were made. All day long the brown-shirted Storm Troopers piled up brush and boxes and lumber, and by nightfall there was a woodpile—a great thirty-foot cube—waiting. And near it was a speaker's stand draped in the red and black of the Nazi régime.

Promptly at 8 p. m. we heard the steady, familiar tramp of marching troops in the Eppendorferlandstrasse. In perfect formation they moved into the park, where each company took its appointed place about the pyre. Behind them the space was quickly filled in by civilian spectators.

Then the speaker's stand was illuminated, and new marchers came and were given place still closer than the troops to the anticipated bonfire. These were the Hitler Youth, boys and girls, being caught young for training in the ideals of the Nazis. They carried lighted torches.

The assembly was now complete, and the speaker stepped forward and saluted. Without delay he launched into his speech. He was like every other orator I had heard in Germany. His syllables fell with machine-like precision in the beginning, but as he warmed up he worked himself into a frenzy; phrases ripped with harsh clarity through the loud-speakers: "German honor—the fatherland—mein Fuehrer—peace through strength." Iteration and reiteration; the same old propaganda. And the same result as always—the cheers of the crowd. How they reverberated "Sieg heil!" and "Heil Hitler!"

As the bonfire was touched off the crowd sang. It was impressive, this scene in a Hamburg park, especially when one knew that in a thousand German towns the same thing was happening. The flames leaped up, reached a peak, died down, and none of the figures in uniform, whether children or adults, had moved.

Only when the pyre was nothing but embers was immobility ended. The Hitler Girls, in brown jackets, black skirts, and low-heeled shoes, stepped out in a deliberate drill. With torches aloft they intoned a rhythmic chant. In perfect formation they executed the simple maneuvers of the exhibition. And when they had finished they went back to their original station to a huge burst of applause. It was a triumph of regimentation.

But not even Germany can quite conquer Christmas. The stores through the shopping season had a huge trade. Some one told me that buying was heavy because the Germans didn't know when or how their funds would be confiscated, and preferred to have tangible goods rather than cash. This doubtless was exaggeration. It seemed to me that even Hamburg was touched, as Chicago always is, by the spirit of the season.

Certainly my husband's relatives regarded that spirit with appreciation. Gifts were piled high when we reached the Reinke home on Christmas eve. All the family were there, even Friedrich, who had come down from Berlin. Else and Mother and Father Reinke vied in their welcome. Then Else lighted the tree and we all went to work sorting the packages.

Every one was well remembered, but my pile of presents was by far the largest. By agreement Karl and I bought each other things we could use in the home we would have back in America—silver napkin rings, a lether desk folder, a book of photographs of German scenes, and similar articles. The family had taken a hint, too, I suppose, for their gifts were practical—tablecloths, napkins, towels, etc., in a varied assortment. For me it was like a bridal shower.

If it hadn't been for the carp the day would have been perfect (in Germany Christmas eve is the festal day). Carp is the traditional Christmas dish; Germans have it just as every American, if he can, has turkey for Thanksgiving. One of the big, fat blue fish was aboil on the Reinke stove when we arrived, and when dinner was served it made a brave show on the table.

But carp is oily and rich and filled with myriads of bones. I tried to consume my share, if only to show my appreciation of Mother Reinke's cooking. I failed. I choked on the bones, and the richness of the fish made me ill. My dear mother-in-law saw my distress and insisted that I cease trying to be an experienced carp eater, to which I said a fervent amen.

After that all was joyous. Karl was happier than I had seen him since the Haitian days, and I reflected his mood. He was so carried away by his spirits that he arranged to give a New Year's eve party in the best coffee house in Hamburg.

That one wasn't so successful. First, Karl was disgruntled when he discovered that the prices had been doubled for that evening. Instead of the good orchestra we had expected there was only a jaz band. Further, the patrons nearly all spent the evening growing constantly more intoxicated, and ended by joining arms and singing lustily.

It was fun for them, but Karl was disgusted, disdainful of this vulgar merrymaking. He grew more dignified as the others stepped up their hilarity. Looking back, I think that he was always the aloof spectator, the introvert, when enthusiasm was in order. His aloofness, perhaps, was only timidity. He seemed actually pained when I made the slightest faux pas socially.

One day in January we had been invited to Aunt Anna's for dinner. We arrived early and were chatting in the comfortable parlor when some one turned on the radio. An English voice was heard. It informed us that in one minute we would be listening to the President of the United States addressing the congress.

Sitting close beside the old radio with its lace cover, I heard that voice and realized more than ever how terribly homesick I was. Perhaps any American voice would have carried me back to a country so different from Germany; a bright land, filled with spontaneity, gayety, a pioneering spirit, and (best of all) individuality and freedom.

Courage returned. When the dinner bell rang I asked Aunt Anna's permission to listen just a little longer to the broadcast. She and Uncle Adolph consented smilingly and went with Karl and Else into the dining room. In a few minutes I joined them, but the plates had been served and passed and Karl gave me a disapproving look.

Later when we were alone he lectured me severely. "It was a stunt," he said, "an American stunt. It should not be tolerated here in Germany. This is my country. Must you put me in a bad light with my relatives just because you are homesick? You are selfish, utterly selfish."

To me it did not seem a serious lapse from good manners, and I am sure the good aunt and uncle understood, but I apologized to Karl and agreed to "stunt" no more. Karl never forgot the incident.

There were times that winter of 1937-'38 when life was good. Once, I remember, Karl took me out on the balcony under a million stars and said lovely things about our marriage and our future in America. I could only believe in his sincerity.

Again we became comrades on a Sunday excursion to the Harburg forest. Untouched by the world's tribulation, by our differences of viewpoints, we tramped through the snow in the silence of the pine trees. I was no longer afraid; it seemed that my individuality had returned and that Karl was willing to let me have it.

After we returned to Hamburg the vague fear was to return.

I was pleased in mid-February when my husband proposed a trip to the Bavarian Alps. Preparations were all made and the tickets were bought. Then Karl caught influenza. Day after day the fever held on. The doctor, efficient and casual, came and went. "A little more time, a little more time," was his only comment.

Karl was very ill. He could take no food but fruit juices and the thin soups his mother made for him with her own hands. The nursing was constant, and I did my share, but I fear Else and Mother Reinke were far more efficient than I.

One night, after washing the dishes, I went into the sickroom. The doctor, Else, and her mother were there, watching and talking softly in German. Suddenly I was cold and frightened and alone. I was not needed there. The three there were experienced and wise; they belonged, and they were needed. I was only a helpless outlander who could not even speak the native tongue of my husband.

I did not belong there at all.

But one morning the fever was gone. Karl was going to get well. I buried my head in the quilt and wept. His thin hand reached out and touched me.

"I am happy, too," he said. "I love you . . . so much . . . geliebte."

It was the end of February, and the sun shone brightly that day. But a new cloud was looming. Hitler the Fuehrer was calling Schuschnigg of Austria to Berchtesgaden for a conference. We had no idea what was in store for us or for Austria.

Laboriously the little train chugged into Mittenwald in the Bavarian Alps. It was late afternoon of a March day in 1938. A few minutes later we were comfortably installed in the pension of Frau Hoffman, where advance reservations had been made; a delightful haven, with comfortable beds and plentiful food excellently cooked.

TYPICAL FLOW CHART TRACING CRUDE OIL FROM WELL TO FINISHED PRODUCT

Approximate Yield of Oil Products

THIS IS the conventional picture of a modern industry; it takes one, or perhaps three or four, raw materials and by magic provided by its chemists and engineers transforms them into a thousand useful products, including hundreds of by-products unrelated to the main stream of production, utilizing materials that would otherwise be wasted.

When you come to the oil industry you must reverse the picture. It has not one but a thousand raw materials. In the economic sense it has one product, gasoline. It also has a thousand useful by-products, but their price and sometimes their availability usually depends on the market for gasoline. And of all its by-products the most important is again—gasoline.

Petroleum—crude oil—which is the raw material of the oil industry, is one of the most complex mixtures found in nature. It consists principally of thousands of different hydrocarbons, compounds of hydrogen and carbon. There are a smaller number of compounds containing oxygen, sulphur, or nitrogen in addition to the two basic elements.

The hydrocarbons are a sort of chemical stepping stone between the inorganic world and the complex organic substances that form living matter. Carbon has the property of linking its atoms with each other and with other elements in an infinite variety of forms. The simplest hydrocarbon is methane, a gas. It consists of four hydrogen atoms tied to a single atom of carbon.

Ascending the scale, other compounds appear in which the carbon atoms are united in chains or rings or in more complex combinations of these two forms. Some of the waxes found in petroleum contain as many as 125,000 atoms in a single molecule, and artificial rubber, a petroleum product, is believed to have half a million of these building blocks of matter in a molecule.

In general the lightest hydrocarbons, those with the simplest molecules, are gases, those somewhat more complex are liquids, and the heavier and more complex molecules form solids at ordinary temperature. In crude petroleum the light gases and heavy solids are dissolved in liquid components of the mixture.

Until about twenty years ago the principal operation of an oil refinery consisted of the separation of the different components by fractional distillation.

The different hydrocarbons boil and condense at different temperatures. Under modern refining conditions crude oil is fed in a continuous stream through a pipe still and the vapors led to a bubble tower where groups of compounds of similar composition are condensed in trays, the heavier and less volatile at the bottom of the tower and the more volatile on toward the top. The fractions are then put through appropriate refining processes.

This distillation separates petroleum into five main classes of products. In the order of volatility they are gasoline, kerosene, gas oil, lubricating oil stock, and heavy bottoms. Gas oil stock got its name from its use years ago in the manufacture of illuminating gas. Heavy bottoms, the least volatile substances, are a source after further processing of petroleum asphalt, coke, heavy oils, and a variety of other products.

There was a day, in the time of the oil lamp, when gasoline was a waste product and most of it was floated down rivers or burned as fuel by refineries. The automobile changed that. The oil industry soon found itself in the position of the man who had a thriving market for porterhouse steak but had to kill a whole cow to get the steak and then dispose of the rest of the carcass as best he could.

• • •

Since the World war, however, oil chemists and engineers have devised two processes that have the effect of increasing the porterhouse-gasoline yield from the petroleum cow. The first was the cracking process, the second polymerization.

Fractional distillation is purely a physical separation of the different hydrocarbons in the crude oil mixture. It does not affect their chemical composition; merely sorts them out according to their different boiling points.

Cracking produces a chemical change by the application of heat and high pressure. Gas oils are the raw materials used. The tremendous energy of the heat used in the cracking still smashes the heavier molecules of gas oil, breaking them down into lighter molecules of the various hydrocarbons found in gasoline. The process is not 100 per cent efficient. Some of the gas oil is unchanged and is reprocessed, and some of it is recovered as heavy fuel oils.

Polymerization is the chemical reverse of cracking. By pressure at selected temperatures, light molecules are welded together to form heavier molecules, including those in the gasoline range. Polymerization utilizes the gases, lightest of the hydrocarbons, that formerly were wasted about refineries.

Polymerization is not confined in its products to gasoline. It can produce other substances, including heavy molecules that form a thick sirup, and still heavier ones that form solids resembling a transparent rubber eraser. Research chemists are looking now for uses of these new substances within a price range that makes it more profitable for the refinery to make them than to turn the raw materials into always salable gasoline.

Oil—a Thousandfold Industry with One Chief Product—Gasoline

By JOSEPH ATOR

The amount of gasoline recovered from a hundred gallons of oil depends, first, on the type of petroleum used, since different crude oils vary greatly in the type of hydrocarbons that make them up, and, second, on the market for gasoline and for other products. When there is a shortage of gasoline, cracking and polymerization squeeze out the last drop of the fuel available. When other petroleum products command high prices, gasoline production is cut down. Some crude oils, with modern processes, yield as high as 80 gallons of gasoline from 100 gallons of oil. The national average is only 44 gallons, however.

Petroleum, of course, yields hundreds of products with wide industrial uses—alcohols and solvents, fuel oils, lubricating oils, greases, waxes, asphalts, and coke. But chemists believe that the treasure house of resources contained in crude petroleum has barely been tapped. Some of them say that the oil refinery will some time provide as great a warehouse of chemical raw materials as was discovered in the last century in coal tar.

But many of these uses, perfectly practical from a laboratory standpoint, are stopped by the consideration of price. If oil fractions are used to make some by-product, that by-product must sell for as much as the same fractions would bring if converted into gasoline, plus the cost, often considerable, of processing the by-product.

It is, for example, possible to make good soaps from petroleum. Some of them are used for specialized purposes to which they are peculiarly suited. But petroleum soap will not displace soaps made from animal and vegetable fats in general use until the price of tallow, currently about 5⅛ cents a pound, goes above 17 cents.

• • •

Synthetic rubber, made by complicated processing of petroleum products, is a commercial accomplishment. But it cannot displace crude rubber in the automobile tires of the nation until the price of crude rubber exceeds 36 cents a pound. Crude rubber now costs 16 cents, and the synthetic material is used only where it has special advantages, principally resistance to deterioration, over the natural product. But it is waiting in the laboratories, ready to stop at the outset any such combination of rubber producers as boosted the price of rubber to American manufacturers above a dollar a pound shortly after the World war.

Another question on which oil chemists bring forth their porterhouse steak and cow simile is that of Diesel motors eventually replacing the gasoline motors in the millions of trucks and automobiles in the United States. These are the facts as they set them forth:

1. Diesel motors are more efficient by reason of design and because their fuel contains more heat units to the gallon than gasoline. Their advantage is perhaps one-quarter greater efficiency.

2. Diesel fuel prices at present are perhaps one-fifth less than those of gasoline at the refinery. Their apparently greater retail price advantage is that they have been tax free for highway use, but this is disappearing. Some thirty states now apply gas taxes to highway Diesel fuel.

3. The present price advantage is a matter of supply and demand. Only one gallon in each thousand of highway fuel is now used in Diesel motors. But while cracking, polymerization, and the natural hydrocarbon content of crude oil permit a high recovery of gasoline, present technology would not supply an equal percentage of Diesel fuels if they were needed. Under present methods a barrel of crude oil will yield ten times as much gasoline as Diesel oils. Thus conversion of any large proportion of the nation's motor fleet to Diesel power would speedily destroy the present price advantage enjoyed by the fuel.

Mostly About Dogs

—By BOB BECKER—

Show Draws Annual Crowd

Three Dalmatians. This breed, commonly called the coach dog, was very popular in the days of horse-drawn vehicles and livery stables.

NEW YORK becomes the Mecca of American show dog fanciers tomorrow morning when the sixty-third annual show of the Westminster Kennel club opens its doors. This great exhibition of pure-bred dogs brings entries from nearly every state in the Union and Canada. Officials again have limited the number of entries to 3,000 dogs.

The Westminster show's judging list is national in character. Just as it's nothing unusual at the Westminster show to see a resident of New Mexico (wearing a ten-gallon hat!) showing a dog against a professional handler from New England, so in adjacent rings may be judges from Seattle and London, Ont. For example, Mrs. Hopkins Hilton, 5858 Sharp avenue, Conoga Park, Cal., is traveling across the continent in order to judge Bernese mountain dogs, Great Pyrenees, and the Newfoundlands in the New York show. From the south comes Mrs. Murray Brooks of San Antonio, Tex., who will pick the winning Pekingese, griffons, and miniature Schnauzers. William H. Pym has been called from Vancouver, B. C., to judge some of the setter breeds. The middle west will furnish three judges for Westminster, all well known to show dog exhibitors. Orrin H. Baker, long a breeder of Kerry blue terriers, will judge that breed. J. P. Wagner of Milwaukee, one of the best known authorities on some of the working breeds, who last year was the Westminster judge of Great Danes, will this year judge the boxers. Livingston E. Osborne of Chicago, well known chow breeder, has the honor of picking the winners of that breed. In all more than fifty of the country's most able judges will be in action on Monday, Tuesday, and Wednesday of this week.

One of the novelties of this year's New York show will be a sled dog pulling contest. (Last year an exhibition by a border collie handling live sheep attracted much attention.) All contestants will have to wear full driving costume in the sled dog contest, which will be judged by Felix A. Leser. Cash prizes will go to the winners in the single light sled class, the single heavy sled, and the team sled dog events.

Obedience tests also will be featured. This exhibition of competitive obedience test work will be handled somewhat differently from the regulation competition that spectators see in most shows. A group of six women will compete against a group of six men. The exercises are going to be worked out in formation, each team working against the other for prizes. It's a sort of invitation affair, with contestants being invited by the Westminster Kennel club to join one of the two teams. The club is going to award a cash prize of $35 to each member of the winning team of both the afternoon and evening sessions. Members of the losing team will receive $25.

The average dog owner may wonder if the heavy cost and all the work of a show like this one are waranted. Or he may wonder if the exhibitor finds such a show worth all the effort and money he puts into the training and conditioning of his dog.

The answer is found in the thrill and honor of winning in a big show, the pride of ownership, and the spur of intense rivalry and competition. These, plus the love of dogs and the fun of breeding, developing, and training good specimens, are the forces behind the success of dog shows not only in New York but everywhere.

Because of these shows the quality of pure-bred specimens constantly is being improved, and the hobby of raising good looking, intelligent dogs is constantly being given new impetus. Another definite asset of the dog show is the way it educates the public on breeds, training, and grooming. One of the most enjoyable features of a show such as that in Madison Square Garden is the way it brings dog fanciers together to exchange greetings and to make new contacts.

DOG NOTES

Dr. William J. Funk, distinguished lexicographer and dictionary publisher, states that the average pet dog has a vocabulary of about sixty words. He adds that trick dogs may be taught the meaning of 200 or 250 words. Experiments have proved that dogs vary vastly in intelligence, as do human beings. Comparing dogs and their ability to learn things, one finds that there are very intellectual dogs, and dogs that are so dumb that they are almost impossible!

Owners will find the source of most of their troubles with dogs in the question of training. Among the common dog faults related to a lack of training are the following: Excessive barking, jumping on people, failure to come when called, running away from home, and chasing cars.

KNOW YOUR HORSES

By CAPT. MAXWELL M. CORPENING

Milast, a 2,250-pound Percheron stallion.

Elmdale Lad, a Shire, 2 years old, 1,700 pounds.

Ivondale Farceur, Belgian, 4 years old, 2,240 pounds.

DRAFT HORSES While many types and kinds of horses have been discussed in this series, the one of most interest to the most people is the draft animal. We have in American five well known breeds, and all are so much alike that only an expert can tell them apart.

The Shire, Suffolk, and Clydesdale belong to the English group. The Belgian, as its name discloses, comes from Belgium, the Percheron from France. Bred nearest the fountainhead of all our draft breeds, the Belgian is the largest of the lot. Reared on low land eminently suitable for production of big horses, the Belgian has little to do from foalhood upward but to eat and grow. The Belgian government has played the leading rôle in improving its heavy horses.

Undoubtedly the Percheron springs from the same fountainhead in Flanders as does the Belgian. The accepted belief among historians is that on defeat of the Moors by Charles Martel in 732 the eastern stallions of the invaders were crossed with the larger horses of the low countries and the foundation of the Percheron laid in that manner. Arabian and Andalusian blood has since been infused.

Characteristic of two of the British group—the Shire and Clydesdale—is the long hair on the lower legs. This is said to be true of any horse raised in the lowlands. The start of the Clydesdale occurred in 1750 when John Patterson imported from England into Scotland a black Flemish stallion. To this horse all the good Clydesdales may be traced. The Shire is traced back to the same black horse of Flanders, but whether it owes its bulk to that blood strain is another question. Bulk and strength, depth of flank and rib, and plenitude of bone are preëminent attributes of the Shire.

Peculiar to the eastern counties of England in general and the county of Suffolk in particular is the third of the British group—the Suffolk. This horse is the most distinctive of all drafters because it is always chestnut. In other ways draft horses have duplicating qualities—plenty of size, bone, power, and good disposition.

Flying Schoolroom

By WAYNE THOMIS

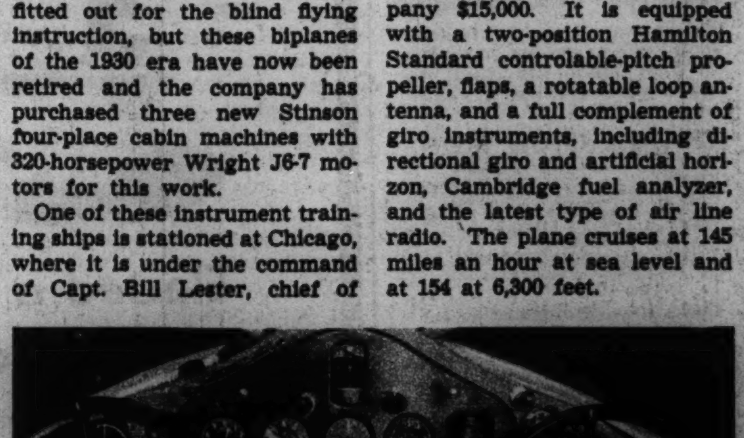
THE SKILL and confidence that enable air line pilots and military airmen to fly for hours "on instruments" (which means that they are flying blind) and permit them to make low approaches on a radio beam so that they break through the clouds over an airport are acquired characteristics. They result from continual practice and continual coaching by men who make it their business to be expert in this science.

All the air transport lines in the country arrange for their pilots to obtain this practice under the eyes of senior pilots to see that their skill is up to the standards demanded for safety. Many of the air lines use Link trainers, miniature airplanes that never leave the ground, but have instrument panels comparable with those in an airliner. Others have their pilots make check flights in regular transport machines that are used in carrying passengers.

American Airlines, however, uses both Link trainers and small airplanes fully equipped with instruments to teach and refresh their pilots in blind flying. The company in the past has had Stearman mail planes fitted out for the blind flying instruction, but these biplanes of the 1930 era have now been retired and the company has purchased three new Stinson four-place cabin machines with 320-horsepower Wright J6-7 motors for this work.

One of these instrument training ships is stationed at Chicago, where it is under the command of Capt. Bill Lester, chief of the company's instrument training school. In it daily some of the company's 300 pilots are being instructed in various phases of instrument flying, such as orientation procedure (the technique of locating yourself in relation to a given radio range station) and in low approaches (the nearest approach at this time to blind landing).

The new plane cost the company $15,000. It is equipped with a two-position Hamilton Standard controlable-pitch propeller, flaps, a rotatable loop antenna, and a full complement of giro instruments, including directional giro and artificial horizon, Cambridge fuel analyzer, and the latest type of air line radio. The plane cruises at 145 miles an hour at sea level and at 154 at 6,300 feet.



Dual instrument panel of new training plane used in checking pilots on their ability to fly by instrument.

"Hunting the Hijackers"

Guy Murchie Jr., Graphic Section, Sunday Tribune: I was very interested in reading your unusual article on "Hunting Hijackers" as it appeared in the Graphic Section of yesterday's Tribune. I want to compliment you on the way in which you handled this subject, which meant so much to Chicago. In fact, many members of the association have called it to my attention, not knowing I had already seen it.

I thought you would be interested in knowing that the campaign which led to the organization of the cartage theft detail of the Chicago police department, and which in more recent years has resulted in the creation of an interstate network of police officers especially detailed to combat the cartage type of felony, was the work of the cartage theft committee of the Chicago Association of Commerce. It was this committee which prevailed upon our own Chicago police department to add sufficient personnel to the cartage theft detail to stamp out motor truck piracy, and which as this work progressed was able to influence the federal and the Indiana and Illinois state police organizations to enter whole-heartedly into the general plan. Undoubtedly Lieutenant Kerr has acquainted you with this situation.

Yours sincerely,
OSCAR G. MAYER.

Author's note: In giving material for the story Lieutenant Kerr enthusiastically gave credit to the Chicago Association of Commerce for its initiative and intelligent support.

By ELEANOR NANGLE

DO YOU remember being told when you were a child that "we dig our graves with our teeth"? It used to be considered a pretty cagy, grownup reproof when you wouldn't touch your spinach because you'd gorged on gumdrops.

It suddenly dawned on us the other day that in much the same fashion predestination usually has precious little to do with the business of wearing glasses. Most of us invite faulty vision by a slow, relentless abuse of our two good, irreplaceable eyes.

The tragedy is that we can't catch up with the progressive harm of neglect. There's no undoing the damage done; all you have, plus glasses and resolutions to sin no more, are your memories of the care-free days when you didn't appreciate good light, when you read on jouncing buses, and never, never laid the thriller down until the heroine made the last-chapter swoon into the hero's arms.

The very first rule of eye care is self-education as to what constitutes neglect. Moderation in using eyes, above all. A good light whenever you do use them. Have them examined from time to time. If glasses are prescribed, wear them. Don't take advice from the neighbors about eye exercises. Don't fall for the old hooey that a lotion will strengthen. A lotion cleanses and soothes the eyes—and strained, weak eyes need this coddling more than others—but there its therapeutic powers end. We speak now of prepared lotions. What your own eye specialist prescribes for your individual needs might be something else again.

Lapses, when you sleep too little and perhaps cavort too much, will often create the temporary handicap of circles and puffs, but when these under-eye disfigurements are chronic the cause is probably organic. See your doctor.

There is no one feature more important to the beauty of the face as you grow older than your eyes. Bright, intelligent eyes lend charm to the woman of 80. Good health and good hygiene are the answers.

Under the head of hygiene comes the use of soothing pads, to be applied to the closed lids, preferably when you can steal time to relax the whole body. Lie down if you can, letting every taut nerve and muscle unkink. The use of eye pads—some must be dipped in warm water, and some, already saturated with a "pickup" solution, are used just as you take them from the jar—facilitates the immediate relaxation of the tensed, tired muscles around the eyes.

The effect in the way the eyes feel and look is surprising and certainly welcome. You come up smiling. In the space of twenty minutes you're transformed from a tired-looking hag into Mrs. Bright Eyes.

MAKING A SALAD THE HEART WAY

By MARY MEADE

NOT a sweetheart, but a beetheart, is this salad valentine. The message which should have been piped within that lacy cheese border is not "I love you," but "You'll love me." For you will.

The valentine begins with a large can of beets. First you drain them, then you strain them, but let the recipe tell you how. We'd like to call this heartbeet salad, but don't quite dare.

BEET VALENTINE SALAD
(Serves eight or ten)

- 1 No. 2½ can beets
- 2 teaspoons minced onion
- ½ teaspoon salt
- 3 tablespoons sugar
- ½ tablespoon minced parsley
- ½ cup mild cider vinegar
- 2 tablespoons plain unflavored gelatin
- 6 tablespoons cold water
- 2 packages (6 ounces) cream cheese

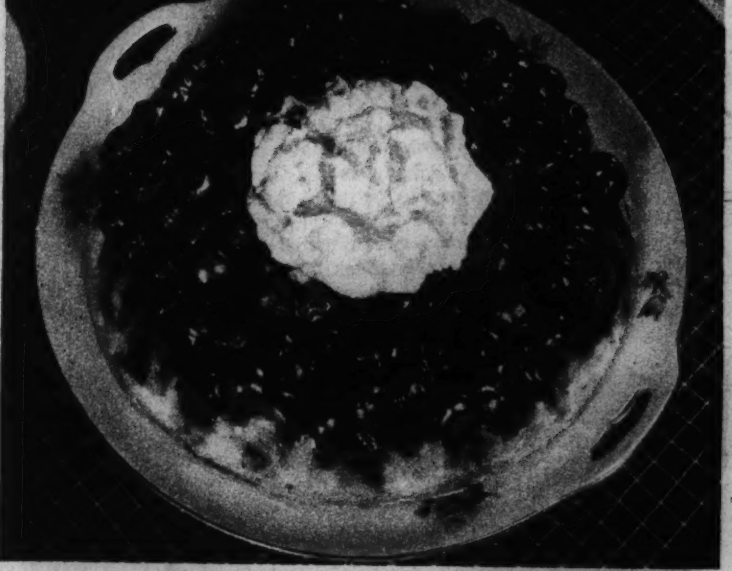
Drain the juice from the beets into a mixing bowl. Sieve or rice the beets and add to juice with onion, salt, sugar, parsley, and vinegar. Soak gelatin in cold water five minutes and dissolve over hot water. Stir into beet mixture. Pour into a heart-shaped mold which holds 4 cups. Chill until firm. Unmold onto a chilled serving plate. Mix cream cheese until smooth and soft and pipe through a pastry tube to decorate the surface of the heart. Garnish with lettuce hearts, endive, or chicory.

In the other photograph we see a cherry upside-down cake, which is as appropriate for the other February holidays as for Valentine's day.

CHERRY UPSIDE-DOWN CAKE

- 2 eggs, well beaten
- 1 cup sugar
- 1 cup minus 2 tablespoons all-purpose flour
- ½ teaspoon soda
- 1 teaspoon cream of tartar
- ½ teaspoon salt
- ½ cup hot milk
- ½ teaspoon lemon extract
- 2 cups (1 No. 2 can) pitted red cherries
- ⅔ cup sugar
- 2 tablespoons butter

Beat eggs until light and creamy. Add sugar and continue beating. Sift dry ingredients together three times and add to the egg mixture, beating well. Add hot milk and flavoring. Combine cherries and sugar in the bottom of a buttered baking dish and dot with butter. Pour in the batter and bake at 350 degrees until done. Serve hot or cold with whipped cream, plain cream, or cherry sauce made by sweetening and thickening the cherry juice left from the can of cherries.



Cherry upside-down cake is appropriate to serve on Lincoln's birthday, Valentine's day, and, of course, for Washington's birthday, too.

ter sports, was a little gem in a splendid setting. Towering above it were the five huge peaks of the famed Karwendel range, sparkling by day in the spring sunshine and standing like silent sentinels by night. About us stretched the steep slopes on which the athletes of Germany gathered to ski. On the hills the peasants tended their cattle and sheep, and, although the snow still lay on all but the sunniest spots, they were preparing their little garden plots for planting.

This was the happy land of Germany. Forgotten here, it seemed, was the constant political nagging so prevalent in the northern flatlands. The local inhabitants, sturdy, upstanding folk and picturesque in their colorful costumes, were friendly. The visitors, nearly all of them devotees of sport, were the merriest people we met in my husband's country.

The first night when we went down to dinner we found the largest table was being held for twenty members of the "Strength Through Joy" organization, a promotion of the National Socialist government. Young men and women who are members of it may travel through the country and stop in hotels and boarding houses at nominal cost. Pension keepers, who had to accept them as nonprofitable guests, usually gave them food of a plainer sort than that served to full-rate patrons.

The young people didn't mind. Frau Hoffman had provided plenty of nourishing fare, and they wasted no time attacking it. They were a healthy lot with red faces (an overdose of violet rays is inevitable when the sun is reflected from the snow in the thin mountain air). They drank beer, they laughed, they shouted, they told the day's adventures. Their food was shoveled in with knives, forks, or spoons, whichever was handiest, and they scorned to use the paper napkins furnished them.

Other guests smiled indulgently and made no complaint about the uproar. Strength Through Joy is a privileged body; to criticize it would be to criticize Hitler, which isn't done. I for one was glad to see any Germans shaking off the sensitive, morbid seriousness that seemed so characteristic in Hamburg.

Karl and I settled down to a pleasant routine. We bought ski costumes and shoes that were almost as stiff as iron. We climbed the hills and slithered down the slopes. We walked under the bright, keen stars. We saw all the sights that a mountain retreat could offer. By rail and cable car we went to the top of the Zugspitze, the highest point in Germany, and found there the most entrancing view it has ever been my fortune to enjoy.

Once again we found ourselves, our personalities, in harmony. Here in the splendid mountains we were closer than we had been since we left the romance of Haiti. Gayety took hold of us. Away from the newspapers and the radio and their constant one-sided propaganda for the Reich, Karl was having a wonderful time. His old gentleness returned.

I think that for the time being he set new values on the things that make up existence for all of us. Once, I remember, we passed a peasant plodding along behind his cows, and I asked Karl mischievously if he believed that man worried much about Hitler and his world aims.

"Perhaps not," he replied. "That man, though, is a true German. He works hard, raises a big family, loves the fatherland, and fears God. Politics is not for him. He is the sort I like—the man who works with his hands."

• • •

The night of the full moon came. It began like all our other nights at Mittenwald. Silver, icy light lay softly on the roofs of the village, on the snowy slopes and the clean-swept pavements. The village was preparing for bed.

Then came strange noises—strange, yet oddly familiar; the reverberation of heavy trucks rolling on the mountain roads, the pounding of horses' hoofs.

Karl seized my arm. "Come outside," he said. "Something big is happening. You may see it, but, please, no English on the street."

It was always painful to him when I called attention to my American upbringing by speaking my native tongue.

On the streets the peasants, in feathered hats and mountain capes, were patroling solemnly up and down. They carried guns, and Karl explained they had been deputized. For what? I could not imagine. There had been no hints of important events to come in the Nazi papers. The radio had given no basis on which we could speculate.

And yet soldiers were coming into Mittenwald. Soon they arrived, in armored cars and in trucks. Following them were field guns and ammunition trains and supply wagons. They marched on without a halt, taking the main road to Innsbruck, on the Austrian side of the border.

No one seemed to know why. Karl's inquiries went unheeded; shrugs instead of answers had to suffice. We hurried back into the pension and twisted the radio dials, but without result. Secrecy prevailed. If the other guests knew anything they kept it to themselves. Puzzled, we went to bed.

Hours later I was awakened. In strident tones the radio downstairs was ringing with "Deutschland Ueber Alles" and the Horst Wessel anthem. Too tired to bother about it, I went to sleep again. But in the morning, when I told Karl, he hurried down to investigate. We met a little later at the breakfast table.

"Margaret," he said, and there was excitement in his voice, "Austria has disappeared. Hitler will enter Vienna today."

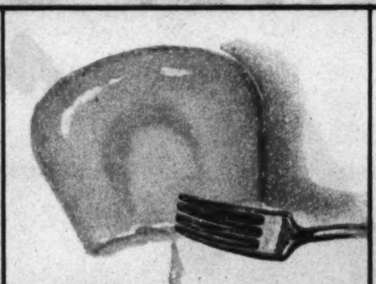
"Custom-made"

*to fit the taste of people who asked for something better in corn . . .
Here are some of the fine points we have struggled for . . .*



BRED FOR TENDERNESS

BRED FOR UNIFORMITY

BRED FOR FLAVOR
The "cobby" taste has been bred out of Niblets Corn.

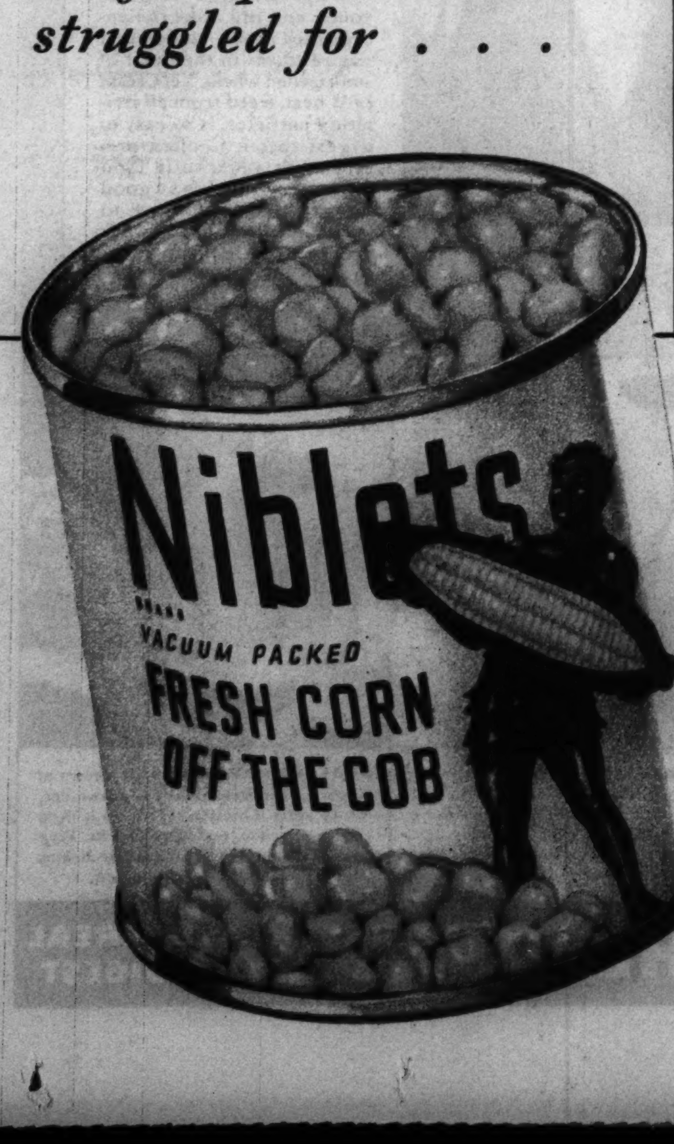
BRED FOR DEPTH
Extra tall kernels on slender cob give you juicy corn meats without tough cob fibres.



Ever since the Indians taught the Pilgrims how to grow it, Americans have always loved corn. But it remained for seed experts in Le Sueur, Minnesota, to refine it into a true table delicacy, known as Niblets Brand. It's grown from a special, exclusive seed (D-138). You'll know it by its milky tenderness and delicately sweet flavor. You'll recognize it at your grocer's by the Green Giant on the label.

Five especially outstanding features of Niblets Corn are on this page. The best part about them is you get them all every time you buy Niblets—this corn is uniform that way! Your grocer features Niblets in his store—why don't you feature it in your pantry? Packed only by Minnesota Valley Canning Company, Le Sueur, Minn.

All the family loves Niblets Brand Corn..and it's a great cold weather dish... Remember, if it hasn't the Green Giant on the label it isn't genuine Niblets

HEALTH

IT'S human nature to keep on hoping. No matter how constipated and sluggish you may feel today, you tell yourself that tomorrow will be another day—a healthier day. "Some lucky day," you say to yourself, "I'll find a way to solve my constipation problem. I'll find a way to win back youthful regularity."

Perhaps Saraka* is the way you have been looking for. Saráka is the laxative with "exercising action"—the laxative that helps turn lazy intestinal muscles into energetic workers for your better health.

The package of Saráka illustrated below is filled with tiny brown granules. Drink a glass of water—and swallow down a spoonful of them without chewing. Inside the intestines, these granules absorb the water and turn into soft, smooth BULK. This extra bulk is the secret of Saráka's famous exercising action. It gives the intestinal muscles something to exercise on.

Results are thorough but not violent. Many users are reminded of their healthy childhood days when constipation was unknown.

In addition to supplying needed bulk, Saráka also contains a specially treated cortex frangula which mildly stimulates the intestinal muscles. So you have *Bulk Plus Motility. Ask your doctor about this double action. We are confident he will tell you it is safe and non-habit forming. Then try Saráka. See for yourself how pleasant it is to take—and how pleasant after taking. Ask your druggist for the new Handi-size. Or mail the coupon for the free trial-size tin.

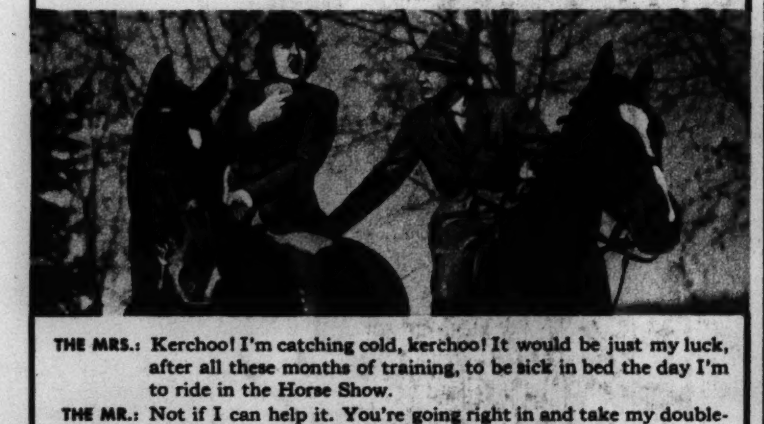
Attack a COLD two ways with Sal Hepatica



THE MRS.: Kerchoo! I'm catching cold, kerchoo! It would be just my luck, after all these months of training, to be sick in bed the day I'm to ride in the Horse Show.

THE MR.: Not if I can help it. You're going right in and take my double-quick remedy—Sal Hepatica.

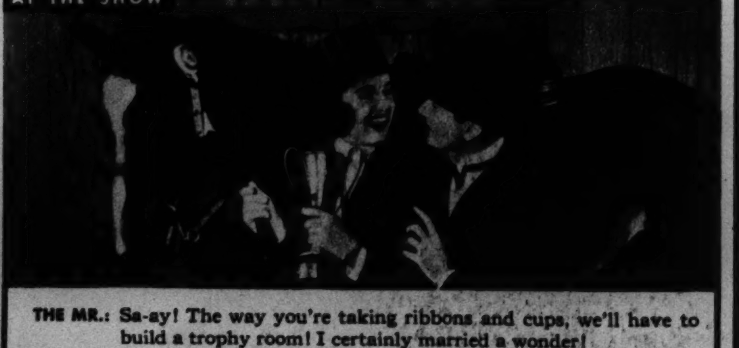
THE MR.: It acts fast—two ways. First, as a laxative, it's gentle yet speedy—and speed is important in fighting a cold. Second, it helps Nature counteract the acidity that very often accompanies a cold. So drink up!

AT THE SHOW



THE MR.: Sa-ay! The way you're taking ribbons and cups, we'll have to build a trophy room! I certainly married a wonder!

THE MRS.: You mean I did! If my wonderful husband hadn't known that Sal Hepatica helps attack a cold in a hurry, where do you suppose I'd be?

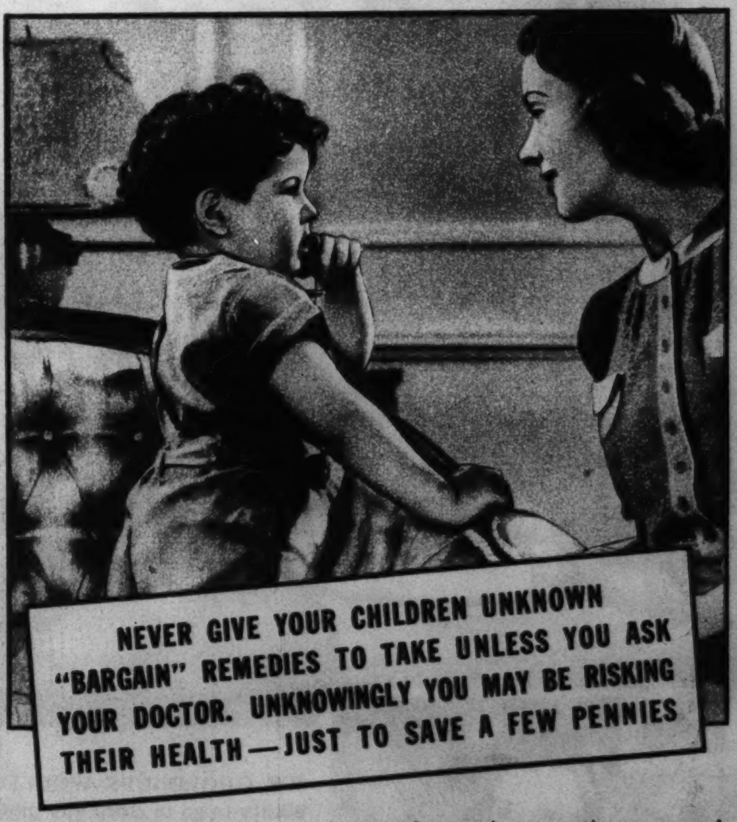
Wait, Mother—Ask Your Doctor First



A mother may save a few pennies giving her children unknown, unproved preparations. But the life of a child is precious beyond pennies. So — Ask your doctor before you give any remedy you don't know all about.

When giving the common children's remedy, milk of magnesia, never ask for "milk of magnesia" alone — but always ask for "Phillips'."

Because for three generations Phillips' has been favored by many physicians as a standard, reliable and proved preparation — marvelously gentle for youngsters.

Many children like Phillips' in the newer form — tiny peppermint-flavored tablets that chew like candy. Each tablet contains the equivalent of one teaspoonful of the liquid Phillips,' and a big box costs but 25¢ at your drug store.

A bottle of Phillips' liquid Milk of Magnesia costs but 25¢. So — it is a fact that anyone can afford the genuine. Careful mothers ask for it by its full name "Phillips' Milk of Magnesia."
